"What have I learnt, where'er I've been,
From all I've heard, from all I've seen?"

When the President hits the Yellowstone he'll come into contact with more spouters and mud-slingers than he's seen since Congress adjourned.

* * * *

Senator Fess confidently expects "Old Faithful" to burst out with a demand that Mr. Coolidge be drafted for a third term.

* * * *

If the President is lucky he will adhere to the tentative plan to leave the park by the comparatively little known Cody gateway, for the automobile ride from Pahaska, down the gorgeous Shoshone canyon, will give him more thrills than he has had since he caught his first pike.

* * * *

All the District of Columbia Golf Association has to do now in the case of George J. Voigt is to borrow one of those popular embossed apologies from Henry Ford.

* * * *

And when the President looks down at Inspiration Point into the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone he'll see a hole almost as big as the one he's planning to put Congress in on the naval program.

Now that 99.9 per cent of the American World War dead have been identified, we know within 70 the identity of the Unknown Soldier, and if this efficiency continues we may yet be able to carve upon that solemn tomb the name of the hero sleeping there, yet it would be a pity to destroy that glorious anonymity which is the final consecration of this warrior's shrine.

Gen. Pershing has published a text-book for American tourists on the A. E. F. front in France, and what's more to the point, he could pin on another badge — if there's room—and act as a guide.

* * * *

With the American Legion on the old camp ground, under their old commander, what's the idea of the boys leaving it to the stay-at-home politicians of the country to pick the next President, when they could bring the winning candidate back with them?

* * * *

Gen. Pershing has been compared by the British to Gen. Grant, but why leave the historic analogy incomplete?

"Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

An infant of 6 months does better and leaves the most mysterious footprints since those discovered by Robinson Crusoe on the newly plastered walls of an office building. Here's ambition!

Wilbur D. Nesbit is dead, and we can pay him no better tribute than in the words he wrote in his column when he learned of the passing of Harry Merrick, The Post's famous paragrapher:

"Dead! And the ink not dried,
Where he wrote with zest.
Death! You've caught us merry-eyed—
'Tis a sorry jest."

As Justice Holmes doubts his power to act counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti turn in last appeal to the man who above all others on the Supreme Court stands in the popular imagination for the rights of the "under dog," but Louis D. Brandeis is nearly all pure intellect and whatever his decision may be one may rest assured that it will be based on mind and not emotion.

Japan's action in laying in a large supply of Lindbergh planes reminds us that we aren't the only people who can fly to Hawaii—sometimes!

James Oliver Curwood leaves an estate of $400,000. The modern writer is no longer like Juvenal's "poor needy literary man, roosting with the pigeons in a Roman garret," nor like Samuel Johnson, a bookseller's hack surrounded by "starving pamphleteers and index-makers."

The wife and mother will hope on in sublime faith long after despair and doubt have gripped the hearts of others, so a few still cling to the belief that the waves have not sung the last sad requiem of the trans-pacific fliers. Yet here is one case in which it can not be said that no news is good news.

Gov. Ritchie comes out for real economy. In the national defense an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and costs less.

Mr. Dole doubtless will be able to obtain scant consolation from the reflection that if the tragedy hadn't occurred he would now be called a patron saint of aviation by those who are damning him for having offered the prize which tempted so many.

SACCO STAY DENIED BY JUSTICE HOLMES; PLEA TO BRANDEIS

EFFORTS TO BE MADE TO GET RECORD HERE

LAST-MINUTE APPEAL SENT TO GOV. FULLER

Massachusetts Executive Is Expected to Act on Letter Tomorrow.

Boston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti tonight turned toward Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, at the associate justice's summer home at Chatham, Mass., in another last minute desperate move to save his clients from execution on expiration of their latest respite at midnight next Monday.

Denied a writ of habeas corpus or stay of execution by Justice James M. Morton, jr., of the United States District Court early today, and denied a stay by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, early this evening, Attorney Hill announced he would take advantage of Justice Holmes' action in leaving the way open for a similar application to another justice of the highest court of the land and go to Justice Brandeis with his petition.

He announced from his office here tonight that he would leave for Chatham "just as soon as I can get home and pack a bag." His plea for a stay of execution to Justice Brandeis will be on the same grounds as that made by Justice Holmes—namely that petitions to bring the case before the full bench of the United States Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari are to be filed in Washington as soon as the full records of the case can be forwarded to the Capital.

Letter Sent to Fuller.

Attorney Hill said that he would not make any attempt to see Justice Brandeis tonight, but that he wished to get to Chatham as soon as possible in order to present his case the first thing in the morning. He will be accompanied on the 90-mile automobile ride down the cape tonight by three other members of the defense staff, John Schuman, Richard E. Evarts and Arthur Barnhart.

Before going to Beverly Farms to make their application to Justice Holmes at his home there defense counsel sent a letter to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller asking that he grant another respite. The governor was at his summer home in Rye Beach, N. H., and it was said at his office that he probably would not consider the letter until his return here on Monday.

The application to Justice Morton was made by Elias Field, of defense counsel. He saw the justice at his summer home in West Port last night and again this morning at the Bristol County Courthouse in Fall River.

Two Call on Holmes.

5 Warships Open Fire Upon Woosung Forts

Shanghai, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Five warships believed to be the northern Tsingtao squadron, appeared off Woosung, at the entrance to the Hwangpu River, north of Shanghai, at 7 o'clock this morning, and one of them, steaming toward shore, fired a few shots at the Woosung forts and railway station.

The shells did no damage. The Woosung forts replied without scoring any hits. After a time the attacking squadron withdrew.

Explorer to Seek Teddy Bear Prototype

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Van Campen Heilner, explorer and author, leaves here tomorrow on a two months' expedition to the Aleutian Islands, where he will search for the great Alaskan bear, prototype of the Teddy bear.

Lincoln Ellsworth, companion of Amundsen and Commander Nobile on the Norge's polar flight, will accompany the expedition.

Father Wounds Wife, Kills Little Daughters

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Clyde Willcox, 42 years old, tonight shot and killed his daughters, Patricia, aged 3, and Cleo, 10; wounded his wife, probably fatally, and then killed himself.

The shooting occurred in the family home.

Man and Girl Defeated By Wind in Coast Swim

Lewes, Del., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Exhausted after fighting against high winds and adverse tides for five hours, two swimmers, a girl and a man, who entered the water at Cape May, N. J., today in an effort to swim to Rehoboth, Del., 15 miles away, were pulled from the rough waters of Delaware Bay tonight.

The youthful swimmers, Miss Delemia Jones, 18 years old, of Wilmington, Del., and William B. McConnell, 23 years old, of Delaware City, were taken aboard one of the boats which accompanied them shortly after 6 p. m., when McConnell was seized with cramps and the girl became numb with cold.

McConnell was more than two miles in the lead when the race came to an end and had negotiated a little more than half the distance.

U. S. CAPITOL GUARDED BY POLICE WITH RIFLES

LIBERTY ALSO PROTECTED

Armed with riot rifles and heavy revolvers, a special detail of police kept an all-night vigil at the Capitol last night, guarding against any possible threat from Nicoli Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti sympathizers.

The precautionary measures in force already have resulted in the suspension from duty for a week of a woman guide, Mrs. Henrietta Jones, because of a "too outspoken sympathy" for the condemned men.

David S. Barry, Senate sergeant at arms, took the action when it was charged that Mrs. Jones had said she was willing to die in the place of Sacco. She defended herself to her superiors as having made the declaration to voice her disapproval for capital punishment.

When Congress is in session Mrs. Jones, who comes from Kansas, is employed as a tutor for the pages of the Senate. Her appointment as a guide is temporary and was gained a few months ago through Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas. The senator has been notified of the suspension.

Rigid regulations, which prohibit any one save an employe and a bearer of a special permit from entering the building at night, are in force at the Capitol.

The rifle-armed guards are believed to be the first to do such duty in the recent history of the Capitol. During the war, when the "spy scare" was contagious, the building was not guarded by rifle policemen. During peace time

Four Men on Log Raft Will Try Long Voyage

Pernambuco, Brazil, Aug. 20 (A.P.). Something new in long-distance voyages is to be attempted by four men, of Chilean and Finnish nationality, who plan to start tomorrow on a log raft for New York, making stops on the Venezuelan coast, Panama, Tampico and New Orleans.

The raft is identical with those used for deep-sea fishing off the northern Brazilian coast, and measures 24 by 6 feet.

Five Soviet Officials Sentenced to Death

Minsk, Russia, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Five high customs officials headed by M. Zikov, assistant at the Minsk customs house, today were sentenced to death by the local court on charges of fraud, embezzlement and facilitating smuggling by private dealers.

Eleven others were condemned to prison terms ranging from one to seven years.

DAWES RECEPTIVE BUT WILL NOT SEEK NOMINATION IN 1928

LOWDEN FRIENDSHIP BARS ILLINOIS FIGHT

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Charles G. Dawes, Vice President of the United States, will be a receptive and not an active candidate for the presidential nomination. He will not attempt to win delegates in States where there are favorite sons and much less will he enter into a scramble for the nomination.

While this statement can not be credited in quotation marks to Mr. Dawes the fact can be asserted upon absolute authority. In the first place Mr. Dawes, who in years past was active in politics, decided long ago to withdraw from the political field and devote himself to the banking business. It is true that he accepted the vice presidential nomination on the ticket with Calvin Coolidge, but this honor came to him without solicitation and because he had made a fine record in the war.

Sanctions No Campaign.

Mr. Dawes' determination has been made in spite of the fact that he has been overwhelmed with letters suggesting that he actively enter the field and offering to begin the work of organization in his behalf. While he has appreciated this sentiment he feels that it would be unwise and inappropriate for a Vice President to enter into a contest for the Presidency. Consequently it can be stated that if any Dawes clubs are formed or any self-constituted managers announce in any State that they are organizing in Mr. Dawes' interest the information may be discounted as inaccurate and without the Vice President's sanction or consent.

In addition to this, the friendship which has long existed between Dawes and Lowden precludes any struggle between them for delegates from Illinois.

Opposes Primary System.

It is expected that Lowden will carry this State into the convention and Dawes will not raise a hand to interfere with this outcome. Finally, it can be stated that Mr. Dawes has little or no sympathy with the present system of primaries prior to the national nominating convention. He regards it as entailing entirely too much expense upon a candidate even for legitimate purpose—a condition which leads to scandal and investigation.

Mr. Dawes' position can therefore be stated in a nutshell. He would appreciate and accept the presidential nomination if the Republican party desires him to be its standard bearer. Further than this he will not go.

Karlsruhe Launched; Third to Bear Name

Kiel, Germany, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The 6,000-ton cruiser Karlsruhe, third to bear the name, was launched at the Germania shipyards today.

The first Karlsruhe, a famous raider, was lost with nearly her entire crew through an explosion while in the Caribbean Sea November 4, 1914. The second was sunk at Scapa Flow when the vessels of the captured German fleet were submerged by their own crews.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATER ARCHITECT KILLS HIMSELF

IS FOUND DEAD FROM GAS

Once one of the city's most promising young architects, Geare's life was broken when the roof of the theater which he designed and which had been his architectural pride, crashed on the night of January 28, 1922, killing 98 men, women and children, and injuring and maiming 100 more.

Not since that fatal night has he been able to recover the position and the vigor which had previously been his, and yesterday morning his body was found stretched across the bed in his room at 3047 Porter street, the life snuffed out by gas which Geare had turned on before going to sleep the previous night.

Geare was last seen alive Friday night, when, after a day at his office, and an afternoon of golf, he returned to his home, presented his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Geare, with a box of candy and retired to the little room in the attic.

When he failed to appear for breakfast yesterday morning, Mrs. Geare went to the room. Her repeated knocks failing to bring any response, she peered through a glass partition in the door and saw her husband lying across the bed in his pajamas. The odor of gas was in evidence and Mrs. Geare battered down the door. She turned off the gas flowing from a tube near the bed, and attempted to revive her husband. When he failed to respond to her efforts, she summoned the Emergency Hospital ambulance.

8 MASKED MEN FLOG ALABAMA GIRL OF 17

Victim and Family Threatened With Death if Lashing Is Revealed.

Florence, Ala., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Miss Marie Bishop, pretty 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop, tonight told S. E. Stafford, Muscle Shoals detective, that eight masked men kidnaped her from her home the night of July 6, took her to a woods and whipped her with a leather strap.

The girl has kept the whipping secret under threats of death, she told Stafford. Her father and mother also were threatened with violence if they reported the affair.

Chief Stafford has turned the case over to Lauderdale County authorities, and warrants are expected to be issued Monday.

Two of Family Killed In Fall of New Aero

Harrodsburg, Ky., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—William Van Arsdall, 31, and Ormond Van Arsdall, 35, members of a prominent central Kentucky family, were killed at Van Arsdall Station, 10 miles from here tonight, when their plane fell about 1,200 feet.

$2,500 Plane Stolen From Ohio Airport

Troy, Ohio, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A Waco commercial plane valued at $2,500 was stolen early today from the municipal air port by two men who appeared here during the night. The airplane had been purchased by T. W. Gurley, of Philadelphia, who was awaiting his license. All arrangements had been made by Gurley to leave probably late today with his newly-purchased ship.

Two men were seen here last night in a hotel. Both wore pilot's uniforms, and little attention was paid to them.

DOUBTS PROHIBITION AS POLITICAL ISSUE

By CARLISLE BARGERON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 20.—There are increasing indications that the Middle West will use Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in an effort to block Gov. Smith of New York, at the 1928 Democratic convention. All reports reaching here and editorial discussions are of this trend.

It has even come to a point that former Gov. Charles W. Bryan, of Nebraska, is casting sympathetic eyes toward the Missourian. Mr. Bryan is a brother of the "Great Commoner," but more significant, his brother was as ardent a prohibitionist as the country has ever known. But the former Nebraska governor and the Democrats' vice presidential candidate in 1924 has written Maurice P. Murphy, a prominent lawyer of St. Joseph, Mo., saying in effect that he is not interested in whether Senator Reed is a wet or a dry but rather he is concerned with his stand on economic problems. And he thinks very highly of Senator Reed. He has "admired his ability and fearlessness in public life."

The people are not interested in prohibition, Mr. Bryan wrote. They do not want it made an issue.

Want Candidate's Views.

"In the middle West," says Mr. Bryan, "both Democrats and Republicans are more interested in issues than they are in men; in other words they will be undecided as to what man they will support until they are able to learn what issues the various candidates represent or intend to support. Our people are interested in economic issues and the entire agricultural sections of the middle West are so aroused over the economic issues and the way they affect the farmer that they will not take any interest in a candidate who is discussing issues other than the ones so seriously and financially affecting them.

"The voters that I have been able to keep in touch with throughout the country are not interested in any phase

QUAKE IN CALIFORNIA HURLS CHIMNEYS DOWN

SHOCK IS RECORDED HERE

Eureka, Calif., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Eureka and other towns in Humboldt County were rocked shortly after noon today by the most severe earthquake felt here since 1906. The temblor lasted fifteen seconds and impaired the fire alarm system.

C. C. Fiske, linotype operator for the Humboldt Standard, was slightly injured when his machine careened forward. Several women fainted on downtown streets while buildings swayed and the noise of toppling chimneys and breaking dishes could be heard. Plaster was knocked from many rooms.

Reports from Scotia, Fortuna, Arcata and Ferndale, nearby towns stated merchandise had been shaken from shelves, glasses, dishes and chimneys broken and some plaster knocked down.

Tank racks of the Shell Oil Co. in Arcata, holding large drums of oil sank six inches into the ground. In Eureka plaster was knocked from several rooms in the courthouse and from the ceiling of the city hall.

Boston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A series of rumblings and slight tremors which has "all the earmarks of a slight earthquake," according to Prof. Kirtley F. Mather, head of the department of geology at Harvard, was felt in this vicinity tonight.

Several persons in Quincy reported the rumblings strong enough to rattle windows. There were numerous telephone calls to newspapers, police and fire departments in Quincy, Hincham and Dedham.

(Associated Press.)

Severe earth shocks were recorded last night by the Georgetown University seismograph. They began at 7:01 p. m., reached a maximum intensity at 7:44, and were continuing half an hour later.

"EAGLE PICKED UP," IS RADIO FRAGMENT

HOPES ARE STILL FELT SEVEN FLIERS ARE ALIVE

Hunt for Rescue Crew and Dole Prize Aspirants Is Intensified.

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—With renewed determination inspired by fragmentary clews and prayer, official and private agencies of rescue along the West Coast, in Hawaii and on the sea, bent themselves tonight to the common purpose of retrieving from the ever-gaping maw of the Pacific seven lives wagered against fame in a romantic adventure of aviation.

The fate of the missing fliers was as much in doubt as it has been at any time since they left the mainland in high spirits to mark new paths through the air to Honolulu.

Not one word, so far as could be ascertained here, has been heard from either the Miss Doran or the Golden Eagle with five persons aboard since last Tuesday, when they hopped off from the Oakland airport in the Dole race for prizes totaling $35,000.

The last word from the monoplane Dallas Spirit, which took off yesterday for Honolulu to search for the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle, came shortly after 9 o'clock last night, when it broadcast an S O S message, sharply terminated.

Jested to the End.

Previous to this sudden lapse into silence the Dallas Spirit had broadcast numerous messages, most of them in a jesting vein, including S O S messages which told of going into a tail-spin twice.

Since then the only report offering any possible clew or encouragement regarding any of the three planes was the report of the Shipping Board vessel West Sequana that a red flare had been seen in its vicinity last night some 250 miles west of San Francisco.

It was estimated the Dallas Spirit was about 612 miles from San Francisco when the "tail spin" message was broadcast.

A tiny little fragment of a clew was offered today to the possible whereabouts of the Golden Eagle when an amateur station at Luke Field, Hawaii, reported intercepting a radio message from an unidentified source. The fragments obtained were "picking up" and "Golden Eagle." The Army radio and the naval radio stations in the islands were inclined to discredit the messages.

Tragedy Felt Keenly.

Not in years have the people of the Pacific Coast and especially in this vicinity felt a tragedy so keenly as they have the disappearances of these fliers to whom they wished such a hearty bon voyage a few days since.

As evidence of this sentiment, Mayor James Rolph, jr., of San Franciso today issued a proclamation calling on the residents of the city to pray for the safety of the adventurers who number among them Miss Mildred Doran, attractive young school-teacher, of Flint, Mich., after whom the plane in which she rode, was named.

All commercial and naval vessels in the Pacific between the Pacific Coast and the Hawaiian Islands continued to search the ocean for a possible trace of the missing fliers. The Army air service here reported the airplanes it has had out searching the waters along the coast and 200 miles from shore have reported negatively.

Destroyer Sees No Plane.

The Navy destroyer Hazelwood, after a futile search of the sea at the supposed position where the last message was sent from the Dallas Spirit, manned by Capt. William Erwin and Alvin Eichwaldt, saying the plane was in a tail spin, turned late today toward San Francisco to refuel. Headquarters of the Twelfth naval district announced no news whatsoever had been received by the Navy about the Dallas Spirit.

The destroyer Hazelwood, one of the fastest vessels in the Navy, radioed at 10:25 last night that she would proceed some 200 miles to the position from which the distress call was sent. The destroyer's speed when going at forced draught is 28 to 30 knots an hour, and it was expected she would reach the last reported position of Erwin's plane at about dawn. The Navy's latest estimate of this position is latitude 33.55 north, longitude 132.20 west, 612 miles west of San Francisco.

The destroyer La Vallette and the airplane carrier Langley were cruising 240 miles west of San Francisco, continuing their search for the Dole flight planes, Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle.

Baltimore, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Tortures similar to those committeed by the savage Indian, today were employed in a supposedly bootleg feud. Knocked unconscious and dragged to a deserted country cottage where their clothing was saturated with kerosene and the house set fire, two pitilessly beaten men squirmed their scorched bodies to the outside.

Though not burned to death in the trap their assailants planned, they died from the burns and wounds a few hours later at a hospital. Death came before they could give a coherent story of their attack.

John C. Harrahy, 36, and Chester Pugh, 33, each the father of several children, were the victims of Baltimore's most atrocious crime. They were motoring to a shore resort outside of the city early today, they were able to tell the police, when another machine blocked their path on a lonely road. Three men, each holding a pistol, commanded them to "get out," and when they did they were struck on the head and body with butts of pistols.

Harrahy said he remembered no more until he felt intense pain. He found his clothing afire and the room ablaze. Pugh lay beside him. He shook him and in their misery they tore off their clothing. The flames leaped about them, they said, and they managed to crawl to a window and fall several feet to the lawn.

Still suffering they reached the road and called the men to extinguish the fire and collapsed. A policeman found them.

"The Kid, the Kid," whispered by Harrahy in his agony before he died caused a man known as the "Kid" to be questioned, but he was released.

Edward (Spike) Kenny, an assistant of the late bandit Richard Reese Whittemore, and who was reported to have been shot by the bandit while the latter was a fugitive from the Maryland Penitentiary two years ago, was being sought tonight. The police want to question him about the murders.

Du Pont Heiress Is Posted By Lawyer She Divorced

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A three-line public notice printed in a local paper today intimated a resumption of the court fight between Harold S. Glendenning and his former wife, Alicia Maddox du Pont Glendenning, with custody of their small son, the object of the fight.

The notice read:

"My wife, Alicia Maddox Glendenning (formerly known as Alicia du Pont), having left our home and refusing to return, I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her. Harold S. Glendenning."

Glendenning today limited comment on his marital affairs to the statement that the divorce obtained by his wife in Reno, Nev., last September was "fraudulent, invalid and worthless," but intimated that he planned some action.

The marriage of Glendenning, a Rhodes scholar, to the stepdaughter of Alfred I. du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., was the outcome of a war romance which began when Glendenning was assigned to duty in the chemical department of the Du Pont munitions plant, where he met Alicia Maddox du Pont.

An effort, said to have been made by Dean Robbins, of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, to bring about a reconciliation between the couple was reported to have failed.

Mrs. Glendenning now has custody of the child under the terms of a court order.

$200,000 Fire Starts By Auto Short Circuit

Pomeroy, Ohio, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Fire starting from a short circuit in an automobile parked in the livery stable of John Pradie destroyed thirteen business establishments, two residences and the office of County Prosecutor E. H. People before being brought under control today. Damage to the buildings was estimated at $200,000.

One man, Louis Stevens, a volunteer fire fighter, was cut about the face and arms by flying glass.

RITCHIE DEPLORES ECONOMY PROGRAM AT ARMORY RITES

SANDY SPRING FIREMEN AWARDED POST TROPHY

Silver Spring Women's Organization Show Speed in Run to Hydrant.

National defense should take precedence over economy in the affairs of the National Government, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland declared at the dedication of the new State armory yesterday in Silver Spring, Md.

He explained that "we should sympathize with the officials who are striving toward the greatest economy in the conduct of the National Government," and declared that any program of economy for economy's sake should not be "so strict" as to withhold a wise provision for the national defense. He said:

"This striving after economy has been followed in the State, county, and municipal government of our own State. Economy is a wise policy. However, there comes a time when we do not want it. When economy is at the expense of the national defense, it should have to make way for defense. We must keep our forces so prepared as to protect us on land, on sea, under the sea and in the air.

"America is no longer isolated or protected by the wide seas. Aviation has changed that."

Armory Is Dedicated.

Gov. Ritchie declared that the National Guard is the Nation's chief reliance for security. The new State armory, costing $70,000, was dedicated conjointly with the holding of the first annual jubilee of the volunteer fire associations of Montgomery County at Silver Spring. Gov. Ritchie paid tribute to the volunteer firemen as protectors of life and property in the community.

He made one reference to President Coolidge's use of the word "choose" in stating that he would not run again for President. He had been asked whether he would seek the Presidency, and whether, if he were elected twice, he would "choose" to run again. He stated that "we Democrats would be so glad to have one term that we could easily defer until a later time our worries over a third."

Brig. Gen. Milton A. Record, commanding general of the Maryland National Guard, said that if "employers do not make it possible for the young men working for them to take part in the military training afforded by the National Guard they are derelict in their duty as citizens." He complimented Capt. Jospeh C. Cissel, in command of the National Guard company at Silver Spring, for his success in building up the local unit.

Arms Training Stressed.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates, stressed the necessity of training in modern warfare. He said that the Nation does not need too large a standing Army, but that it needs one large enough to hold the front line until the Nation's citizen soldiery can be trained.

Representative Frederick N. Zihlman spoke of the problems immediately affecting the county. Representative Zihlman awarded the prizes in the fire equipment contests and the parade which preceded the dedication of the armory. The addresses were broadcast over WRC. The Army Band played.

The Sandy Spring, Md., Volunteer Fire Department won the trophy cup awarded by The Post for the best time in the open pumper hook-up contest, their time being 50 seconds flat.

Bethesda Takes First Prize.

The Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department won first place in the Montgomery County pumper hook-up contest with a time of 50 seconds flat. There were seven entries in this contest, and ten entries in the open contest. In the latter, equipment from other sections competed. A loving cup was presented the winner in the county contest by the Silver Spring Chamber of Commerce. Wade Imirie, chief, piloted the Bethesda firemen.

In the open contest Maxwell MacKenzie, 16 years old, of the Capitol Heights Volunteer Fire Department, was thrown from the rear of the speeding engine and suffered miner injuries.

The novelty of the contest was the fire department of Silver Spring. They made the drive of 1,000 feet, the hydrant connection, dragged off the 100 feet of hose as required, and had water at the nozzle in 1 minute and 15 seconds.

Silver Spring in Gala Attire.

There were 21 pieces of fire apparatus in the parade. Sergt. A. J. Bargagni and Sergt. D. F. Sullivan, of the Washington Fire Department, were judges in the contests and parade competition. John T. Crawford was chairman of the firemen's jubilee committee.

Annapolis carried away the prizes for the best piece of chemical apparatus, $10 in gold, given by John H. Hunter, and the best pumping equipment, $25 in gold, given by the jubilee committee, in the parade. The Kensington Volunteer Fire Department won the Times-Herald Cup for the most members in line, and the North Washington Realty Co. won the $25 in gold given by the jubilee committee for the best float.

30 Enter Shiek Contest.

Quinter Lacey, of 3040 Monroe street northeast, won first place in the sheik contest, which, with a beauty contest for girls, featured the carnival that closed the event. About 30 sheiks were entered, many of them by girls, who kidded them into daring to enter, while others were forcibly injected into the arena by fellow sheiks. Few entered from personal vanity. However, the judges, Mrs. Helen Mahew, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Washington Fire Department; Mrs. A. J. Bargagni, and Mrs. Louis Lehmann regarded the selection very seriously, and their choice of Lacey proved their determination to pick a "sure nuff" handsome sheik. They put the sheiks through their strides, and with the most diligent calmness eliminated them until only Lacey was left.

Miss Ethel Baker, of Silver Spring, was winner in the girls' contest. There were fifteen entrants. Judges were James F. Fitzgerald, Capt. C. M. Lord and F. L. Lutes.

30 ARRESTED AS FIGHT RESULTS IN RIOT CALL

SOME FLEE BY WINDOWS

A free for all fight among patrons of what authorities assert is a bookmaking establishment, at 942 E street northwest, yesterday resulted in a police riot call, and the subsequent arrest of 29 men on charges of disorderly conduct and of one man on a charge of permitting gaming.

Joseph Sullivan, 37 years old, said by police to be the proprietor of the establishment, was booked at the Frist Precinct on the gaming charge.

Police were summoned over the telephone by residents of the vicinity of the establishent, and, when the patrol wagon drew up, hundreds of persons were standing on E street, staring at the third floor windows, from which came the sounds of a violent battle.

Rushing up the stairs, the police, led by Sergeant O. J. Letterman, and including Privates E. S. Groves, P. E. Ambrose, R. V. Sinclair, Samuel Russell, R. S. Bryant and J. Lohrman, found two score men in a mad scramble on the floor. Fists were flying when the policemen entered, but they soon ceased, and the men started trying to get out the doors. While some succeeded in escaping by the windows and making a getaway, most of them were caught and herded into patrol wagons. Twenty-six of those taken were white men and four were negroes.

Those charged with disorderly conduct gave their names as:

C. C. Hanley, 738 Fifth street northeast; Frank Hart, 1008 H street northwest; William Newton Walker, 738 Fifth street northeast; Chester Herminger, 1008 H street northwest; Welch Beavers, 654 G street northwest; William A. DRIVER SHOT IN BATTLE FOR HOLD-UP MAN'S GUN

GRAPPLES WITH GUNMAN

During a tussle for possesion of a pistol pointed at him by a hold-up man on the Carmody road in Seat Pleasant last night, Jack Horgan, a driver for the Electric Sanitary Laundry Co., was shot through the hand. He is at Emergency Hospital.

The bandit escaped with $65 which he took from Morgan's pocket after shooting him.

Morgan was driving along the road busy collecting for his laundry when the man stepped from behind a tree and ordered him to halt. As the man approached the truck Morgan leaped from it and grappled with him for the pistol which he aimed at him.

During the tussle the pistol was discharged, the bullet piercing Morgan's hand. After robbing him, the bandit ran up the road and disappeared.

Morgan drove to the volunteer fire department at Seat Pleasant, three-quarters of a mile from where he was shot. When he reached the station he collapsed. He was treated by Dr. Zadoc Brady, and then brought to Emergency Hospital.

BLIND NEWSGIRL AGAIN ARRESTED

Charged with soliciting alms, Miss Catherine Minnick, 23-year-old blind "news girl," of 1124 Tenth street northwest, was arrested yesterday at Seventh and E streets northwest. This is the third time she was arrested on the same charge.

Her attorney, Emmett Leo Sheehan, declared that the girl is being "persecuted" by the police, and unless the persecution ceases he will complain to the District Commissioners. Miss Minnick was released from the House of Detention yesterday after she deposited $10 collateral for her appearance in Police Court tomorrow.

Officials of the women's bureau said that they have received numerous complaints from citizens who declared that they had seen persons removing money from the blind girl's pocketbook. Miss Minnick's mother said that it was the custom of members of her family to take money from the girl's pocketbook to purchase more newspapers for her to sell. The daughter wants to sell newspapers because she does not want to be a burden upon any one, Mrs. Minnick said.

District Heads Back Suspension by Hesse

The District Commissioner yesterday approved the action of Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, in suspending Policeman Walter B. Clark, of the Eighth Precinct, from duty pending action by the police trial board on a charge of extortion.

It is charged against Clark that early on the morning of August 16 he discovered three men in an alley violating a police regulation, and that he collected from them $1 each and let them go. Maj. Hesse's report to the Commissioners said that the policeman admitted the charge.

MANEUVERS AND STUDY KEEP GUARDSMEN BUSY

FIRING TEST THIS WEEK

Daily maneuvers, including close-order drilling, map reading, pitching of tents and passing in review, were the order of business of the Twenty-ninth Military Police Company and the Twenty-ninth Division Headquarters Company of the District of Columbia National Guard at Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Md., last week. The police company is commanded by Capt. Claude Burlingame and Lieut. Joseph B. Darcey, and has a camp strength of 40 men.

The division headquarters company, of the same strength, is commanded by Lieut. Hobart Walker. The division staff, headed by Gen. Anton Stephan, also is in camp, as well as the Twenty-ninth Division Signal Company, from Norfolk, Va., and two companies of colored troops, the 372d Infantry Company, from Washington, commanded by Capt. A. C. Newman, and a company from Baltimore, commanded by Capt. William Creigler.

Ditch digging activities were the first engaged in by the troops, occasioned by heavy rains which at first threatened to wash out the camp. The guardsmen also have had their first fire-fighting test, by reason of the burning of a mess shack of troops under Capt. Creigler's command. Scout and patrol duty in the mornings, volley ball, baseball, swimming and canoeing in the afternoon, make up the average daily routine.

Maneuvers for tomorrow will include the use of airplanes from Shepherd's Field, Martinsburg, W. Va. Athletic events at the artificial lake, three miles from camp, together with tests for rifle and pistol on a newly built firing range, will be on the program this week. The camp is located in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

While waiting for a street car at Wisconsin avenue and W street northwest shortly after 10 o'clock last night, Mrs. Cora E. Riley, 2105 Thirty-seventh street northwest, was held up and robbed of $3 by an armed colored man.

Mrs. Riley told police that the man approached her and asked her the time. She told him, and he then asked how much money she had. She said she did not have any money. Drawing a pistol from his pocket, the robber ordered her to give him everything that was in her pocketbook. After taking the money the negro fled.

WASHINGTON MECCA FOR 121ST ENGINEERS AT FORT HUMPHREYS

Baseball Games Postponed as Guardsmen Spend Leave in Capital.

NEAR HALFWAY STAGE OF TWO WEEKS' TRAINING

Two Battalions Inspected Win Commendation for Efficiency.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fort Humphreys, Va., Aug. 20.—There were to have been there baseball games here this afternoon, but when game time arrived it was discovered that about three-fourths of the players had gone to Washington on leave. Hardly enough remained to organize a game of "two-knocker."

Teams representing the first and second battalions of the 121st Engineer Regiment, composed of District National Guardsmen, were to have met in the first game at 1:30 o'clock. The winner was to play a team representing the District medical detachment, and the victorious team in this game was to have played a team of "regulars" for the fort championship.

A large crowd of visitors from Washington is expected here at 5:25 o'clock this afternoon when the full regiment will pass in review on the parade grounds. Those who arrive an hour earlier will be able to see an impressive guard mount ceremony. The new guard will be Company C, in command of Capt. William F. Jorgenson.

In Camp Near Webb.

Tomorrow will mark the halfway stage in the two weeks' training period of the District guardsmen. They arrived here last Sunday in buses of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. The men have become browned and hardy, and their military efficiency has increased.

The first and second battalions were inspected this morning, and were praised highly for their efficiency and appearance by the inspecting officers, Maj. Ralph S. Childs and Maj. Julian S. Oliff.

A chemical warfare maneuver was to have been held on the polo field this morning, but the schedule became disarranged and it was called off. The guardsmen were to deploy across the field through a barrage of tear gas to determine how well they could withstand it. This gas is harmless.

Antiaircraft Unit Wins Approval at Inspection

Special to The Washington Post.

Hampton, Va., Aug. 20.—The greater part of the morning at the camp of the 260th D. C. National Guard antiaircraft battalion was devoted to inspection. Maj. Walter W. Burns and staff conducted this inspection and adjudged Battery B the winners of the contest. Capt. James D. Eggleston is the commanding officer and the noncommissioned staff is composed of First Sergt. H. J. Trum and Sergts. Lynch, Leek, Reinmuth and Bullis.

Later the battalion heard a Regular Army instructor lecture on chemical warfare and gas attack defense. He explained the various gases in use by armies at present and demonstrated several types of gas masks which are now in use.

Yesterday the officers of the 260th went to Crisp Park, where they viewed a 3-inch mobile antiaircraft mount, weighing 7 tons.

The Fort Monroe Officers Club gave a reception and dance last night to the officers of the outfit. The officers were received by Brig. Gen. Callan, of the Third Artillery district. Officers who attended were Maj. W. W. Burns, commanding; Capt. S. M. Grayson, Capt. L. Gosorn, Capt. J. D. Eggleston, Capt. Robert T. Daly, First Lieuts. Morris and Mann, and Second Lieuts. Heale, Votava, King, Mulligan, Cook and Atkins.

COURT BACKS POLICE IN CLOSING OF STREET

Appeal of Driver Who Used Thoroughfare Is Termed "Frivolous."

An echo of the local reception last June to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was heard yesterday when the Court of Appeals denied Harry S. Barger, an attorney, a writ of error from a decision of Judge George H. MacDonald in Police Court. In opposing the writ, Assistant Corporation Counsel E. H. Seal termed it "frivolous."

Barger was arrested on June 11 when he failed to adhere to verbal instruction of a policeman at Twentieth street and Massachusetts avenue northwest. The patrolman denied Barger the right to drive an automobile across a street near Dupont Circle and the attorney contended that there was no official sign prohibiting his trespass.

Taken up before Judge Macdonald, Barger was found guilty and fined $1. In his contention to the higher court, the attorney declared that the police did not constitute an official sign and that the laws governing traffic in the District must be done in a prescribed fashion. Counsel Seal's opposing brief held that the District, during emergencies such as fires, disasters and public celebrations, is authorized to rope off certain areas and prohibit trespass.

Hotel Supply House Receivership Denied

The application for a receiver of the Maier & Buttress Co., Inc., a wholesale hotel equipment and supply house at 608 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was denied by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy, of the District Supreme Court. The petition declared that the firm owes 155 creditors a total of $21,000, but has assets worth $50,000, and was filed by the Franklin National Bank and two other creditors. The firm, the court was informed, is unable to borrow more money and suits are threatened.

"The effect of granting the application would be merely to hold off creditors, who have a right to realize on their claims and who should not be called upon to wait for payment until a receiver has had an opportunity to realize sufficient to pay the creditors," Justice McCoy explained in denying the application. "The usual experience in similar cases is that the business is not run at a profit and that eventually it is wound up by the receiver."

DR. HOWARD L. HODGKINS.

DR. H. L. HODGKINS ILL FROM STROKE AT SEA

George Washington Dean Is Not to Resume Work for Several Weeks.

Dr. Howard Lincoln Hodgkins, dean of George Washington University, is seriously ill at his home, 1821 Kalorama road northwest, from a stroke of paralysis. His condition is reported as showing slow but steady improvement. It will be several weeks before he will be able to take up his work at the university. Dean Hodgkins suffered a stroke two weeks ago while cruising in the Caribbean. As there was no physician on board the vessel, it was impossible for him to receive medical attention until the boat docked in New York several days later. He was then brought down to Washington.

Dean Hodgkins has been associated with George Washington University more than 40 years, serving successively as professor of mathematics, dean of the college of engineering, dean of the department of arts and sciences and, since 1923, dean of the university.

He received the degrees of Ph. D. and Sc. D. from the university. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the American Physical Society, American Mathematical Society, Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education and Mathematical Association of America. He is the author of a "Historical Catalogue of Columbian University," now George Washington University.

BUDGET ESTIMATE INCREASED $150,000 FOR AIRPORT HERE

Street Improvement Program to Suffer Deletion; Hearing Set September 15.

One hundred fifty thousand dollars was added to the regular estimates for the 1929 District budget yesterday to cover the first year's work in establishing a municipal airport at Gravelly Point, near the south end of Highway Bridge, in Virginia.

The Commissioners included the item while considering how to lop $3,000,000 from the preliminary estimates as directed by the Bureau of the Budget, thereby increasing the sum to be transferred from the tentative to supplemental estimates.

There is pending before the Commissioners a bill to be submitted to Congress authorizing the establishment of the airport. One section of the measure provides that the Federal Government pay half the cost, which has been estimated at more than $1,000,000, the expenditure of which will be spread over a number of years.

Bill Awaits Dougherty.

This bill will not be considered by the Commissioners for recommendation to Congress until Proctor L. Dougherty, president of the District Board of Commissioners, returns around September 8 from his vacation.

More than $1,000,000, it was said, was ordered deleted from the Board of Education estimates and most of the remainder of the $3,000,000 cut was made in the street improvement program of the highway division.

All of the items taken from the budget were ordered presented again to the Bureau of the Budget in the form of supplemental estimates. Hearings on the District financial needs will be held by the bureau after September 15.

Autoists Are Warned Against Monoxide Gas

A warning to motorists to beware of carbon monoxide gas during the coming winter was issued yesterday by S. H. Katz, of the Bureau of Mines, and H. W. Frevert, of the Bureau of Chemistry, who are preparing a report on the subject to be submitted to the gas and fuel section of the American Chemical Society at the convention in Detroit, September 7.

Experiments which the two experts have conducted at the garage of the Government fuel yard here, and at a large commercial garage in Pittsburgh, show that carbon monoxide is constantly present, they say. While it was found that there was always sufficient of the gas to cause headaches, it was pointed out that in the winter, when the garages are closed, the amount will increase, and might easily become deadly.

CONTRACTORS KILL TOO MANY OF TREES, C. LANHAM CHARGES

SUPPLY BY NURSERIES TERMED INSUFFICIENT

Problem of Buying for Next Year Now Faced, Official Says.

Contractors doing street work for the District destroy too many trees and should be more careful, in the opinion of Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking, as expressed in his annual report for the last fiscal year, made public yesterday. He said:

"There are more trees on the streets of Washington at this time than ever in the history of the city and their general condition is good. However, a survey of the city discloses that considerable damage has been done to trees in connection with street improvements. It is realized that it is almost impossible to carry on the work of laying mains, constructing conduit and resetting curbs without some damage being done to tree roots. Nevertheless more care should be exercised by contractors engaged in street work."

Lanham reported that 2,093 young trees had been planted in their permanent positions during the year and that 1,937 old trees had been removed, more than half of them having been killed. Trees trimmed numbered 12,973, most of them having been subjects of individual complaint, little systematic trimming having been done due to insufficient appropriations. There were 51,233 trees sprayed for insect pests and 12,780 young trees were cultivated.

Of the 1,936 trees removed, 355 were to make way for street improvements, including widening, 247 because they were decayed and dangerous, 202 to make way for entrances to buildings, 41 for driveways, 43 for alley improvements, 27 because they interfered with building operations, 16 because they interfered with vehicular traffic, 7 with street lambs, 5 with sewers, 3 with water mains and 17 with development of other trees. Twenty were removed to make way for construction of a freight terminal.

Of those killed, 202 were destroyed by storms, 52 by automobiles, 146 by abnormal moisture, 83 by illuminating gas, 40 by being filled around, 27 by salt water, 19 by drought, 13 by being girdled, 12 by oil, 6 by fire and 5 by insects. Death of 539 trees remained unexplained.

Lanham explained that the District nurseries at Fort Dupont and Popular Point are not supplying enough trees annually to fill the city's needs. Last year he tried to buy trees but two nurseries refused to deliver after submitting bids. He is confronted with the problem of how to buy trees next year, for he told the commissioners that some would have to be bought "to keep up with the rapid street improvements that are being made."

OLD GLORY PLANE TO HOP OFF TODAY, FLYING FOR ROME

Probable Time of Take-Off Is Fixed for 5 o'Clock This Afternoon.

ROUND WORLD FLIERS QUIT DETROIT MONDAY

Curtiss Field, N. Y., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Old Glory, the Fokker monoplane in which two American air mail pilots will attempt to fly to Rome, was groomed today for a probable take-off at 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, eastern standard time.

The Roosevelt Field runway dried out today from rains which have prevented a take-off during the past two days. The Weather Bureau announced that there would be considerable cloudiness from here to Newfoundland and thence over the great circle course tomorrow, but the winds will be favorable and a system of low pressures seems to be moving northeastward out of the airplane lane.

Lloyd Bertaud and James D. Hill, who will pilot Old Glory, are planning to follow a modified great circle course, jogging repeatedly southward as they proceed and reaching Europe at Bordeaux, France, instead of at Ireland. This will necessitate a 2,500-mile water jump instead of one of 1,900 miles, but on the other hand it will insure better weather, as the map shows more favorable conditions below the great circle than above it, and will also put the plane over the steamer lanes for much of the way.

As the Old Glory was being groomed today mechanics were gathered in a nearby hangar to assemble the Sikorsky biplane Ville de Paris in which Rene Fonck will make his second attempt for transatlantic honors next month.

Fonck will be accompanied on his flight by Lieut. L. W. Curtin, U. S. N., who escaped uninjured with the French ace when Fonck's first Sikorsky plane overturned and burned with the loss of two lives last year at the moment of taking off for France. The French flier would reveal nothing of his plans today but it was generally understood that a plan to fly to Constantinople had been abandoned and that the destination would be Paris.

Globe Hop Monday.

Detroit, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A hope of circling the globe in the record smashing time of 15 days will guide Edward F. Schlee, president of the Waco Oil Corporation, and William Brock, his pilot, when they hop off Monday morning for Curtiss Field, Long Island, en route to Harbor Grace, Newfoundand, the official starting point. By using their plane over the entire charted course of 20,845 miles, Schlee and Brock hope to return to Harbor Grace in fifteen days.

Reconditioned Schlee's Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, in which Eddie Stinson recently won the national air tour, will serve as the flier's vehicle. The plane has been christened Pride of Detroit.

The fliers plan to leave Curtiss Field for Harbor Grace Tuesday. From that point the route lies to London, Stuttgart, Belgrade, Constantinople and Bagdad. Then through Persia to Calcutta, Rangoon and on to Hongkong, Tokyo, the Midway Island, Honolulu, San Francisco and thence eastward through Cheyenne, Chicago and Detroit would return the plane to its starting point.

Three ocean hops, each spanning more than 2,000 miles, face the fliers. The first is from Harbor Grace to London, the second from Tokyo to the Midway Island, and the last from Honolulu to San Francisco.

Schlee, who is 39 years old, is married and has two children. Brock, 31, also is married.

READY FOR FLIGHT TO ROME

of three airplanes and their crews of six men and one woman as approximately 25 ships cruised at full speed over the great circle route on missions of rescue.

A mysterious red flare at midnight sent the Steamer West Sequana to a spot approximately 250 miles west of San Francisco and 70 miles north of the great circle route. The Dallas Spirit is believed to have fallen into the sea while on its way to Honolulu in an attempt to sight the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle, missing Dole flight planes.

The Dallas Spirit radioed two frantic S O S calls shortly after 9 o'clock last night, and added that the plane had gone into two successive tail spins. Then the plane's radio was silent.

United States destroyers and mercantile vessels answered the call for help and steamed under forced draft toward the Dallas Spirit's last known position, about 592 miles west of San Francisco.

A radiogram received by the Federal Telegraph Co. at 8:39 a. m. today from the West Sequana said that vessel had given up the search of the place where it had been reported that a flare was seen shortly after midnight and was proceeding westward. The vessel said no trace of anything had been seen. The West Sequana was 250 miles out at 6:47 a. m.

Swayne and Hoyt, operators of the West Sequana, ordered the vessel to stand by until visibility is good and then continue the search in the vicinity of where the flare was reported. This message was sent to the vessel after it had reported that it could find nothing and was going to proceed to Shanghai, its destination.

Message Tells of Light.

The first radio message from the West Sequana that a red flare had been seen 3 miles off its starboard bow, in 37 degrees 32 minutes north latitude 127 degrees 22 minutes west longitude. This is 70 miles north of the great circle route to Honolulu, which the missing Dole fliers intended to pursue. The flare lasted for half a minute, but was not repeated, said the message from the West Sequana.

The ship steamed to the spot, and circled for more than an hour, but visibility was poor, due to a heavy mist bank, and no sign of an airplane was observed. The ship's captain radioed the Federal Telegraph Co. that the boat would continue its circling for another hour and then, if the search was futile, it would continue on its course.

It was estimated that about 25 ships were steaming over the Pacific in search of Miss Mildred Doran, a passenger in the plane Miss Doran, piloted by J. Auggy Pedlar, with Vilas R. Knope as navigator.

Hope had not been abandoned for the trio, in spite of the fact that it was known their plane could not float for any length of time and that they had only two gallons of water.

A more optimistic outlook was held for the fates of Jack Frost, pilot, and Gordon Scott, navigator, of the Golden Eagle.

The Golden Eagle was capable, experts declared, of remaining afloat for many days, and its occupants were supplied with provisions to last them nearly a month, in addition to breathing condensers which could turn their breath into water.

Radio Stirs Watchers.

Honolulu, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Vagrant and unconfirmable radio messages reporting the sighting or picking up of one or another of the three airplanes and their occupants lost somewhere between the California mainland and the Hawaiian Islands, electrified searchers and aroused hope today, but only for a brief time.

Each message, investigated by naval vessel or aircraft, proved false, and the hopes that six courageous men and one brave girl were about to be rescued were cruelly dashed.

Radio experts were loathe to believe that these radio messages, sent by individuals who could not be identified or located, had been transmitted as a hoax. They thought, instead, that they might have been fragments of conversation concerning the planes, picked up by amateurs who excitedly mistook them for the news of the planes for which the world has been waiting—the actual sighting of the wave-tossed machines.

No military or commercial radio stations have intercepted such messages.

After an all night vigil, following reports that Pilot William P. Erwin and Navigator A. H. Eichwaldt, might have plunged into the ocean in their plane, Dallas Spirt, 600 miles off the California coast last night the Pearl Harbor naval station was snapped into sudden activity at dawn.

Unable to Follow Up.

An amateur radio operator at Luke Field reported having intercepted a part of a message from an unlocated ship stating that the Dole flight plane Golden Eagle had been picked up. A few minutes later a second message was intercepted saying that the Golden Eagle was "being picked up."

Efforts to confirm or trace the messages were futile. The Luke Field radio set is not an official Army station. It is an amateur station built and operated by men stationed there.

The Fourteenth naval district extended the search today for the missing Dole planes, sending aircraft and submarines to comb the huge triangular area north of the Island of Hawaii which previously had been less searched than other regions. Two patrols of two planes each left the Pearl Harbor air station before 7:30 a. m., fueled for flights of approximately 400 miles each.

One patrol went to Molokai Island, around which they planned to swing through Pailolo Channel. The second patrol started for Hana, at the southeastern tip of Maui Island, from which they were to return to Lahaina, via Alenuihala Channel, joining the first patrol.

The planes in each patrol were ordered to fly about ten miles apart, and to send radio reports of their positions every fifteen minutes.

Search by Submarines.

The submarine tender Holland and eight submarines left Pearl Harbor at 8 a. m. yesterday to form a line running southwest from Kaena Point, northwest of Oahu Island, to a position north of Kauai Island, at which they were due at 4 o'clock this morning. The remaining submarines available for formation were returning to Pearl Harbor today from the southernmost point of the Island of Hawaii.

Two submarines which were detached from formation yesterday to search channels about Maui Island were to rejoin the formation north of Kauai Island. Eight other submarines early today were 65 miles north of Kaena Point, heading northwest toward the windward side of Kauai Island.

As a result of radio reports last night that Erwin's plane, the Dallas Spirit, had gone into a tail spin, recovered and tail-spinned again, apprehension concerning the fate of the plane was expressed at Pearl Harbor. It was pointed out that a plane going down in a tail spin, particularly when heavily loaded, crashes badly.

While the Navy was entirely without official information on the whereabouts of Erwin and Eichwaldt and their plane, the Dallas Spirit, the flood of rumors became so persistent this afternoon that Rear Admiral John D. McDonald placed a lookout on the observation tower at Pearl Harbor with orders to report all air-planes.

London-Ottawa Hop Planned for Tuesday

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Capt. Leslie Hamilton announced today that he had definitely decided to start his transatlantic flight to Ottawa from the Upavon Airdrome, 40 miles from Bristol, England, instead of from Dublin, Ireland. The present intention of himself and Col. F. F. Minchin, his companion, he said, is to hop off next Tuesday morning, weather permitting.

Capt. Hamilton was in London today. He is leaving for Bristol tomorrow for the final trials.

FAMILIES OF FLIERS BRAVELY WAIT WORD FROM PACIFIC HUNT

ERWIN'S BRIDE CERTAIN HUSBAND STILL LIVES

Flint, Mich., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—While the remainder of the city prepared to offer up public prayers tomorrow for Miss Mildred Doran and the other missing Pacific fliers, relatives of the "flying school teacher" today clung valiantly to crumbling shreds of hope in a sturdy fight against despair.

Reports that a flare had been seen along the San Francisco-Honolulu route especially heartened William Doran, jr., elder brother of the pretty school teacher who staked her life in an attempt to gain the honor of being the first woman to span the Pacific.

The younger Doran and Helen Doran will attend church services tomorrow at the Lakeview M. E. Church, near the family home, where the Rev. R. H. Prouse will devote a fifteen-minute period for the saying of prayers for Miss Doran and the other missing Dole flight participants. Similiar services are scheduled for the remainder of the approximately 40 churches of the ministerial association, which asked yesterday that such services be held. Miss Doran attended both Sunday school and church services at the Lakeview Church.

Wife Has Faith in Plane.

West Collingswood, N. J., Aug. 20 (A. P.).—Calm confidence in the ability of her missing husband marks the attitude of Mrs. Constance Ohl Erwin, 20-year-old wife of Capt. William P. Erwin, who is believed to have fallen into the Pacific Ocean off the California coast while searching by airplane for the two missing planes of the recent Hawaii flight.

Mrs. Erwin, who came here from her home in Dallas, Texas, to visit relatives, believes her husband will be found safe. She is at the bedside of her brother, Charles Ohl, ill with typhoid fever, at the home of her grandfather, the Rev. C. M. Perkins.

"Bill is too good a pilot, and his plane, the Dallas Spirit, is too stanch for them to be lost," she said. "I don't believe he would go into a tail spin, as reported, unless something went wrong with the ship. And I don't believe anything would go wrong with it. Even if it were forced down into the sea, it would float for a good many hours, especially if the gas tanks were empty. Somebody will find him, and he will turn up all right, but, of course, it is an anxious time while we await word."

Mrs. Erwin said she had hoped to accompany her husband on a flight to Hongkong for the Easterwood prize of $25,000, but was barred by the rules of the flight, which prohibited any one under 21 from going.

"I studied radio operation," she added, "so I could accompany him as a wireless 'man.'"

Mother Calmly Waits Word.

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—While the outside world commented and speculated, and naval and mercantile vessels raced toward a compass point in mid-Pacific, a little gray-haired mother sat in her Hayward, Calif., home today, sadly, bravely confidently repeating, "I know Alvin will be safe at home."

She was Mrs. Florence H. Eichwaldt, mother of Navigator Alvin H. Eichwaldt, whose dramatic S O S, "We're in a tail spin," electrified the Nation last night and then threw a cloak of nervous anxiety about the fate of the rescue plane, Dallas Spirit, and its crew, Capt. William P. Erwin and Eichwaldt.

Mrs. Eichwaldt received the first word of her son's call for help with a start. "It was a blow," she said, and then took off her glasses to wipe off the tears that persisted in welling forth despite her confidence in her seafaring son.

"How near is the nearest ship?" was the mother's first query. "I know Alvin will be safe at home. I have the utmost confidence in my son. He will be picked up. Alvin is an excellent swimmer and if they had time to get out their life raft and climb onto it they will be all right. They had plenty of provisions—I know, because I fixed them."

Erwin's Parents Confident.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Confidence that her son, Capt. William P. Erwin, is safe, was expressed today by Mrs. Louise Erwin when she was told that no news had been received from Erwin's Honolulu-bound plane, Dallas Spirit, since the S O S message radioed out last night by the plane as it went into a tail spin over the Pacific.

"That plane's safe," said Mrs. Erwin "I'm just as confident of it as I am of anything in the world."

Mrs. Erwin was at the home here of her son and his wife. The pilot's wife, who had planned to accompany him as far as Honolulu in his Dallas to Hong Kong flight but was barred because she was under 21 years of age, was at the bedside of her brother at West Collingswood, N. J.

The Rev. W. A. Erwin, father of the flier, is en route to Dallas by automobile from the family home at Pawhuska, Okla.

Pawhuska, Okla., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The Rev. W. A. Erwin, father of Capt. Erwin, pilot of the Dallas Spirit, listened calmly today when told that all traces of his son's airplane had been lost last night after it had sent out S O S calls.

Mr. Erwin declared merely that he h[illegible] "not given up hope." He said he would go immediately to Dallas, Tex., to be with Mrs. Erwin during the period of suspense while news from their son is lacking.

Test of Raft Intensifies Fears for Lost Fliers

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Only slight hope for the survival of Miss Mildred Doran and the six men missing on the Pacific between San Francisco and Honolulu was expressed today by naval authorities following a test of a rubber life raft similar to those taken on the airplanes on the Dole flight and by William P. Erwin and A. H. Eichwaldt on the Dallas Spirit.

The test was conducted 30 miles off Point Loma. Three bluejackets from the aircraft tender Gannet, Seamen W. E. Owens, R. A. Lassarn and C. H. Schnagel were set adrift in a six-foot rubber raft, similar to the rafts with which the missing airplanes were equipped.

The primary object of the novel test was to determine the drift of the raft for one hour in a fifteen-mile wind. It determined more. Although smooth seas prevailed off Point Loma, waves dashed clear over the raft at times, necessitating rapid bailing.

The three bluejackets were very cramped in the little raft. They drifted three-fourths of a mile in the one hour they were afloat.

Officers said the raft was too shallow in the water to be affected materially by the ocean current, but the wind velocity would be a vital factor.

The fact that Miss Doran, her pilot, Auggy Pedlar, and Lieut. Vilas Knope, the navigator of the Michigan school teacher's plane, were forced to seek safety in the cramped quarters of the rubber life raft provided they escaped death in the forced landing, makes their condition worse than that of the pilots and navigators of the other missing planes, officers said.

The bluejackets in today's test, said they were glad to get back to the Gannet after being adrift an hour.

Lindbergh Will Rest In Seclusion Today

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was welcomed to the Northwest today by 200,000 Milwaukeeans, who overran the air field where the Spirit of St. Louis was brought down, lined the city's streets for more than a mile and shouted to the echoes when the youthful hero spoke at Juneau Park. Milwaukee's welcome to the flier did not abate until Lindbergh was finally taken to the seclusion of a local hotel. There a banquet, attended by city officials and prominent citizens, was given in his honor.

Sunday Lindbergh was to be given a complete day of rest at the summer estate of Clarence Falk, on the Green Bay road. Guards were to be stationed about the estate in order to keep out the curious.

ADVISER OF LINDBERGH KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

AERO HITS A FLAGSTAFF

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Physicians tonight expressed hope for the recovery of Lieut. C. C. Hutchinson, who was injured this morning in an airplane accident near here, which resulted in the death of Lieut. George J. Stumpf, personal friend and adviser of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his transatlantic flight preparations.

Lieut. Hutchinson was in a hospital suffering serious contusions about the head and face. Both officers were connected with the Thirty-fifth Division Air Corps, now in camp at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field near here. They had started an aerial visit to friends of Lieut Stumpf at Lake Hill Park, a resort 20 miles south of here.

While stunting low over the park one of the wings of the plane struck a flagpole, throwing the ship out of control. It followed a zig-zag course over a railroad right of way and crashed in a field. Lieut. Hutchinson was thrown clear of the plane, but Lieut. Stumpf was buried in the wreckage. A wire on the plane was found twisted about his neck, and he apparently died from strangulation.

Witnesses said the plane, on one of its trips over the field, flew dangerously low, and several spectators on the roof of a building were forced to duck when it barely skimmed over their heads. The incident brought a chuckle from the pilot and passenger, who looked back and waved at the frightened spectators.

Lieut. Stumpf was 32 years old and unmarried. While Col. Lindbergh was in New York preparing for his flight to Paris, he was sent East by Lindbergh's backers to aid the former airmail pilot in making last-minute plans for his hop-off across the ocean. He was a salesman for a real estate firm and was not rated as a flying officer, but had been in the national guard air squadron since it was organized here.

Lieut. Hutchinson is 26 years old. He also joined the air squadron when it first was organized, and was mess sergeant before he was sent to the Army Flying School at Brooks Field as an officer for a course in flying.

MACNIDER IS UNHURT AS PLANE TURNS OVER

Pilot Failed to Catch Signals Warning Him of Spongy Landing Spot.

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Hanford MacNider, Assistant Secretary of War, was in a plane which overturned in making a landing at Danbury airport today but was unhurt. His pilot, Lieut. Maxwell Balfour, of Mitchell Field, Long Island, sustained a contusion of the hip. Secretary MacNider came here to speak at the State convention of the American Legion

The cause of the plane's upset was soft ground due to recent heavy rains. Lieut. Balfour circled over the airport for a time picking a landing spot while persons on the field were endeavoring to signal warning not to land in the spot which he finally selected. The plane settled upon the field but in coming to a stop ran into the spongy turf and went over.

Both MacNider and Balfour were strapped to the seats. They released themselves easily and stepped out of the plane before others reached them

Bethany, Conn., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Hanford MacNider, Assistant Secretary of War, who was unhurt when his airplane turned over on landing at Danbury this morning, took the air again here this afternoon for Mitchel Field, N. Y. He was a passenger in a plane piloted by Lieut. Louis N. Eller, regular Army instructor for the Connecticut National Guard.

Mr. MacNider will continue to Washington, D. C., in his own plane which he had left at Mitchel Field.

U. S. TRIUMPHS IN AIR STIR JAPAN TO ACTION

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Tokyo, Aug. 20.—The American successes in the air, especially the arrival of two more planes at Honolulu from California, are intensely interesting to military and naval circles in Japan. Immediately following the Lindbergh flight, Japan placed an order for 300 of the same type planes as Col. Lindbergh's, while deciding to hurry the air defenses at Tokyo and Osaka.

The press daily is pointing out Japan's lack of aviators. The underlying fear is not connected with a possible air invasion from the east, but because of the undefended Japanese cities, of highly inflammable construction, all within easy striking distance of Vladivostok.

Everything was in readiness here to receive Capt. William Erwin, but no arrangements as yet have been made to receive Lieut. Bennett H. Griffin in the monoplane Oklahoma, whose right to land is irregular, failing to come via the State Department.

HOP PIONEER CALLS DOLE HAWAII FLIGHT STUNT AND MISTAKE

First Civilian to Fly to Honolulu Deplores $35,000 Lure to Aviators.

THINKS TORN FUSELAGE CAUSE OF FATAL SPIN

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The whole Dole air race from the American mainland to Hawaii was "a big mistake," Ernest L. Smith, first civilian flier to hop to the islands, declared today in commenting upon the prevailing fear that Capt. W. P. Erwin and A. H. Eichwaldt may have fallen into the sea last night.

"It is stunt flying," Smith declared, "not pracical with land planes——

"And now there are six men and a girl out there somewhere, battling for their lives. All for $35,000. It isn't worth it."

Martin Jensen, Honolulu pilot in the Dole race, was quoted as saying that his plane went into a tail spin on its way across the Pacific and Smith said he hit treacherous currents at sea.

Air Currents Treacherous.

Shipping men here who know of the San Francisco-Hawaii route declared today that tricky air currents have been noted in mid-Pacific and that in all probability these were not charted so as to warn airmen.

Smith was of the opinion that Erwin might have ripped the covering on his fuselage again, causing him to drop into a tail spin.

"Remember how the Dallas Spirit came back after the first take-off," Smith said, "with the fuselage linen ripped and fluttering like rags? It's a wonder she didn't go into a spin then.

"The only reason I can see for that message (speaking of the S O S from the Dallas Spirit last night that the fliers were in a tail spin) must have been the linen. Maybe the fuselage ripped off again, or tail covering, or even the wings. That would throw the ship out of control, and mighty suddenly, too.

No Remedy Possible.

"There isn't anything you can do when that happens, except what Erwin did at the airport—bring the ship down and pray to heaven you bring it down right side up."

Smith upheld the theory that the Erwin plane may have dropped so close to the water that its radio antenna was dragged off.

"We lost ours when we came within a few feet of the waves, and didn't have another," he said.

Mechanics in Erwin's camp at the Oakland municipal airport declared today that Erwin carried one extra antenna wire with him, and that if Eichwaldt could rig it up with a proper drag weight and the radio set was not damaged in the tail spins, he should have been able to resume his messages—that is, provided Erwin remained aloft.

Erwin's Tail Spin Began 2,000 Feet Up, Is Belief

Plunge Downward Was at Rate of 200 Miles an Hour; Change of Pitch of Radio Waves Indicates Signals Blurred.

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Deductions reached by studying the increased and decreased pitch of radio waves sent out last night by the now missing plane Dallas Spirit indicate the ship went into a tail spin at an altitude of 2,000 feet and plunged downward at a rate of 200 miles per hour. This conclusion was reached today by J. O. Watkins, radio engineer of the Federal Telegraph Ship Station at Daly City, near here.

Watkins logged the flight of Capt. William Erwin, pilot, and A. H. Eichwaldt, navigator, from the time the pair arose at Oakland, at 2:15 p. m., Friday, until their radio communication ceased suddenly at 9:02 p. m. The Dallas Spirit is estimated to have been about 600 miles west of San Francisco when it ran into trouble.

The radio engineer's report to officers of the Federal Telegraph explained that the alternating current dynamo which furnished power for the plane's radio was wind driven. The pick-up in radio signal depended directly upon the revolutions per minute of the generator, or, indirectly upon the air speed of the plane

At 8:20 p. m., Watkins' report said, "I noticed that the variability of the signal pitch became more marked than usual which gave me the impression that the air was becoming bumpy. This continued for twenty minutes.

"At 8:40 the frequency decreased. At first, I interpreted this as engine trouble but after it continued without any signals from the operator, I concluded that the plane was climbing and as a consequence was running at decreased velocity. This reduced the frequency as estimated by ear until approximately 8:59 at which time it showed a rather sudden rise to about normal pitch at 350 cycles per second. Continuing at about this average for some time, which I did not record, it again took a gradual rise to a pitch which my estimation indicated as above normal.

"Instead of returning to normal as usual, the pitch continued to increase until it reached what I would estimate at 500 cycles per second.

"It is difficult to describe my feelings as I heard this note begin to wail at a frequency indicating a wind velocity which I knew no sane pilot would voluntarily produce under such circumstances with a loaded plane and which I felt certain would be caused by a fall.

"At this point the wave length began swinging, indicating either that the aerial was being twisted about, or that the navigator was changing his position near the transmitter. This continued from the time the navigator began to S O S until he reached the point where he began to say 'but we came out of it.' The frequency rapidly decreased to about the normal 350 cycles, but immediately began to rise again as he said 'bk' (break) 'we are in spin.' At this point the wave began to flop until it was unreadable and continued in this manner for perhaps five seconds and ceased entirely.

"I did not know the elevation of the plane at the time it began to fall, but would estimate by the elapsed time and pitch of signal it must have been 2,000 feet with a maximum velocity of 200 miles per hour. The second fall may have required ten seconds before the plane lost its radio or crashed in the water. All of these observations were made possible by the fact that the plane radio ran continuously with closed key, except when signals were being sent."

Sea Flights Protested By Aeronautic Officer

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Carl Wolfley, vice president of the National Aeronautic Association, today telegraphed William P. MacCracken, Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce, protesting against the staging of further oceanic air flights for prize money.

While admitting that the oceanic flights staged so far have been "wonderful," Wolfley declared that the recent Pacific Dole air race was too disastrous, and he was convinced present-day equipment would not justify any further attempts to span either the Atlantic or Pacific oceans.

Wolfley urged the Government to concentrate its efforts in the development of aviation over the air routes of the United States.

German Ocean Flier Again Held by Storms

Cologne, Germany, Aug. 20 (A.P.). The weather man played Lieut. Otto Koennecke a bad trick today when, as the Germania descended this evening after its final radio test, he informed the lieutenant that conditions over the Atlantic took an extremely unfavorable turn in the course of the day.

Reluctantly, Lieut. Koennecke then announced postponement of his hop-off for the United States, scheduled for early tomorrow morning. Joseph Alfred Wall was chosen today to accompany Lieut. Koennecke as radio operator, taking the place of Count Solms-Laubach, Koennecke's backer, who gave up his seat that a more experienced radio man might take the trip.

REDFERN MAY START BRAZIL FLIGHT MONDAY

"Only a Matter of Hours," He Says, but Take-Off Is Not Yet Set.

MOTORS FINALLY TESTED

Brunswick, Ga., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Finishing touches on the monoplane Port of Brunswick were rushed tonight as Paul Redfern, Georgia aviator, made ready for his attempt to span the 4,600 miles from Brunswick to Rio de Janeiro in a nonstop flight.

Although indications pointed to a take-off Monday morning, the committee in charge of arrangements as yet has announced no definite date, its spokesmen declaring that only word of favorable weather was awaited. Redfern, however, impatient to be off, said the start was "a matter of hours now."

Weather reports received today indicated favorable conditions along the entire route.

While Charles A. Morss, factory expert, tested the plane's powerful motor during the day, Mrs. Redfern, the aviator's wife, donned a bathing suit and tried out the collapsible rubber raft on which Redfern will depend should he be forced down at sea.

"Why, it's a delightful craft and I don't believe one could sink in it," she said, expressing confidence in the success of the flight.

Tonight, the monoplane was in readiness to receive its 550 gallons of gasoline for the voyage. The motor, Morss said would require only a couple of hours "tuning up" before a take-off.

Capt. D. M. Scarritt, Department of Commerce inspector, will act as official starter of the flight in behalf of the American Aeronautic Association, whose sanction it has.

STATE TAKES UP SEARCH FOR MAN LOST IN CAVE

EXPLOSIVE MAY BE CLEW

Shellmound, Tenn., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A searching party led by O. P. Pile, State mine inspector, tonight was forcing its way through Nick-a-Jack cave in a renewed effort to locate Lawrence S. Ashley, geologist, who went into the cave Monday on an exploring trip.

Equipped with gas masks and test lamps, Pile said they would remain in the cave until tomorrow morning unless Ashley is found. They were equipped to push their way beyond the last point reached in the cave by twelve other searching parties, he said.

A quantity of dynamite in a cache found in the cave today added further possibilities regarding Ashley's fate, workers said. Finding the explosive, believed to have been placed there by Ashley, led to the belief that he may have attempted to blast a passageway into a larger cavern he had told of discovering some time ago. Searchers said that he might have been caught in a slide of rock or become a victim of afterdamp following an attempt to blast his way through.

With renewed hope aroused as each of twelve searching parties went into the cave, only to be turned back after penetrating the underground passage for a few miles, workers welcomed advices that Gov. Austen Peay had ordered Pile with a crew of six miners to the cave to direct efforts of the searchers.

Miners from South Pittsburg and Jasper also have announced that they will aid in the search for the missing explorer, if they are needed.

If efforts to penetrate deeper into the cave fail, it was planned to rebuild a dam near the mouth, in an effort to raise the stream flowing through the subterranean passage to navigable proportions and attempt a further search by boat. The stream also will be dragged as soon as equipment arrives, workers said.

The belief of most of the searchers now is that Ashley was attempting to make his way into the larger and unexplored cavern.

Workers have found what they believe is the entrance to this, but have been unable so far to get through. A long passage of loose earth construction, barely large enough for a man even of Ashley's size to crawl through was found and it is believed that further efforts will be directed toward attempting an entrance here. A man might be trapped either in the passage by a slide of earth or inside the larger cavern, it was said.

Planes Fail to Find Wanderer in Desert

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Two Army transport planes from Kelly Field, Tex., failed today in a search over the desert north of Glendale for Alfred Z. Menard, shell-shocked veteran of the World War, missing since last Tuesday.

Fliers at Le Bourget Held Up by Storms

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Bad weather reports were still holding the various pilots in the transatlantic air competition in leash today.

Charles A. Levine and Maurice Drouhin, his pilot, are both anxious to hop off at the first favorable moment and have been studying weather reports closely for the past two days without finding a gleam of hope for an immediate start.

Racing Driver Killed In Crash on Track

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—P. Churchill, an automobile racer of South Bend, Wash., died in a hospital today from injuries received yesterday when his machine struck another driven by Art Hines, of Portland, Oreg., on a local track. Hines was not seriously hurt.

COOLIDGE TO SPEND 6 DAYS IN TOURING YELLOWSTONE AREA

Trip to Be Flexible, So Stops, Found Extra-Agreeable, May Be Prolonged.

WILL RIDE HORSEBACK, GO FISHING AND WALK

Pleasure and Sightseeing Journey to Be President's First While in Office.

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Everything was ready tonight for President Coolidge's pleasure trip to the Yellowstone National Park, one of the few journeys distinctly for rest and recreation he has taken since entering the White House.

His special train was set up at Custer for departure tomorrow evening after dinner, and his plans called for six days or so within the boundaries of one of nature's most famous wonderlands.

It was to be a week of play—some fishing, some horseback riding and some walking. As Mr. Coolidge himself views it, the party is going to be pretty much "on the hoof," which was taken to mean that after once getting started those who go with him need not look for very many hours when things will be quiet.

Wife and Son on Trip.

The President will be accompanied only by Mrs. Coolidge and their son John, both of whom are understood to have had considerable influence in the President's decision to visit Yellowstone, and by Secretary and Mrs. Everett Sanders, Col. Blanton Winship, his aid, and Maj. James F. Coupal, his physician. Mr. Coolidge's personal secretary, E. T. Clark, will remain in Rapid City to keep the President in touch with matters of extraordinary importance.

As the presidential special passes northward through Wyoming, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge plan to greet people who come to the station where stops are made, but there will be no formal stops nor does the President expect to speak at any place during his absence from the Black Hills. Preparations are under way for receptions at Billings and Livingston, Mont., but these will be brief.

Entering the park at the northern entrance, President Coolidge will progress southward and eastward, and will depart probably from Cody, Wyo. The whole trip, however, is designed flexibly, so Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge may stop where and when they please. It is likely that if the President finds a location particularly pleasing, he will stay for several days, making short fishing, riding and walking expeditions, as fancy strikes him.

Play and Rest Wanted.

The trip to Yellowstone is really the first pleasure and sightseeing journey Mr. Coolidge has taken since he became President. During his summer at Swampscott, Mass., he made two trips to his homestead at Plymouth, Vt., one to visit his father, who had fallen ill, the other to rest amid the rural surroundings of the Coolidge farm. His Yellowstone trip, however, will be recreational in every sense of the word. While important Government business always will be brought to his attention, his attaches will attempt to give him as much time as possible for play and rest.

In going to the Yellowstone, Mr. Coolidge is the fourth President to come within its boundaries. President Arthur, President Roosevelt and President Harding preceded him.

Apparently in anticipation of the three days when he will have to be away from trout streams, President Coolidge spent a little more than four hours in Grace Coolidge Creek today and came back with four fish. The summer White House had to keep luncheon waiting 40 minutes while the presidential fisherman enjoyed himself at the creek.

Congregational Women Disappointed by Coolidge

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—There is considerable disappointment and perhaps a trace of resentment among the women of the Rapid City Congregational Church because President Coolidge has shown no inclination to attend services there.

They spent $600 when they heard Mr. Coolidge was coming to the Black Hills to repair and clean the church, and many days were spent with hard work to get everything ready.

The President's first Sunday in the hills came, and he went to the tiny church in the frontier town of Hermosa, and he has been going there since. Some of the Rapid City women though he should have come here, especially since the young Rolf Lium, who preaches at Hermosa, is not ordained.

They are still hoping Mr. Coolidge will come, and have sent him an invitation to attend their church on September 4, his last Sunday in the hills.

Girl Dines With Coolidge, Then Waits on His Table

Rapid City, S. Dak., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—From princess to Cinderella seems to have been the lot of Dorothy McMaster, 17-year-old daughter of the South Dakota senator, with President Coolidge in the role of Prince Charming. Thursday she sat next to Mr. Coolidge at luncheon in the Hot Springs Country Club, about the finest compliment which might be paid one of her years. Last night she waited on his table.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge were dinner guests of Senator and Mrs. Norbeck at their rustic cottage near the summer White House. Miss McMaster and Miss Sally Norbeck passed the food.

Belgian King Presents Air Medal to Coolidge

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Announcement was made today of the presentation of a medal to President Coolidge by King Albert of the Belgians in recognition of his interest in aviation. The medal was intrusted to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at the time of his reception in Brussels after his epoch-making Atlantic flight. Col. Lindbergh brought it to the White House in Washington.

The medal is cast in bronze and on one side bears the President's name and on the other the words: "High Protector of the International League of Aviators."

ARMY SIGNAL CORPS SAVES U. S. $102,115

Use of Radio Nets Throughout Country for Six Months Reported.

A saving of $102,115.62 for 38 Government departments was effected during the first six months of 1927, by the Army Signal Corps, by use of radio nets throughout the country.

This figure does not include any savings made by traffic within corps areas, it was explained yesterday at the War Department. The actual expense to the Government, at government rates, if land lines had been used to carry the traffic which was handled by the Signal Corps radio net, would have been $125,294.86.

In addition to handling the traffic for all subdivisions of the War Department, the Signal Corps net served the Navy, the Senate, State Department, House of Representatives, Veterans' Bureau, Labor Department, Civil Service Commission, Department of Justice, Treasury Department, Shipping Board, Agriculture Department, Postoffice Department, Interstate Commerce Commission, Public Health Service, Traffic Commission, Government Printing Office, Hydrographic Office, Bureau of Lighthouses, Coast Guard, Internal Revenue Bureau, Weather Bureau, Federal Trade Commission and others.

SHORE-TO-SHIP MAIL TO BE FLOWN TODAY

Navy Lieutenant Will Attempt to Drop Sack on Liner 500 Miles at Sea.

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The liner Leviathan sailed today, its passengers eagerly looking forward to witnessing the first shore-to-ship air mail delivery ever attempted.

At noon tomorrow, provided present plans do not go astray, Lieut. C. H. Schildauer, U. S. N., will arrive above the liner 500 miles at sea with waterproof bags of mail.

On sighting the plane the Leviathan will reduce speed to 5 knots and Lieut. Schildhauer will fly parallel with the ship, lowering the mail bags at the end of a 500-foot line on a drum. Members of the liner's crew have been assigned to grasp the mail bags and cut them free.

A destroyer will accompany the Leviathan to salvage the mail sacks should they fall in the sea, and two cruisers will be stationed along the plane's course in case of emergency.

The shore-to-ship plane service is expected to shorten mailing time across the ocean even more than Clarence Chamberlin recently demonstrated it could be decreased by ship-to-shore plane service.

FILM OF SPEAK-EASY ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Former Tampa Vice Squad Chief on Mysterious Errand With Picture.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The Tampa Morning Tribune today said it understood L. F. Ponder, former city vice squad chief, was en route to Washington today with the "Key Club" film, which is alleged to depict activities of the club before raided recently by police on a charge of liquor law violation. The story did not comment on Ponder's sudden resignation yesterday.

Ponder and Harry F. Myers, another vice officer, are credited with "shooting" the film. Many prominent citizens here are said by the officers to be "cast" in the role of "leading men."

The case against A. A. Cerf, alleged operator of the club, is set for next Friday by Judge Leo Stalnaker's court. Judge Stalnaker is at the same time faced with a defense motion asking that he disqualify himself from hearing the case on the ground that he "threatened to show the film accompanied by a pipe organ" in the courtroom.

The story said it was believed that Ponder was carrying the film to Washington to show it to Federal prohibition authorities in the hope of getting them to take over the prosecution.

Matthew Woll Again Photo-Engraver Head

of the liquor or prohibition question; they do not want it made an issue which would divert the public mind from the economic issues that are so important and it will be impossible to interest progressive Democrats, so far as I know them throughou the country, in religion or liquor or international questions until they remove by repeal the injustice heaped upon agriculture by the Harding and Coolidge administrations."

Of course, these sentiments could also give comfort to the Smith forces, but Mr. Bryan wrote Mr. Murphy that he would like to confer with him soon so that they could discuss Mr. Reed's attitude on "vital" questions.

Reed Followers Predominate.

Reed sentiment seems to predominate in this State, and during the recent brief trip across the northwestern rim of Nebraska, which the President made in going to the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, everybody with whom members of the presidential party came in contact insisted that the Reed followers over there outnumbered the Smith people. There are not many Democrats to support either Reed or Smith right in that particular section, but those who talked insisted they were reflecting the sentiment of the entire State.

In so far as this State is concerned this reporter knows of only one active Smith supporter. He is Fulton Davenport, of Sioux Falls, member of the State central committee, and a former Tammany man. He is quite active and optimistic though.

Getting over to the Republican side, the announcement of President Coolidge that he did not "choose" to be a candidate again, is working both ways for former Gov. Lowden of Illinois. At first sight it would seem to have undoubtedly enhanced the former Illinois governor's candidacy. But upon closer study it is not certain that this is so.

Field Is Against Lowden.

Prior to Mr. Coolidge's announcement the President and Mr. Lowden were looked upon as the "two" candidates. It was a case of Lowden versus Coolidge. Now with the President considered eliminated other names than Lowden are heard here. Others heretofore behind the curtains, so to speak, have come out on the stage. It is not a case of Lowden versus Coolidge, but Lowden versus the field and the field is looking better every day.

Whereas it had been a probability that all the dissentient elements would rally behind the Lowden boom, it now seems they will have two, or possibly three, rallying poles. And the malcontents are not strong enough numerically to split up and retain any degree of effectiveness.

Dwight P. Morrow, of the Morgan banking house and Mr. Coolidge's closets friend, probably now knows much about what is going on in the President's mind, but he took unusual pains to see that no one shared in his knowledge. After a day and a night visit with the President, he got up early this morning, at 5 o'clock, and eased out of town, headed back East.

PERSHING PUBLISHES BATTLEFIELD GUIDE FOR U. S. TOURISTS

Localities Where Americans in War Fought and Cemeteries Abroad Described.

BOOK WAS INSPIRED BY INACCURATE DATA

The inaccuracy of a French battlefield guide has inspired Gen. John J. Pershing, A. E. F. commander, to become a publisher, and as head of the American Battle Monuments Commission, he announced yesterday, publication of a book entitled, "A Guide to the American Battlefields in Europe," which h said is as accurate as is humanly possible to make it.

Gen. Pershing, while in France on business of the commission, heard a French guide describing the Belleau Wood battle action to a touring party of St. Louis business men, and when he had finished his discourse, Gen. Pershing, who knew some of the party personally and a great deal about the battle, felt it his duty to reveal the guide's mistakes, and saw the need of an American battlefield guide book.

As a result of day and night work by the Government Printing Office, the book is now ready for distribution through the superintendent of documents of the printing office, in time for the pilgrimage of the American Legion to France for its national convention. Copies of the book will be on sale aboard the legion vessels this month and next.

Prepared By Commission.

The book was prepared by the commission for the purpose of furnishing information concerning American activities, battlefields, monuments and cemeteries in Europe, and fills a long-felt need as other battlefield guides do not portray adequately America's part in the war.

The book has been published as a part of the memorial project of the Government, and much of the necessary expense has been borne by authorized appropriations, the cost per copy, 75 cents, being sufficient to cover only the actual printing.

Preparation of the book required many months of careful research, especially in determining the facts connected with active operations and all records available here, and, in most cases, eye witnesses being consulted to insure that each statement is as nearly correct as possible.

The information has been arranged so that it will meet not only the requirements of American tourists who visit Europe, but also will be of great value to any other person interested in the A. E. F.

All In One Volume.

For convenience, the size of the publication was limited to one volume which necessitates a most careful selection of material. Tours are described for the most important areas in which American operations took place, these, in general, following first-class automobile roads. In each case, there are maps plainly indicating the recommended tour. Maps also show in colors, ground gained by each American division during the operation.

Each important chapter is followed by an alphabetically arranged list of interesting places which do not lie on the described route for that region and these, used in connection with the index and more detailed maps at the back of the book, make the book a satisfactory guide no matter what road is followed through the American battlefields.

Recommended routes, however, have been laid out to give the tourist the best possible idea of the whole operation in a minimum of time, and to take him to most of the localities of particular interest to Americans.

Begins at Jump-off Line.

For the first part of the Argonne tour, the visitor is conducted along the jump-off line of September 26, 1918, across historic Montfaucon, over battle-scarred Vauquois, and thence northward in the path of the American advance to the Hindenburg Line, viewing en route, among other places, the scene of the heroic exploits of Sergt. Alvin C. York.

For the St. Mihiel tour, Montsec, Seicheprey, Bois le Petre, and Thiaucourt are some of the more important points along the route.

In the Aisne-Marne region, Belleau Wood, Chateau Thierry, Mezy, Sergy, Fismes, and Soissons are a few of the places through which the tour runs.

Battles in which American divisions operated as part of the Allied Armies are described, and the visitor will find the book useful at such places as Cantigny, Mont Blanc, St. Quentin Tunnel and Juvigny.

Short Narratives Given.

Short general narratives establish the relationship of each particular battle to the American operations as a whole. These outline successively events of major importance, explaining some of the underlying causes for the momentous decisions made at general headquarters, and have been prepared with the benefit of the supervision of the former commander in chief of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Consequently, the book, while in no sense a complete history of the A. E. F., in Europe, presents nevertheless, a chief and accurate story of the American participation in the war. The book also contains more than 500 pictures selected after complete research of 100,000 in the official files of Washington, and examination of many in the war offices of France, England and Germany.

Mentions Operations of Navy.

The operations and accomplishments of the Navy during the war are set forth briefly, and attention also is paid to the services of supply and of the Army after the armistice.

One chapter relates to the memorials to be erected in Europe by the American Government. Another describes designs of the chapels for American cemeteries there, and a miscellaneous chapter contains colored plates of divisional insignia, casualty records and other interesting information.

The publication is in no sense technical, and care has been taken to avoid as far as practicable military terms, but for the benefit of persons who have not had military service, a glossary is included which defines unusual terms and expressions in the text.

The book is bound in a fabricoid cover of rich, dark red and is printed on paper of highest quality, giving it an appearance in keeping with the importance of its subject.

Gen. Pershing sails September 10 for the legion convention at Paris, and while in Europe probably will let contracts for American memorial and cemetery work.

CHINESE SITUATION IS HELD IMPROVED BY OFFICIALS HERE

CAPITALS NOW SMILE AT "WING WAR" SCARE

R. S. Miller, "U. S. Envoy to Entire Japanese Empire," Coming on Vacation.

By PATRICK GALLAGHER.

American officials note steady and rapid improvement in the Chinese situation. As predicted, the Kuomingtang moderate nationalists have routed the Nanking opportunists, paving the way for a real Chinese national government and just in time to avert the Chinese foreign crisis on September 1. A truce on tariffs and taxes is being sought by Chinese and foreign peacemakers. Overdue debts, too long in cold storage, will soon be paid in full, this writer is informed by an authorized representative of the ascendant Chinese leaders.

There is not going to be any "Wing war." A "Wing war" in the land of the Wangs, Wings and Wongs might suit the fancy of C. T. Wang and certain foreign firebrands in Shanghai; but these mutually hostile opponents of peace are no longer potent for evil, according to thoroughly verified reports. The "Wing war" scare aroused smiles of understanding in Washington. London, too, failed to snap at the Shanghai bait, British advices show. While the United States Government has officially advised caution on the part of those who are eager to return to inland China posts, the reason is undoubtedly a considered desire to avoid all possible risks of complications that might arise from the premature presence of either too venturesome or too timorous persons. Real results are desired and expected, not a makeshift appearance of peace too hastily flung upon Chinese social and political quicksands.

Miller to See Coolidge.

Ransford S. Miller is returning from Korea. Miller, who is popularly known as "America's Ambassador to all the Japanese Empire," is coming here on vacation, also to give President Coolidge and the Department of State a first-hand report on much-debated Korean conditions. Those who know both the President and the Townsend Harris of today would give much to have the privilege of "listening-in" when these two famous "listeners" sit down together behind closed doors.

Ransford Miller is in all respects a man after the President's heart. When he does speak, everybody listens, but he has long been known as the most silent man in the Land of the Morning Calm. He loves his job as American consul general at Seoul, or Nandaimon, as it is now called in the Japanese province, long a Korean kingdom and for brief while the Korean Empire. Pleasant are Korean days and nights, and the Millers have made the picturesque consulate a magnetic haven for touring and resident Americans.

Miller talks Japanese like a member of the Genro, Korean like the most erudite gentleman in flowing white cotton and dinky hat and, far more to the point, he has the complete confidence of the ruling and the conquered race. He is trusted by the business man and praised by the mission folks. All this in a field that previously plagued both the official on the spot and the higher authorities at home.

Twice Far Eastern Chief.

Twice he has been chief of the Far Eastern division in the State Department. He served with brilliant success as interperter to American official mediators during the Chinese-Japanese war. He had the rank of minister plenipotentiary as an American official mourner at the funeral of the great Meiji Emperor, Mutsuhito, in July, 1912. No living American is better known or more liked by all sorts of Japanese than is Ransford Miller. In Korea they call him "The Balance Wheel." And there are signs of organized efforts to revive vexed Korean controversies.

Japanese officials take pride in their material performances in Korea, which they always refer to as Chosen. Each year they issue a volume, closely packed with imposing statistics, entitled, "Annual Report of Reforms and Progress in Chosen." Persistent critics of the Japanese call this volume "The Japanese Book of Korean Fairy Tales."

As the President is completing an exhaustive study of Far Eastern affairs, it is thought natural and helpful that he should seek the Korean truth from Miller. Neither the pro-Japanese nor the anti-Japanese have so far cast any bricks at Miller. Other American officials in the Orient have not been so fortunate.

Three Groups of Cities.

No notice of an official sort has been bestowed upon the triangular attack aimed against the service as a whole in China. Inquiry develops that there are three groups of critical sappers and miners; that each of these groups rests upon a foreign divan; that each hates the other two groups as heartily as it slams and sneers at the public servants of the United States.

Stephen King-Hall, a plain-speaking British historian, makes this timely criticism of the critics:

"The unofficial Americans in the Far East are rather fond of abusing their own government, which they declare gives them no assistance and spends energy on behalf of the Chinese which would be better expended in backing American business; but, on the other hand, the unofficial Americans usually support the missionary and educational work because they see in it the equivalent of much expensive advertisement."

Most of the present criticism undoubtedly springs from factions that are being left high and dry by the march of constructive events in China. The "Wing War" Shanghai episode is cited as vividly illustrating the methods of organized trouble-making where East meets West in the Land of Han.

Nanfing Cabal Foreign-Made.

This is the record:

Chiang Kai-Shek's Nanking cabal was a foreign-made attempt to discredit the Kuomingtang and to divide Chinese spoils between the outworn Chinese pacifist-opportunist cliques and their long-time foreign allies in Shanghai. Having neither Chinese prestige nor native power back of it, the Nanking cabal saw doom at its door when T. V. Soong, Wang Ching-Wei and Eugene Chen organized the Kuomingtang showdown at Kuling.

Hoping to precipitate foreign intervention and to make a quick financial clean-up along old Peking mandarin lines, Chiang's accomplices applied the tax power as "the power to destroy." The foreign firebrands were similarly abusing their powers through the Shanghai municipal council, and (as has been well understood) with the same aims—foreign intervention and "group gain."

At one extreme end, foreign anti-Chinese firebands. At the other extreme end, Chinese pacifist professional plunderers. And both in flagrant cahoots, as the official record shows.

When T. V. Soong and his associates won the favor of moderate foreigners and moderate Chinese in China, the rats deserted the sinking ships, Chiang sent Mrs. Chiang ahead of him and the one question among informed foreigners and all Chinese not in Chiang's confidence is whether the loot is in pearls, currency or drafts on safe foreign banks? Because, of course, Chiang is not so foolish or so foolhardy as to risk his neck on those homeric heaths of Chehkiang. His reign at Nanking was brief but, according to Soong (whose credit is unimpeachable) Chiang had already diverted millions of dollars from the Kuomingtang coffers when he set up in business in the old southern capital.

$1,500,000 Collected in U. S.

An official of the Kuomingtang in Washington says that not less than $1,500,000 was collected from Chinese in the United States. Chinese here anticipate a lively sequel to the "Nanking Disaster," or the passing of Chiang's regime. That is another story and it may be written in Chinese red—bloodshed among the fighting tangs. Tang is Chinese for "party." If Chiang is permitted to land in the United States, he may be an unwilling guest at a Chinatown "party" intended to wind up in at least one funeral.

To return to Shanghai and Nanking; the tax war failed to produce the desired foreign intervention. The American Government and other governments preferred their official reports to those Shanghai reporters. Chiang was gone, but "Little Wu" remained.

C. C. Wu is his father's son—a mandarin of the mandarins. Wu Ting-fang wrote an unblushing record of how he double-crossed the Kuomingtang and Dr. Sun Yat-sen. C. C. Wu has been the orcature of the same old Peking clique from the day he tossed aside his school books in London and began to understudy Wellington Koo. T. V. Soong, Sun Yat-sen, Eugene Chen and others are this writer's authorities for the statement that "Little Wu" has never been in good Kuomingtang standing.

"Wing War" Transparent.

"Little Wu" and the discredited Shanghai pacifists seized the wings of a British army plane, conveniently left for them just outside the foreign "pale" at Shanghai. In Washington, officials refrain from any comment. But there are others who are asking why it was necessary for any foreign element to open the door to needless complications, just at the very moment when "Little Wu's" tax-and-tariff "destroyers" were swept into the Chinese discard.

It is noted that the Shanghai Municipal Council is condemned by moderate foreigners as well as by moderate and immoderate Chinese. Therefore, the "Wing War" was too transparent to deceive even a tyro in Shanghai political Mah Jongg. Those much-abused American officials in China were not nearly so gullible or pliable as the late Lord Elgin, who, almost 70 years ago, laid the foundations of today's Chinese troubles in the ruck and mire of the "Arrow War," which he roundly denounced in his memoirs.

The "Arrow War" was waged on the flimsy excuse of an "insult" to the British flag owing to Chinese seizures of a Chinese lorcha flying that "red dragon" under more than doubtful circumstances. The Shanghai Municipal Council was once described by a Briton as "the ill-begotten child of the Taiping rebellion and that awful British blemish, the 'Arrow War'."

A favorable note in the real Chinese news of today is the calm, commonsense attitude of British officials in London. This attitude is interpreted here as an intended lead to British residents as well as officials in China. "Wing Wars" are not welcomed by bankers and business men who are insisting upon Chinese and foreign peace in China.

WASHINGTON CHOSEN PIVOT OF PHARMACY

Selected as Site of $1,000,000 National Headquarters for Drug Trade.

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Washington has been selected over Chicago as the location for the $1,000,000 new headquarters building for pharmacy in the United States, the American Pharmaceutical Association announced here today.

The building is designed to serve as a clearing house for the entire drug interests of the country. It will contain research laboratories, a national museum of pharmacy and chemistry, offices of national associations, a library and an auditorium where the principal pharmaceutical conventions will be held.

The research equipment will include the Dohme memorial research laboratory, to be established through a gift of $10,000 from Dr. A. R. L. Dohme, of Baltimore, in memory of his father, Charles E. Dohme, and of his uncle, Louis Dohme, who played an important part in the early history of pharmacy in the United States.

Funds for the building were contributed by pharmicists in every State. Its location in Washington was voted by members of the association.

Cities Competing To Name Cruisers

The feeding of the multitude is as naught compared with the task confronting the Navy Department, which is puzzled regarding the manner it will bestow the names of 72 cities on its six new nameless cruisers to be completed in 1930 and 1931.

The cruisers have no names now, merely numbers, C-L 26 to C-L 31. Houston, Tex., Lowell, Haverhill and Cambridge, Mass., and 68 other cities want the boats christened with the name of their respective municipalities. Many letters and calls from members of Congress are being received at the epartment in support of the applicants.

J. O. Curwood's Will Bequeaths $400,000

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The will of James Oliver Curwood, author and conservationist, filed in Probate Court this morning, makes bequests totaling more than $400,000.

The widow and three children, James Oliver Curwood, jr., of Owosso; Mrs. Charlotta Curwood Jirus, of Detroit, and Miss Viola Curwood, of New York, divide $300,000 almost equally, and numerous bequests of from $750 to $10,000 each to other relatives, to churches and civic institutions here are provided.

DOUBLE JEOPARDY CLAIM REFUTED BY DRY LEADER

WHEELER SPEAKS TODAY

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Reports from dry workers of many nations and an argument denying that prosecution of the same liquor offense under both Federal and State laws constituted double jeopardy, were heard by delegates today at the Congress of the World League Against Alcoholism.

Sunday promises to be a big day for the convention with Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Antisaloon League, and Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, having prominent places on the program.

Mr. Wheeler arrived today. It was just a week ago that his wife was burned to death by explosion of a stove at their summer home in Michigan. Her father, who was present, died of shock. Both were buried in Columbus, Ohio, last Wednesday.

Edward B. Dunford, assistant general counsel for the Antisaloon League, cited a number of United States Supreme Court decisions which, he said, show there is no double jeopardy in the prosecution of liquor cases by both State and Federal courts, in that "an act denounced as a crime by both national and State sovereignties is an offense against the peace and dignity of both, and may be punished by each."

The world is alive and alert on the question of the abolition of alcoholism and tremendous strides in that direction are being made, said the report of Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, of Westerville, Ohio, general secretary of the World League.

The mission of the league, he explained, is to give the public the truth about alcoholism, the liquor problem and methods of suppression. "In this work," he added, "it endeavors to cooperate with existing welfare agencies in those countries where temperance sentiment is not expressed by organized temperance movements."

Opning of permanent offices in Toronto, Oslo, Mexico City, London and Lausanne together with preliminary plans for other offices in Egypt and South America were recited in the report.

Delegates from Sweden, Denmark, Scotland and Canada told of the efforts to promote the temperance movement in those countries.

German Prince Buried With Imperial Pomp

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—With all the military pomp of imperial days, Prince Frederich Sigismund of Prussia, prominent German sportsman, was laid to rest in the family vault in the park of Glienicke, near Potsdam. The dashing cavalry officer of the World War was killed at the equestrian tournament in Luzern.

The funeral ceremony was attended the President von Hindenberg, who appeared in the full-dress uniform of field marshal, with baton and helmet. All the members of the former royal family were present.

The hearse was drawn by four chargers draped in sweeping black cloth bearing the royal coat of arms. Above three airplanes circled slowly with long black trailers. Immediately behind the hearse the favorite horse of the deceased Sacred Spear, walked alone.

Belgo-German Group To Study War Blame

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Plans have advanced for the appointment of a Belgo-German commission under a neutral chairman to conduct an impartial investigation into some of the incidents of the German wartime occupation of Belgium.

The questions to be considered will be Germany's violation of the Belgian frontier in 1914, the alleged sniping of German troops by Belgian civilians and the German deportations of Belgian workers.

The inquiry into these questions was desired by the Belgium government, and Germany readily consented.

LEGION CROWDS FIND CONVENTION ROUTINE WILL BE STRENUOUS

Program Will Take Cognizance of Every Phase of Life Among French.

LANDMARKS OF BATTLE SEARCHED FOR IN VAIN

Veterans Discover Nature and Building Have Wiped Out Scars of War.

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The advance guard of the American Legion is just beginning to realize what a strenuous time lies ahead of the former service pilgrims if the tentative program, incorporating the suggestions of the French government and the invitations of many municipalities, is carried out.

Beginning with high mass in Notre Dame Cathedral and services in other churches on Sunday morning, September 18, there will not be a minute free until after the great celebration organized in honor of the legion by the Association of War Victims of Rheims, which comprises the whole population of the war-stricken city.

The legionnaires will have an opportunity to see nearly every feature of French life, from the Montmartre section of Paris, famous for its cabarets, to the simple customs of the country folk.

The people of Cantigny, where the Americans made their first attack and won their first victory, wanted them to go there, but the village is too small, so Montdidier, the town marking the farthest German advance to the west in 1918, not far from Cantigny, substituted itself for the village and invited the legion to be its guests. Other invitations have come from Forges Sur Meuse, Dormans, Strasbourg and Metz.

Will be Received by Royalty.

A special post commanders' tour of 250 picked legionnaires will make a "peace and good will" journey to Monte Carlo, Genoa, Rome, Lucerne, Brussels and London. At Rome they will be received by the king and Mussolini, at Brussels by King Albert, and at London by King George.

American Legion pilgrims, scattered today along the old battle front in France, were having considerable difficulty in finding landmarks to refresh their own memories, or to point out to wives and children. Crops wave over what once were trenches and places which consisted of a few piles of scorched bricks now are neat, prosperous towns and villages. Even war's ravages in woods and forests have been almost completely blotted out by luxuriant nature.

The Americans, however, find their former hosts and hostesses unchanged. In cottage and chateau everywhere they are meeting the proverbial hospitality of the French country folk, and if they eat and drink all that is being pressed upon them, the medical section of the American Legion convention will have its hands full before the visitors leave for home.

Invitations to public receptions continue to arrive at headquarters from cities and towns throughout the length and breadth of France. Thus far only one has been accepted by Adj. James F. Barton, in charge of the arrangements for the forthcoming convention. It is one from the city of Rheims to a banquet on September 25.

Hurry to Fighting Sectors.

Many of the Americans are in the Chateau-Thierry, Saint-Mihiel and Verdun sectors, having gone there almost immediately upon reaching Paris after landing at Cherbourg Thursday. They have renewed acquaintances with, and in some cases introduced their families to, the French families who sheltered them during the war.

Arrival of the American Legionnaires coincides with the beginning of the annual rush of American tourists for passage home.

The steamship offices are crowded with people, most of whom want to go back home in October, but who can not find accommodations, many of the ships sailing at that time having been chartered by the legion. Hundreds are putting a hurried end to their European tours and taking earlier passage to avoid the rush.

The legion headquarters here took on a more businesslike air today when the telephones began working and a special telegraph and postoffice was opened by the government for the legion's exclusive use, in the Grand Palais, opposite.

Work continues on the legion program, which is practically complete, but as it is still to be approved by the French Government, it is not yet regarded as official.

French Deputy Warns American Legion Visitors

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A warning to "the American hangmen" that if Sacco and Vanzetti are executed "they will have to fear legitimate reprisals by an exasperated proletariat," is given by the Socialist Deputy Vaillant-Couturier in an article in L'Humanite today.

"Let the Fascists and American Legion accomplices take notice," he says.

Emphasizing that Saco and Vanzetti are "victims of class hatred," he declares that the proletariat, which by its action has already stayed the hand of the executioner, can yet prevent the irreparable if they express themselves with sufficient vigor.

Coolidge Flood Fund Is Vetoed by McCarl

(Associated Press.)

Revision of the plans of the Army engineers assigned to design methods of flood control in the Mississippi Valley is expected to be necessary as the result of the refusal of Comptroller General McCarl to approve transfer of $2,000,000 to the Mississippi River Flood Commsision from the unexpended balance of the rivers and harbors appropriation.

It was announced yesterday that McCarl had withheld his approval of the transfer, which was to be made as an emergency act and which the next Congress was to be requested to replace. President Coolidge, Secretary of War Davis and Maj. Gen. Jadwin, chief of engineers, had approved the transfer on the theory that the emergency existing in the flood area was such that extraordinary procedure was proper. The $2,000,000 was to have been expended in the Louisiana flood zone.

Inasmuch as flood relief measures have been going forward in anticipation of the transfer, the ruling of the Comptroller General is expected to cause material changes in such plans.

NICARAGUANS TO ASSUME POLICE ROLE OF MARINES

Conditions Said to Be Improving, With Sandino in Hiding.

FELAND TO DEPART TODAY

Managua, Nicaragua, Aug. 20 (A.P.). The policing of the various sections of Nicaragua where marines have been on guard will be taken over by the Nicaraguan constabulary as fast as possible, Brig. Gen. Logan Feland, in command of United States marine forces in Nicaragua, stated today.

"General conditions are steadily improving," Gen. Feland told the Associated Press, declaring that the former Liberal Gen. Sandino, who recently was defeated after an attack upon marines and constabulary at Ocotal, appears to be hiding with a very small number of men, although there were some indications that he had left the country.

President Diaz tonight gave Gen. Feland a dinner at the Managua Club at which there were 200 guests, including the American Minister, Charles C. Ederhardt; the diplomatic corps cabinet members and prominent foreigners. President Diaz said that he was greatly pleased with the results of the work accomplished by Gen. Feland.

The American general, with his staff, will depart tomorrow for the United States.

Carlos Salgado, who has been carrying on acts of banditry in the northwest of Nicaragua, is reported to have stated his willingness to lay down his arms, provided the Liberal leaders give him their "authority." In a communication, answering a letter from Gen. Jose Maria Moncada, who was commander in chief of the Liberal forces in the campaign against the Conservatives, Salgado is said to have expressed the belief that since the defeat of Gen. Sandino (by American marines and native constabulary at Ocotal) he must carry on the Liberal cause.

On the other hand, Liberal leaders state that Salgado has no connection with the party and is persecuting both Liberals and Conservatives.

Davis and MacNider May Run for Senate

Secretary of War Dwight Davis and Assistant Secretary Hanford MacNider will resign their posts shortly to run for senator from their respective States, Missouri and Iowa, according to a report printed in the current number of the Army and Navy Magazine.

If they follow this course, according to the article, Secretary Davis will be succeeded by James W. Wadsworth, former senator from New York, while MacNider will be succeeded as Assistant Secretary by Col. Perry Widner, a reserve Army officer of Los Angeles.

Florida Bank Closes.

Fort Pierce, Fla., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The Fort Pierce Bank & Trust Co. failed to open today. A notice posted on the door said the bank was closed pending action by the State banking department. President C. M. Morton said withdrawals since July had been exceedingly heavy.

$100,000,000 FUND ANNUALLY IS URGED FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Mississippi Valley Association States Its Recommendations to Congress.

JURISDICTION PLANNED OVER ALL TRIBUTARIES

Would Have Nation Assume Debts of Devastated Districts, Totaling $350,000,000.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A comprehensive flood control program for the expenditure by the National Government of upward of $100,000,000 annually throughout the entire district between the Allegheny and Rocky Mountains was recommended to the Mississippi River Commission today in the Mississippi Valley Flood Control Association, at a flood control hearing here.

The program which will be introduced at the next session of Congress in December was prepared by W. G. Streett of Camden, Ark., vice president of the Mississippi Valley Flood Control Association, who outlined to the commission details of the report, which has the indorsement of the association as well as a number of U. S. senators.

Wide Program Wanted.

Streett closed the presentation of the association's arguments to the river commission, other speakers having stressed that no flood control program short of one which included engineering consideration of the entire Mississippi River and all its tributaries could accomplish protection of land owners from overflow.

Streett said Congress would be asked to extend the jurisdiction of the commission to all tributaries of the Mississippi and to provide the commission with funds in any amount necessary to enable it to speedily carry out adequate plans to prevent floods. He was uncertain, and said only the commission could determine the amount of money which could be expended economically in flood control work, but he placed the amount that possibly it is $100,000,000 annually until completion of the work.

Congress Would Assume Debts.

In addition to the demand which will be made upon the Government, the association proposes to ask Congress to assume all the debts of drainage and levee districts, many of which Streett said are virtually bankrupt because of the losses due to the flood last spring, and in many of which it will be impossible to obtain by taxation the money needed to meet the interest on outstanding bonds. It is estimated the total indebtedness of the districts will exceed $350,000,000.

The hearing was the last of many which have been held in cities along the Mississippi by the commission. It is said that body expected to hold no more hearings, and that the preparation of its report to the War Department would be undertaken immediately. It is expected this report will be in the hands of the Secretary of War in ample time to have a complete flood control program ready at the opening of Congress in December.

New Foreign Policy By Chile Is Seen

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A change of foreign policy by Chile is the interpretation put by all circles here on the news of the resignation of Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal, Chilean Ambassador in Washington, and the appointment of Carlos Davila.

The government limited itself to a statement from the foreign office, saying that the government was determined to engage in an upright and energetic foreign policy as it behooved a country the protector of justice and right.

Senor Davila, it is understood, has received full instructions to negotiate with the American Government to end the Tacna-Arica problem.

Student Loans Found Sound Investment

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Less than 1 per cent of loans advanced to college students in the last five years by the Harmon Foundation have not been refunded, the organization announced today. Loans amounting to $275,000 made to 1,723 students have been promptly repaid.

The foundation, after studying the disciplinary influence of liquidating these obligations, concludes that "far from being a handicap to any of a student's plans, this experience is most useful to every student and prepares him to develop with greater rapidity than would be possible without it."

PROPAGANDA IN AID OF SACCO-VANZETTI BARED BY WRITER

PROTESTS ENGENDERED IN MANY COUNTRIES

Anarchists Made to Seem Persecuted; Emotionalism of Labor Appealed To.

How a world-wide propaganda campaign has been carried on for seven years to save Nicola Sacco and Bartolemeo Vanzetti was told yesterday by Harvey O'Connor, Washington correspondent for the Federated Press, a news agency serving labor publications in the United States and Europe.

It was the Federated Press, according to O'Connor, that first sent out the dispatches which aroused the workers of the world to the plight of Sacco, the shoe maker, and Vanzetti, the fish peddler.

O'Connor stated that these dispatches were "colored."

Appealed to the Emotions.

"We were partial to the defense," he said, "why shouldn't we color the news? We have contended right along that Sacco and Vanzetti were railroaded because they were radicals, and we have sent out stuff that appealed to the emotions, rather than abstract accounts of the case, because the working class is an emotional class. We never have said the men were to be executed; we have always said that they were to be murdered."

As a result of the propaganda, hundreds of thousands of mass meetings have been held in the United States and abroad, a $400,000 defense fund has been raised, and every device known to the legal profession has been employed to save the two anarchists.

When Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested in May, 1920, for the murder of a paymaster and a guard in South Braintree, Mass., two months previously, it was a good newspaper story, but not the kind calculated to hold up editions or cause editors to lose sleep.

Forgotten If Americans.

Had Sacco and Vanzetti been Americans, O'Connor admitted, the case would quickly have been forgotten. But the Boston correspondent of the Federated Press, he said, discovered that Sacco and Vanzetti were radicals, and then the crusade started.

When the editor of the Federated Press in Chicago heard from his Boston correspondent, he immediately dispatched John Beffel to the scene. Beffel was the star reporter, and he knew what was expected of him.

Shortly thereafter, O'Connor narrated, the Federated Press was sending Beffel's stories and editorial comment to all parts of the United States and Europe. Always, he said, the cry was that Sacco and Vanzetti were being persecuted because they were workers.

The Federated Press service was sent to about 24 labor dailies and about 150 labor weeklies in the United States, 10 per cent of which were foreign language publications. At the same time it was sent to the London Daily Herald, the powerful organ of the British Labor party, and to the trade union headquarters in Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam, Rome, Milan and other cities. These offices disseminated it to the labor papers in their respective jurisdictions.

Only One Side of Story Given.

Little or no attention was being paid to the case at this time by the nonlabor papers or by the regular news agencies, according to O'Connor, and he frankly admitted that the only side of the story that was being read by the workers was the Sacco-Vanzetti side.

It was not long before mass meetings were being called in this country and abroad to protest against the treatment accorded Sacco and Vanzetti, according to O'Connor, and eventually the "regular" newspapers and news associations had to pay attention. From that time on, the case was destined to be of international importance.

The workers in Europe became even more concerned over the fate of Sacco and Vanzetti than those in America, O'Connor said, because they felt that the two men were being persecuted because they were foreigners and workers. There is in this country, he said, a large number of native workers who are prejudiced against foreign workers, and who want them kept out so that labor will not be cheapened.

In the beginning, O'Connor said, Sacco and Vanzetti had only a few of their Italian friends to help them, but once the crusade to save them had matured the workers of the world were out to help them with voice, deed and pocketbook.

Cultured and Mild-Mannered.

O'Connor, a cultured and mild-mannered young man, is thoroughly convinced that Sacco and Vanzetti were "railroaded" by the Department of Justice. At the same time, he admits that a strong and convincing circumstantial case has been worked up against the pair.

The men were arrested, he said, when the country was still suffering from war-time hysteria. It was a time, he said, when the Department of Justice agents were out to deport all the anarchists in the country. When Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested for the Braintree murders and it was discovered that they were members of the Galleani band of anarchists, he declared, it was only natural that the Department of Justice agents should try to have them convicted.

O'Connor expressed the fear that there would be widespread violence after Sacco and Vanzetti are executed. Whatever the philosophical type of anarchist says about it, he declared, most anarchists believe in violence. Anarchists of this type, however, have restrained themselves, he said, for fear of hurting the chances of Sacco and Vanzetti. But they are an emotional lot, he concluded, and he does not like to think what will happen if their emotions get the better of them.

Trade Group Plans Inquiry Into Prices

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Trade Commission announced yesterday that in the next few months it will conduct an investigation into methods used in quoting and charging prices the consuming public must pay for necessary commodities.

The commission pointed out that "numerous companies who distribute their products in various States of the Union are quoting prices in which no allowance is made for difference in transportation costs in widely separated markets." Others, it was said, add to market prices the transportation charges to the locality of the consumer, while others quote a uniform price at the factory, adding to this the freight charges to the consuming point.

Holmes Outlines Reasons For Denying Sacco Stay

U. S. Supreme Court Member, Without Prejudice to Similar Appeal to an Associate, Refuses to "Meddle."

Boston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, at his home in Beverly today refused a stay of execution for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, but, in a statement made public here tonight through Arthur D. Hill, chief of defense counsel, left the way open for a similar application to another justice of the same court.

Pointing out that the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted was charged under State laws and the case was tried by a State court, Justice Holmes said:

"I have absolutely no authority as a judge of the United States to meddle with it."

This, he said, he did without prejudice to an application to another justice which, he added, "I should be very glad to see made, as I am far from saying that I think counsel was not warranted in presenting the question raised in the application by this and the previous writ."

Two other United States Supreme Court Justices now are in New England, Justice Stone at Isle de Haut, Me., and Justice Brandeis in Chatham.

The text of Justice Holmes' statement follows:

"This is a case of a crime charged under State laws and tried by a State court. I have absolutely no authority as a judge of the United States to meddle with it. If the proceedings were void in a legal sense, as when the forms of a trial are gone through in court surrounded and invaded by an infuriated mob ready to lynch a prisoner, counsel, and jury if there is not a prompt conviction in such a sense no doubt I might issue a habeas corpus—not because I was a judge of the United States, but simply as any one having authority to issue the writ might do so, on the ground that a void proceeding was no warrant for the detention of the accused.

"No one who knows anything of the law would hold that the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti was a void proceeding. They might argue that it was voidable and ought to be set aside by those having power to do it, but until set aside, the proceeding must stand. That is the difference between void and voidable—and I have no power to set the proceeding aside—that, subject to the exception that I shall mention, rests wholly with the State.

"I have received many letters from people who seem to suppose that I have a general discretion to see that justice is done. They are written with the confidence that sometimes goes with ignorance of the law. Of course, as I have said, I have no such power. The relation of the United States and the courts of the United States to the States and the courts of the States is a very delicate matter that has occupied the thoughts of statesmen and judges for a hundred years and can not be disposed of by a summary statement that justice requires me to cut red tape and intervene. Far stronger cases than this have risen with regard to the blacks when the Supreme Court has denied its power.

"A State decision may be set aside by the Supreme Court of the United States—not by a single justice of that court—if the record of the case shows that the Constitution has been infringed in specific ways. An application for a writ of certiorari has been filed on the ground that the record shows such an infringement, and the writ of habeas corpus having been denied, I am asked to grant a stay of execution until that application can be considered by the full court.

"I assume that under the statutes my power extends to this case, although I am not free from doubt. But it is a power rarely exercised and I should not be doing my duty if I exercised it unless I thought that there was a reasonable chance that the court would entertain the application and ultimately reverse the judgment. This I can not bring myself to believe.

"The essential fact of record that is relied upon is that the question of Judge Thayer's prejudice, raised, and it is said discovered only after the trial and verdict, was left to Judge Thayer and not to another judge. But, as I put it to counsel, if the constitution of Massachusetts had provided that a trial before a single judge should be final, without appeal, it would have been consistent with the Constitution of the United States. In such a case there would be no remedy for prejudice on the part of the judge except executive clemency. Massachusetts has done more than that. I see nothing in the constitution warranting a complaint that it has not done more still.

"It is asked how it would be if the judge were subsequently shown to have been corruptly interested or insane. I will not attempt to decide at what point a judgment might be held to be absolutely void on these grounds. It is perfectly plain that although strong language is used in the present application the judgment was not void even if I interpret the affidavit as proving all that the petitions think they prove—which is somewhat more than I have drawn from them.

"I do not consider that I am at liberty to deal with this case differently from the way in which I should treat one that excited no public interest, and that was less powerfully presented. I can not say that I have a doubt and therefore I must deny the stay. But although I must act on my convictions, I do so without prejudice to an application to another of the justices which I should be very glad to see made, as I am far from saying that I think counsel was not warranted in presenting the question raised in the application by this and the previous writ."

They were in conference with him from shortly after 2 o'clock until nearly 4:30, when Attorney Hill emerged with the announcement that Justice Holmes had refused their petition.

Another defense attorney, Michael E. Musmanno, who went to Washington last night, met with a rebuff when he tried to file a petition for a writ of certiorari in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was informed that the petition could not be received until complete copies of the record of the case in the Massachusetts Supreme Court and the Norfolk County Superior Court were filed with it. Attorney Hill at once dispatched part of the records to Washington and arranged to send the rest as soon as possible.

While these legal steps were in progress Vanzetti received in the death house at the State prison a visit from his sister, Miss Luigia Vanzetti, who had journeyed from her home in Italy at his request that he might see her once more.

Fifteen Pickets Arrested.

Sympathizers today made their third appearance as pickets in front of the Statehouse. On the two previous occasions nearly 80 persons were arrested for obstructing traffic and today the same procedure was followed, all fifteen of the pickets being taken to a police station after they had been given seven minutes to quit the vicinity. Among them were Powers Hapgood, who is at liberty under bond after appealing a sentence of six months in the State House of Correction for inciting a riot in a Sacco-Vanzetti demonstration on the Common; John Dos Passos, New York, author, and Paxton Hibben.

Attorney General John G. Sargeant received a visit today at his home in Ludlow, Vt., from Attorneys Arthur Garfield Hays, New York, and Francis Fisher Kane, Philadelphia, in the interests of Sacco and Vanzetti. The Attorney General declined to discuss the visit further than to say that he had listened to what they had to say and had told them that while he was away from Washington all business of the Department of Justice was in the hands of Acting Attorney General Farnum.

The citizens' national committee for Sacco and Vanzetti, in a statement issued this afternoon, quoted Attorney Hays as saying that Mr. Sargent had declared that "it was the first time he ever understodd the relation of the Departmetn of Justice to Sacco-Vanzetti case," and had "displayed much concern."

Statement of Committee.

"Attorneys Kane and Hays," the committee's statement said, "acting for the citizens' national committee, had a three-hour conference with Mr. Sargent. Mr. Hayes, at the end of the conference, made the following statement:

"Attorney General Sargent declared at the end of our three-hour session that it was the first time he ever understood the relation of the Department of Justice to the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and it was the first time that the case was ever presented to him for official action. Mr. Sargent displayed much concern over the matters that we laid before him. He has taken documents which we submitted for study, and we believe he will try to reach a decision promptly. We submitted matters to Mr. Sargent supporting our appeal for Federal intervention in the case.'"

Mr. Hill issued a statement in which he said, in part:

"Mr. Field saw Judge Morton, of the United States District Court, last night at his summer home and again this morning at the courthouse in Fall River, and presented to him the new petition for habeas corpus. Judge Morton declined to allow the petition and entered the final order dismissing it. He declined to allow an appeal from this order and declined to grant a stay of execution. The papers are being brought back to Boston and as soon as possible after his return will be filed with the clerk of the United States District Court."

Miss Luigia Vanzetti Is Received by Cardinal

Boston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Miss Luigia Vanzetti, sister of Bartolomeo Vanzetti, called on Cardinal O'Connell at his summer home in Marblehead this afternoon, according to a statement issued by the citizens' national committee for Sacco and Vanzetti. A member of the committee accompanied her.

The statement said that the cardinal talked to Miss Vanzetti for an hour and a half, after which he poured tea for his visitors. The following statement by the cardinal was quoted in the committee's announcement:

"To me, respecting as I do the courts of the Commonwealth and the Nation, as a priest of God, of clemency and mercy, as well as justice, my heart is filled with the sentiment of sympathy and compassion for these men.

"Human judgment is fallible always, at best, but it is the only human method of government which civilized life has and must depend on for order and the conservation of whatever is best in human life.

"But the justice of God is perfect, and, in the end, He and His ways, as mysterious as they are, are our hope and salvation."

Miss Vanzetti, after her visit to the cardinal, made the following statement:

"I fervently plead with the people of my faith, with the people of all faiths, who trust in God and in His divine providence, to pray this Sunday for clemency to save my brother and his friend."

The defense counsel in a statement tonight said that Miss Vanzetti "wants to deny as strongly as possible that she has come to America to induce her brother to come back to the church."

Appeal by 16 Clergymen Sent to Governor Fuller

Boston, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A petition asking commutation of sentence for Sacco nad Vanzetti to life imprisonment was sent to Gov. Fuller today by sixteen clergymen of various denominations in this and other States.

"We petition your excellency," the petition said, "to commute the sentence of Sacco and Vanzetti to life imprisonment that the people of the United States may not be responsible for the death of two men whose guilt still remains in reasonable doubt."

The signers included Hubert O. Herring, secretary of the department of social relations of the Congregational Churches of the United States; Harry Emerson Fosdick, Union Theological Seminary, New York; Dan F. Bradley, Pilgrim Congregational Church, Cleveland; Henry Sloane Coffin, president Union Theological Seminary; Clement G. Clarke, First Congregational Church, Portland, Oreg.; Albert C. Dieffenbach, editor of the Christian Register, Boston; Charles W. Gilkie, Hyde Park Baptist Church, Chicago; William E. Gilroy, editor the Congregationalist, Boston; Lewis O. Hartman, editor Zion's Herald, Boston; Charles Clayton Morrison, editor the Christian Century, and Paul G. Macy, Washington Congregational Church, Toledo, Ohio.

Berlin Pictures America in State of Civil War

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—From headlines appearing in some of the German press one would judge that the United States was in the throes of a civil war over the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

"State of Siege in New York," "State of Alarm in America" and "Wrestling Match with Yankee Justice" were among the captions used in some of the papers, while in one case Chief Justice Taft was described as the man "who could save Sacco and Vanzetti if he only would." The more extreme newspapers published cartoons of the electric chair, the Statue of Liberty being rushed off its pedestal and "Miss America" wearing a death mask.

SISTER OF VANZETTI VISITS DOOMED MAN, PARTED MANY YEARS

She Is Allowed to Talk With Brother Without Bars of Cell Between.

BOTH CONDEMNED MEN KEEP ATHEISTIC VIEWS

Kinswoman Tells Slayer of Family's Sympathy With Him in Extremity.

Charlestown State Prison, Boston, Mass., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, from their cells in the prison here tonight faced the last 48 hours of life before the end of the respite which ten days ago saved them from the electric chair, with no apparent modification of their extreme views toward life, death and religion.

For nearly an hour today Vanzetti sat on a bench outside the steel-barred door of his cell and talked with the sister whom he had not seen for nineteen years. The sister, Miss Luigia Vanzetti, arrived in America yesterday with the announced hope of trying to induce her brother, a professed athiest, to return to the childhood faith to which she has adhered. They conversed in their native tongue, Italian, but beyond the normal exchange of news of themselves and their relatives and friends little of what was discussed was disclosed.

As Miss Vanzetti left the prison it was apparent, however, that she was depressed and that she had found little in the words of her brother to cheer her.

Religious Solace Not Asked.

Sacco, like his companion, Vanzetti, long ago ronounced religion. None has attempted to induce him to return to his faith.

The prison chaplain, the Rev. Michael J. Murphy, has talked with the men, but his visits have not dealt with spiritual affairs. Today he conversed with them for a short time, but it was said neither man expressed any desire for the solace of religion. Unless they request it themselves, no clergyman will accompany them from their cells to the electric chair. Although both were within a half-hour of death when a respite saved them on the night of August 10, neither at that time gave any indication of changing his views.

To what extent Miss Vanzetti was influenced by a desire to restore faith to her brother was somewhat uncertain tonight in view of statements by other supporters of the condemned men who declared this was not the purpose of her visit. Mrs. Jessica Henderson, wealthy resident of Wayland, who accompanied Miss Vanzetti to Boston and who went with her to the prison today, declared it was not the reason for the trip. Other members of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee voiced the same opinion. Miss Vanzetti herself did not discuss her visit after leaving the prison.

No Bars Between Them.

Accompanied by Mrs. Rose Sacco, wife of Nicola, Miss Vanzetti arrived at the prison shortly before noon in the automobile of Mrs. Henderson. With them also was Philip Carney, interpreter, but neither he nor Mrs. Henderson was permitted to go with the two to the death house. Warden William E. Hendry went with Miss Vanzetti and Mrs. Sacco.

On arriving at Vanzetti's cell, the warden unlocked the heavy door and called the condemned man into the corridor. It was the first time in many years that a prisoner awaiting execution has been allowed to meet a visitor without bars between them. As the young woman embraced her brother she broke into tears. A moment later they seated themselves on a bench, where they were left alone while they talked.

The death cells are constantly watched by two guards, seated in the corridor outside. Beyond the wall of the corridor in another door, opening into the prison yard. Another officer is stationed there, though the outer door is not visible to the prisoners. These guards remained, but they learned nothing of the conversation.

Plight Amazes Sister.

While Vanzetti and his sister talked, Mrs. Sacco conversed with her husband, whom she has seen almost daily since he was removed to the prison from the Dedham Jail several weeks ago. Before the departure of the two women, Mrs. Sacco introduced Miss Vanzetti to Nicola. The two never had met and their conversation was brief.

Such of the conversation between Vanzetti and his sister as was disclosed dealt with the family. The sister told the condemned man of conditions at home, where their father is living, and conveyed to him the love and sympathy of the aged man and their friends in Italy. Later she told Mrs. Sacco that it seemed strange to her that any one should believe a man with such a family, to whom he might have returned at any time, could be found guilty of having committed a murder for profit. When she left the prison it was with the expectation of returning again tomorrow when, Warden Hendry promised her, she might spend another hour with her brother.

Outside the prison entrance Miss Vanzetti found little to remind her of the precautions that officials have taken to prevent a demonstration. Few guards were in sight and visitors were not halted when they approached.

Warden Breaks News.

Shortly before 9 o'clock tonight Warden Hendry and Father Murphy, prison chaplain, visited the condemned men in the death cells again, where the warden told them that their last chance of appeal apparently had been lost. He quoted late afternoon newspaper stories of Attorney Hill's unsuccessful attempts to obtain a stay from Justice Holmes while both men stood at the doors of their cells.

The men took the news calmly, Warden Hendry said, and Vanzetti warmly thanked the prison official for "your extreme kindness in permitting me to embrace my sister this afternoon." Vanzetti also gave the warden a letter to one of his friends in Plymouth in which he again touched on "the warden's kindness."

Warden Hendry said he was visited this afternoon by a woman employe of a Watertown rubber company who said that she was a spiritualist and that she had been "warned" that the prison would be bombed by airplane on Monday night. The warden assured her that every precaution was being taken to guard the structure.

U. S. Supreme Court Appeal For Sacco Found Faulty

(Associated Press.)

Efforts made in the Supreme Court yesterday to file petitions for review of the action of the Massachusetts courts in the Sacco and Vanzetti case failed because Michael A. Musmanno, one of counsel for the condemned men, did not bring with him records of the proceedings in the State courts.

Musmanno left with the clerk of the court the petitions in the two appeals together with the filing fees and the cases will be docketed when the records are received in the proper form.

The attorney later advised the clerk's office that he had been informed by his associates in Boston by telephone that the record in one case had already been forwarded and that the record in the other would be sent the first of next week.

It developed during the day that Musmanno was making inquiry into recent actions taken by Justice Holmes in granting a stay of execution in the case of two negroes sentenced to death in Kentucky who, like his clients, contended that they had been denied a fair trial. The Department of Justice also was consulted by the lawyer, but Acting Attorney General Farnum later said he told Musmanno that the department had no information bearing on the murder charge against Sacco and Vanzetti.

It had been charged by friends of the condemned men that the department had been active in their prosecution. The acting Attorney General said, however, that the case was one solely for Massachusetts to handle.

Two petitions which it has sought to file yesterday asked the Supreme Court to review the proceedings in the Norfolk County Superior Court where the men were tried and convicted and also the action of the State Supreme Court in refusing to review the case on its merits. The petition went into detail in relating the action of the two courts and contended that the condemned men had been denied a fair trial under the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution which guarantees to all due process of law.

It was asserted in the petitions that Judge Thayer, who presided at the trial of the two men, was so prejudiced against them as to be incompetent to sit and that his prejudice influenced him in ruling against the men when exercising his discretion on motions submitted during the trial. The proceedings in his court were denounced as constituting "nothing bu a naked form of law."

Pointing out that it was not until after Judge Thayer had disposed of the case that counsel for the condemned men became satisfied of his prejudice and incompetency the petitions insisted that the motion which was made for a new trial should have been passed upon by some other judge. The State Supreme Court was criticized for its alleged failure to review the case on its merits, its action being denounced as having denied the men constitutional rights.

After his visits to the Supreme Court clerk's office and the Department of Justice Musmanno departed for Boston.

Dwight Davis Finds British Rain Unique

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Leaving London today, Dwight F. Davis, American Secretary of War, took unofficial cognizance of the fact that it was August's fifteenth rainy day in the British capital.

"I have seen it stated somewhere," he remarked, "that Englishmen excel in cleverness because they must be clever or die—it takes a clever man to live in this climate.

"But there are roses as well as rain; there is nothing like the English rain, and nothing like the English roses.

"I have rested myself in London, just strolling a bit around the streets. They are fine streets, though a bit narrow, some of them, and soaked in history as well as smoke and rain."

FASCISTI WOULD BANISH FRENCH NAMES IN ITALY

CALL STEPS SCIENTIFIC

Courmayeur, Italy, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Irritated by French reaction to the renaming of one of the highest peaks of Mount Blanc as Mount Benito Mussolini" Italian patriots are demanding the Italianization of all geographical place names on the southern side of the Franco-Italian frontier. They urge upon the governmental authorities the formula: "Italian names for Italian Soil."

The peak now named for the Duce, they point out, was until last week's ceremony graced with the French name "Le Pere Eternel," or the Eternal Father. Answering what they term the "absurd and unjustified alarm" in France the Italians say that the purpose of changing the name of the peak, far from being provocative, was scientific.

Officials and fascist university students—several thousand of whom are encamped here, for vacation and military training like that of the Plattsburg, N. Y., and other American summer camps—decided to make scientific observations on the peak. The expedition was for the two-fold purpose of training the students and at the same time furnishing the National Geographical Society with hitherto unknown data.

With this in view, Augusto Turati, secretary general of the Fascist party, renamed the mountain and, with four Courmayeur guides as a vanguard, groups of hardy youths climbed to the summit.

Italians declare the time has come to rename the villages, towns, hills and peaks. Since the days of the Franks, the population of this region have spoken a French dialect, while the place names are all French. At Aosta the monument to the Italian war dead is inscribed in French. Every town, hill and street must have its name changed, according to Fascist leaders.

REPORT ON CHURCH UNITY BRINGS HOT DEBATE AT PARLEY

ACCEPTED, DOCUMENT GOES TO COMMITTEE

Lausanna, Switzerland, Aug. 20 (A.P.) Objections to a committee report covering the important subject of "the unity of Christendom in relation to existing churches" provoked such heated discussion in the closing hours of the World Conference on Faith and Order late today that its acceptance for immediate transmission to the churches was prevented.

Instead the conference finally compromised by receiving the report, but referring it to the continuation committee for further consideration and possible amendment.

Five preceding reports dealing with the gospel, the nature of the church, the sacraments, the ministry, and the creeds were accepted by the conference with minor amendments and will be sent to the 90 or more churches represented here.

The findings, which caused the debate, formed in effect a platform for the entire movement of church unity. The opposition was led by Frederic C. Morehouse, of Milwaukee, an Episcopalian, editor of the Living Church, who said that the terms used went beyond the general understanding of the function of the conference, since they presented a definite plan for reunion.

Plan Not Contemplated.

He maintained that this was not contemplated by the preamble unianimously adopted earlier in the day, which made a call to Christians, especially to the women and young folks to help in bringing the churches closer together. This preamble was written by the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Protestant Episcopal bishop of western New York, who is chairman of the conference.

Several other American Episcopalians and Anglicans supported Mr. Morehouse with arguments for acceptance of the report coming chiefly from nonconformist delegates.

Dr. Timothy Lew, the Chinese delegate, who is widely known in the United States, then indicated that he would withdraw his previous votes accepting the five other reports unless this sixth report similarly was accepted. The situation was saved by the action of Mr. Morehouse in moving to refer the report to the continuation committee to which all the delegates, including Dr. Lew, agreed.

One of the last acts of the conference was to recommend to the continuation committee that the reports and preambles be printed in Greek so that they might be more easily understood by the members of the Eastern Orthodox Church.

Will Close Today.

The sessions, which have lasted seventeen days, closed with a series of brief speeches of felicitations and good will by the leaders of the various denominations who agreed that the conference had achieved important progress toward church unity although conscious of the many difficulties to be overcome.

The Capitol police force numbers 90 men, but Capt. Stephen J. Gnash called in ten extra guards for duty during the last few days. The men have orders to allow no one to enter the building unless having a permit signed by David Lynn, architect of the Capitol, or is known to the doorman as an employe.

Scores of tourists and visitors were not allowed to ascend the steps of the building last night. During the day, guards are stationed at every door and visitors are compelled to check parcels of every description., practice in vogue in all public buildings during the war.

A talk with members of the police vigil detail last night revealed that the men have no easy task. As one expressed it: "We are upbraided if we don't stop them from going in and if we do stop them." He referred to members of Congress, officials and employes of the building.

One guard, recognizing the license tag number of the automobile of Charles F. Pace, financial clerk of the Senate, failed to question Mr. Pace when he entered the building. He was reported to Capt. Gnash and was reprimanded. Spurred on by this incident, the guards last night declared that even a senator can not enter the building now without a pass.

Nor is the Capitol the only public building under guard. The reenforced guards called in a few weeks ago at the Monument, Library of Congress and other departments are still in service, and the Metropolitan Police Force is holding a vigil over embassies, legations and residences of prominent personages.

Davis Issues Warning On Employing Aliens

A warning against employment as house servants of aliens who were not regularly admitted to this country under immigration laws, was issued to Army officers yesterday as a result of a letter to Secretary of War Davis from Secretary of Labor Davis.

Admitting that aliens of Oriental races are much sought after as servants, attention was called to the fact that Orientals, especially of the working class, are denied legal admission under the immigration act of 1924, so that only those who have been regularly admitted under previous laws are legally residents in the United States.

The Nation

THE National Press Building is owned and has been constructed by the National Press Club whose membership embraces representatives of the press of the world. It is an achievement—in size, beauty of form and appointments—reflecting all that money, effort, architectural skill and inventive genius can provide.

This structure is now virtually completed and the public is cordially invited to inspect the building and view its distinctive innovations for the convenience, comfort and safety of its tenants. While much of the rentable area, both for stores and offices, has been committed, store spaces are available on both Fourteenth and F Streets and single and en suite offices may be had at excellent locations.

Tenants of the National Press Building are representative of the professional and business life of Washington. It will be "a community of distinction" of direct mutual advantage.

The National Press Club will occupy a part of the thirteenth floor and the entire fourteenth floor. This club is a focal point of newspaperdom and is the mecca of prominent visitors to the Nation's Capital.

Rooms are available for from $30 to $90 a month. Liberal discounts are allowed on long leases and on multiple rooms. Stores have been leased to nationally known concerns desiring the most prominent Washington representation obtainable. Almost immediate possession can be had by both store and office tenants, but no rent will be charged until October 1.

Ventilation Makes Building Comfortable Summer and Winter

Forced ventilation—which gives, both winter and summer, fresh and healthful air—makes the offices of this building many degrees cooler than the street in the summer and in the winter a constant flow of warm fresh air is assured.

The National Press Building is the first large office structure in the United States having forced ventilation. Fresh air is continuously drawn in from above the building with gigantic fans located high above the roof. The air is then thoroughly washed, purified and cooled or heated to balance humidity and maintain a comfortable temperature at all times.

Shower Baths and Lockers Unusual Features

Shower baths and lockers are placed on the office floors of the National Press Building. These will be available to both men and women tenants without extra charge, except for the lockers. There will be a valet service, which will keep all clothes cleaned and pressed, linen laundered, shoes shined and every garment left in locker ready for use. These shower rooms are under forced ventilation, have windows to the open air, are lined with tile and marble.

The National Press Building is the first building in this country to offer on a wholesale plan this very valuable service. The lockers are sufficiently large for the tenant to keep therein dress suits, golf togs and other changes that he may desire to make. The lockers will be kept constantly furnished with towel and soap. Combs and brushes left in the lockers will be kept clean and ready for use.

Law Library and Reading Rooms

Libraries and reading rooms are being installed in the National Press Building. There will be a large and comprehensive law library and volumes for this library will be selected by an eminent committee of lawyers. This library will be kept constantly up to date. There will be other reference and reading rooms that will be available to tenants.

Each library will be in charge of attendants. Stenographers will be furnished at reasonable rates. These libraries and reading rooms are ideally located for light and ventilation and will offer to the tenants of the National Press Building opportunity for quiet thought and work.

An earnest attempt has been made to have the National Press Building a community in itself. No possible requirement of the tenant that can be supplied has been overlooked.

Telephone Secretaries Will Receive Messages for Absent Tenants

Secretarial service on a 24-hour basis is furnished to each tenant of the National Press Building without charge. This service is equivalent to an attendant in your office day and night. Each tenant will have the usual independent telephone, but when a switch is thrown all calls, both local and long distance, will be transferred to the secretarial service. Here, day and night, all messages will be taken and, if desired, relayed to the tenant.

Telegraph and Messenger Service

Both the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies will have service in the National Press Building, from which telegrams will be received and sent. Messenger service at reasonable rates will be available to all tenants day and night and the only telegraph address any tenant needs is "National Press." Telegrams that are delivered after office hours or for other reasons do not immediately reach the tenant, will be delivered to the Secretarial Service through which, according to instructions given, the tenant will be in the shortest possible time located and messages delivered.

Service in the National Press Building is on twenty-four hour basis and provision has been made to make this service effective as possible to the absent tenant.

Express Elevators of Latest Type

Elevators are perhaps the most important features in any building and the National Press Building, in this facility, is supreme in Washington. There are seven large passenger elevators of the latest and best equipment for speed, comfort and safety. These elevators are under automatic control. Elevator starters are in charge day and night and the elevators are capable of being dispatched with express train precision.

A special feature is that it will be impossible for an elevator to pass any floor either on the up or down trip, when the "stop" signal is given, without the operator being checked by the elevator starter. This insures no annoying waits. The vertical transportations of the National Press Building, like all other appointments, is in excess of the actual needs.

JIM WATSON'S STATUS PROVES PREPLEXING

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20.—Politicians here are already beginning to figure on a battle between former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, and Secretary Herbert Hoover for control of Indiana's delegates to the Republican national convention.

Senator James E. Watson is spoken of here and there as a possible favorite son, apparently more with designs of controlling the delegation for trading purposes and band-wagoning than of landing on the ticket, unless as running mate. Whether Senator "Jim," as he is known in the State, will enter the primaries as a candidate with Lowden and Hoover, is perplexing the politicians. At the State committee meeting at La Grange a week ago, Gov. Jackson, who has troubles of his own, growing out of D. C. Stephenson's black box, urged a Watson for President boom, but the senator frowned on any action, saying it is too early in the game.

On the Democratic side the organization is all set with a favorite son, Evans Woollen, Indianapolis banker, who ran against Senator Robinson last year and was beaten by only 22,000 votes in a State which in 1924 gave President Coolidge 210,000 plurality over John W. Davis. The unsavory mess of Hoosier politics on the Republican side leads Democratic leaders to remark their party has a chance to play in a sort of evangel role next year and make the State one of the pivots in the national election.

Taggart Move Predicted.

Some observers have visions of Thomas Taggart making a sort of a revival meeting of the campaign, the Democrats raising the song, "Where Is My Boy Tonight?" and they are already urging the Republican rank and file to hit the sawdust trail via the Democratic party.

The astute Mr. Taggart, it is pointed out, has a flare for being on the job with a candidate at the opportune moment and of copping second place for Indiana. Years ago some wise cracker said if Taggart were in the middle of the Sahara and it started to rain duck soup, he'd be the only man in the party with a plate and spoon.

They point to past years, 1908 at Denver, John W. Kern; 1912 at Baltimore, Thomas R. Marshall; 1924 at Madison Square Garden, where Senator Samuel M. Ralston might have proved a real contender when the break came at last.

Lowden Seen Stronger.

As between Lowden and Hoover on the Republican side, prevailing opinion among the cognoscenti is that Lowden would give Hoover a trimming. First, Lowden is accounted especially strong with the agricultural vote and in the smaller cities which themselves are reflections of the countryside. Indiana is a rural State and is preponderantly agricultural, outside of the Gary region and other industrial spots.

Hoover, in Nebraska and Iowa is not in the best standing with the farmers on account of the failure of the farm relief. The general farming view as reported by scouts who are touring the hamlets in automobiles is that Hoover's attitude toward agriculture has not been absolutely sympathetic. Another weakness politicians say Hoover would find in Indiana is that he is regarded as an outstanding internationalist in the administration. Indiana has been one of the strongest anti-League of Nations and anti-World Court States.

Exports of Germany Increase During July

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Germany's July exports, figures for which were published today, were the highest since the beginning of the year and considerably in excess of the same month in 1926 and the monthly averages for the two previous years. The total was 845,500,000 marks, an increase of 1,000,000 over the exports for June.

Imports were valued at 1,282,000,000 marks, which is the highest monthly total reached since the war. The incoming goods chiefly comprised raw products and foodstuffs.

MINE UNION ATTACKED UNDER ANTITRUST LAWS

SUIT ASKS FOR $1,500,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—International, district and local officers and individuals of the United Mine Workers of America, and the National Surety Co. will be named defendants in an equity suit filed in Federal Court here today by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation under provisions of the Sherman and Clayton acts.

The corporation, charging the defendants with conspiring to prevent the plaintiff from moving coal in interstate commerce, asking for $1,500,000 damages and prayed for an injunction to restrain the union men and the surety company from it following any way with the operation of its nonunion mines in this district.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker ordered the defendants to appear in court August 25, to show cause why such an injunction should not be issued.

The corporation, in its bill of complaint, alleged that striking union miners and their sympathizers had attacked and intimidated company employes and had destroyed and damaged company property. The court was asked to restrain the defendants from assaulting and molesting the corporation's workers and their families and from loitering or congregating about or near company property. It was charged that striking union miners were resisting efforts of the company to regain possession of company owned-houses, as provided in a contract, and the court was asked to restrain the surety company from posting bonds in eviction cases.

The order directed Philip Murray, international vice president of the union, to bring into court all letters, telegrams and other documents from international union officers, including John L. Lewis, president, relating to control, conduct, financing and purpose of the suspension of mining since April 1.

Russian Youths Bask Under Crimean Moon

Livadia, Crimea (A.P.).—"Moon sections" for young men and women spending their short summer vacations in the Government-owned recreation centers, are the latest craze in the Crimea.

No communists, old or young, are admitted, nor any persons over 30. Clad in bathing suits the dwellers in the "sections" pass the balmy nights in wandering through tropical gardens or in rowing parties on the Black Sea.

Communists deprecate these "futile" amusements, and choose rather to pass their time in lying on the seashore studying Karl Marx and Lenine doctrines.

DARING BEACH ATTIRE MARKS DEAUVILLE WEEK

SUNBURN HAND-PAINTED

Deauville, France, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Ballroom gowns and modernist art have been added up and divided by two to provide bathing and beach attire with which to startle the public at Deauville's "Grande Semaine," which opens tomorrow.

This final splurge of the tired rich, ending with the Grand Prix horse race a week from tomorrow, is to the seashore what the "Grand Semaine" in June is to Paris.

Everyone desires to be seen and the women try out their best idea on Deauville society, which at present includes the Duke and Duchess of Westminster, Mrs. Jean Nash Dubonnet, scores of well known actresses and film artists and a large representation of wealthy Americans.

Gorgeous silks cut by the best dressmakers are used for the new wrap-around bathing suits which Van Dongen is said to have inspired. These are of one-piece, acutely abbreviated design. Frequently they resemble chopped off dressing gowns, with uneven hems and tight belts. They fold cross-wise in front, with wide lapels.

Limbs are much in evidence and are frequently encased in contrasted stockings, carrying out the idea of Paul Poiret, whose protest: "Why dress both legs alike?" has stirred mannequins and society to feats of daring.

Hand-painted sunburn is having a sudden vogue with thousands of city-bleached holiday makers who swooped down for the big week, filling all available quarters. Many women and not a few men are applying "tan" out of bottles.

DISTRICT EMPLOYES TO HOLD MEETING

Will Discuss Means to Obtain Better Pay and Retirement Benefits.

A mass meeting of clerks and skilled laborers employed by the District government will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in Pythian Temple, to discuss ways and means of obtaining better pay for the clerks and retirement benefits for the laborers.

The skilled laborers desire to obtain the benefits enjoyed by men who do the same work in the Federal Government. The latter are retired with pay and get 30 days' sick leave and 30 days annual leave. The District laborers are given only 15 days leave, and receive no retirement benefits. There is one laborer who has put in 42 years' service, and who will have to retire without pay.

Charles Dorsch, who will be chairman of the meeting, declares that it will not be an indignation meeting, but simply a get-together to see if the employes can not improve their lot. Friends of William F. Franklin are waging a campaign to have him sent as a delegate to San Antonio, Tex., next month, to represent the District workers at the convention of the Federation of Federal Employes.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS FORUM TO REOPEN NEXT YEAR

ATTENDANCE OVER 16,000

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A plea for more efficient organization of city government was made today by Dr. Thomas Reed, of the University of Michigan, before the closing session of the discussion around the importance of the city government in its relation to other government bodies and its future in American democracy.

Dr. A. H. Hatton, of Western Reserve University, at the closing session declared that certain statements he had made were misconstrued in some quarters to reflect on State legislatures.

"I have seen many legislatures in session and I have found them always above the average in intelligence," Dr. Hatton said. "It is characteristic of the low repute in which State legislative bodies are held by the general public that my statement about the stupid legislation in a single State at a single session should be enlarged to cover all law-making bodies."

More than 16,000 persons have attended the institute of public affairs since it opened on August 8, it was announced today. Dr. Charles G. Maphis, dean of the summer quarter at the University of Virginia and director of the institute, today made known that plans are already being made to continue the institute next year, and expressed the hope that leaders from both political parties can be secured as speakers during the presidential campaign.

MRS. ZEISLER DEAD; WAS NOTED PIANIST

Celebrated Fiftieth Anniversary of Her Career by Establishing Education Fund.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Mrs. Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler, who was for more than 50 years one of America's most noted pianists, died tonight at her home in the Cooper-Carlton Hotel here. Last October, when she returned to Chicago from a European trip, Mrs. Zeisler became ill of heart disease.

Born at Bailitz, Austrian Silesia, on July 16, 1866, her musical education began when she was hardly more than an infant and her first public appearance came when she was 9.

Two years ago Mrs. Zeisler, whom many critics referred to as "the greatest living pianist," decided that she would no longer use her reputation and her talents for personal gain, but would devote herself to promoting music for the masses and to aiding young musicians. She celebrated her fiftieth anniversary as a public figure by establishing the Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler fund for needy musicians. She was a believer in American training for American youth.

Piano Is Paderewski's Barometer of Health

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—When Ignace Paderewski, first president of Poland, would know whether his health is as good as ever he goes not to his doctor for a decision but to his piano.

"One uses his physical energy in music," he said before sailing on the Ile de France today, "and decline or illness registers nowhere so quickly. When I begin to play badly, then I shall need no doctor to tell me I am not well."

Paderewski boarded the liner after traveling here from Hawaii where he made his last concert appearance. He will return to America in December for a series of concerts.

"MOUNTAIN DEW" SEIZED

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Launching a drive to break up the flourishing liquor traffic in this mountain resort city, prohibition officers and deputy United States marshals today arrested sixteen men and women on charges of violating the prohibition law.

A quantity of "red, bottled in bond" liquor, as well as the ordinary "mountain dew" was seized.

Twenty prohibition officers, under R. Q. Merrick of Richmond, Va., director for the Virginia-North Carolina district, and six deputy marshals under United States Marshal Brownlow Jackson conducted the raids. Careful but secret preparation marked the raids and a dozen or more were arrested before word of the roundup became generally known.

Those arrested, all charged with "violation of the national prohibition act" include Crist Mashovris, Doris Lewis, Jerry Burrell, Ethel Lemon, alias Summers, Sumpter Johnson, Mamie Smith, Ila McJimpsey, Oscar Cooper, Herbert N. Hardwick, Gus Peterson, L. L. Grantham, Mabel Banks, Waivey Dillingham, Eugene Atkins, George Webb and Douglas Hunter.

Several of those arrested were employes of restaurants. Director Merrick said two pohibition officers, working "under cover" had been in Asheville two weeks or more working up evidence on which the arrests were made. He said that in at least one restaurant they had purchased "bonded" whisky openly from a waiter at $10 a quart.

At 6 o'clock it was announced at the office of Marshal Jackson that no arrests would be made tonight.

Raids made today were the culmination of three months of undercover work by special agents.

Gypsy Woman Held On Larceny Charge

Stella George, 22 years old, member of a gypsy band encamped at Relee, Va., was arrested last night by Headquarters Detective Paul Jones, and charged with two counts of larceny. Her arrest interrupted a celebration at the gypsy camp in observance of the recovery from injury of a child of one of the members.

The woman is alleged to have taken $65 from Sallie Campbell, colored, and her brother-in-law, Roosevelt Jenkins, after telling their fortune at their home at 3324 Sherman avenue northwest, Friday. After the arrest a group of gypsies is said to have gone to the Sherman avenue house and left $65 on the table.

Peppers, a porter at the Park Central Hotel here, was said by county officers to have to confessed early today that he strangled Mrs. Buck, a guest at the hotel, last Monday after an unsuccessful effort to assault her.

Sheriff Homer Russell and West Virginia State police obtained the statement from the negro. Peppers immediately was spirited to Chillicothe for safekeeping.

$20,000,000 A YEAR GUARDS U. S. FROM INCALCULABLE LOSS

That Amount Spent on Research Scientists' Work Pays Huge Benefits.

PREVENTS WHOLESALE DESTRUCTION OF LIFE

Yield of 50,000 Per Cent Estimated in Agricultural Industry Alone.

(By Associated Press.)

Uncle Sam pays the world's greatest insurance premium—$20,000,000 a year. In return he is protected against wholesale destruction of human life, crops and live stock.

That, virtually, is the view taken by Dr. A. F. Woods, director of scientific research, United States Department of Agriculture.

"Without the research scientist," Dr. Woods declared, "our present complex life would not be possible. Disease would wipe out cities. Gradual depletion of soil and inroads of pests would mean starvation for millions. Through the work of the research man our lives are made easier, and what we have is made to last longer. He is the foundation of an intricate structure."

Relative Cost Small.

Research achievements in this country, recorded in the history of little more than half a century, cost the Government about $10,300,000 a year. Closely affiliated experiment stations cost a similar sum, bringing the total to approximately $20,000,000 annually.

"This," Dr. Woods continues, "is an extremely small premium to pay for protection of an industry capitalized at approximately $60,000,000,000, with an annual gross income of $12,500,000,000. Careful analysis of results shows that for every dollar expended for research there is an annual yield of $500, or 50,000 per cent. In the Bureau of Dairy Industry alone an annual expenditure of $500,000 for the improvement and protection of milk and its products saves the country $200,000,000 a year. Hundreds of other projects in as many different fields are saving billions of dollars annually.

"Soils have been analyzed and reclassified; natural enemies of pests have been imported to eradicate them; clover has been saved from the seed midge by a slight modification in cultural practices; fruits have been saved from the San Jose scale; the house fly is being conquered; bark beetles are being eradicated; means have been found for contending with the grape worm; the alfalfa weevil is being conquered; special poisons have been concocted for rodents and predatory animals.

"A serum and virus treatment have made it possible to prevent hog cholera; fruit quality and yield has been improved by means of bud selection; methods and poisons have been discovered for combating insects, particularly the boll weevil, which threatened the entire cotton crip. Discovery of the part played by th common barberry bush in the life of black stem rust made it posible to stop this enemy of the wheat crop.

"Danger of yellow fever and malaria was minimized when science found it to be transmitted by mosquitoes. Science found carbon tetrachloride with which nearly 2,000,000 human patients have been treated for hookworm."

Germany's Memorial in Belgium Opposed

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Belgian newspapers say Germany wants to put up a war memorial for her dead in Flanders. The idea is meeting much opposition.

The plan is said to be to erect the commemorative pile near Dixmude, where nearly 300,000 German dead are buried not far from the allies' cemeteries.

Belgian criticisms make bitter reference to the ruined homes still to be rebuilt, and suggest that Germany defer spending money on a memorial in the enemy's country until the worthless marks she circulated in Belgium are taken up.

Prince George Plays Cello and Clarinet

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Prince George has earned a name as an "entertainer."

It was at one of the "Do-something" parties popularized by Mrs. Vernon Lewis, a New York hostess, in the hotel suite of the Maharajah of Rajpipla.

After dinner the maharajah announced that instead of the usual musical entertainment before the dancing began, ever one of his guests would have to contribute something toward the fete. The king's third son borrowed a cello and played a solo, then changed to a clarinet and did the same.

Pistol Slayers Held Favored in France

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—French humorists are beginning to insist that the safest way to commit murder is with a pistol. Most of those who have employed other means in recent years have gone to the guillotine, but a number who used pistols are still enjoying life and freedom.

Commenting upon this, Maurice Prax, of the Petit Parisien, says it has become an established custom that the revolver, in crimes of passion, is strictly "de rigueur, like evening clothes after dinner at the Deauville Casino."

"It is strictly forbidden to strangle one's wife," Prax says. "It is equally forbidden to chop a wife or a rival into bits, or to give them poison with their meals. But the revolver remains authorized—and recommended."

SHEFFIELD POLICE FORCE HANDSOME AND POLITE

PICKED FOR THEIR LOOKS

Sheffield, England, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Every policeman in this famous steel town will be a Beau Brummel or the chief constable will know why.

He has been urging the force for months to keep their manners brushed up and not to forget to say "sir" when they speak to civilians.

They already were considered one of the handsomest body of men in England. Regulations made them more than 6 feet tall and well proportioned. And a bobbie is given a final and hardest test of having a "policeman's face" to wear with the regulation helmet before he is given a job.

Taking everything into consideration, Sheffield was proud of its force. Then one day the chief constable saw one of his force report for duty with baggy knees in his pants. That upset the whole shift.

Now a steam press has been established at the central police station, and every bobbie in town has been ordered either to press his pants before going on duty or report to the awkward squad.

It probably will be an attraction to the women, this Beau Brummel police force, for many of its members are young bachelors, and there are 2,000,000 surplus women in England.

Newspaper wags prophesy that society women will be marrying their corner cops before this thing is over.

500,000 SONG BIRDS SHIPPED BY GERMANY

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Germany, the world's market for canary birds, annually ships about 500,000 of the little feathered warblers to America.

Since the beginning of the sixteenth century, when these songsters were brought from the Canary Islands, they have been carefully and extensively bred in Germany. Within the last century the "Harzer Rollers" in the Harz Mountains, have acquired world-wide fame.

Through careful breeding the original green color of the birds has been changed to a bright yellow, while incessant and careful training has markedly enhanced their original marvellous vocal qualities.

The features of the canary bird exhibitions regularly held in Berlin are the "song tournaments," at which the birds' vocal abilities are carefully appraised by expert breeders, who have made the surprising discoverey that the green birds—resembling in color their wild tropical progenitors—are frequently better singers than their yellow brethern.

Hindenburg to Get Estate of Ancestors

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Though President von Hindenburg has repeatedly expressed the wish that no gifts be showered upon him on his eightieth birthday, October 2, there is one gift which, it is believed, he will be pleased to accept.

The veterans' socities of Rosenberg County, in western Prussia, will present the soldier-president with the estate of his forefathers at Neudeck. The estate was given to Col. Otto Frederick von Hindenburg, an ancestor of the president, by Frederick the Great, at the conclusion of the second Silesian War (1744-1745). Hindenburg's grandfather, Otto Ludwig von Hindenburg, received the estate from his father in 1801.

At Neudeck the president's father, Robert, was born in 1816. He was the fourth son, however, and did not inherit the estate.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY DISCOVERY IN 1670 TO BE CELEBRATED

J. B. Payne and Other Notables to Attend Fete Near Front Royal, Va.

LINK OF NATIONAL ROAD TO BE STARTED

Linden Monument Will Be Dedicated; Caravan to Have 500 Automobiles.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 20.—Discovery of the Shenandoah Valley 257 years ago by John Lederer, an early English explorer, and the starting of work on the Shenandoah National Park highway first linking the John Marshall highway will be celebrated Wednesday at Applewood Orchard, between Front Royal and Linden, Va. In connection with the celebration a stone monument will be dedicated at Linden on the spot from which Lederer first viewed the valley.

John Barton Payne, of Washington, State Highway Commissioner Hugh B. Sproul, and other prominent speakers will make addresses. The celebration will include a meeting of the Shenandoah National Park Highway Association, at which officers and directors of the association will be elected. The celebration has aroused great interest in nearby sections of Virginia and a number of motor caravans are expected, including one from Arlington County, headed by Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers.

Address by A. G. Weaver.

A motor caravan which will be formed at Front Royal expected to number 500 automobiles will be led to the Applewood orchard by a band composed of three of the bands of the Shenandoah Valley. It will start at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, arriving at the orchard. A meeting of the Shenandoah National Park Highway Association will be called to order by Hugh E. Naylor, president of the association. The Rev. N. B. Harmon, jr., will deliver the invocation. A. G. Weaver, formerly a member of the State legislature, will give the address of welcome which will be responded to by Mrs. Rogers.

The address of welcome will be followed by election of officers and directors. Lunch will be served from noon until 1 o'clock. After lunch Col. S. R. Millar will read an historical sketch of the discovery of the Shenandoah Valley by John Lederer.

Speakers Are Announced.

Maj. E. W. R. Ewing, of Washington, will deliver a eulogy on Chief Justice John Marshall, in whose honor a coast-to-coast highway is being planned, of which this Shenandoah highway will be a link. Prof. C. L. Melton, principal of the Randolph-Macon Academy at Front Royal, will speak on the importance of the Shenandoah National Park highway to the people of the valley and of Washington.

Payne Among Speakers.

Other addresses will be made by Commissioner Sproul, John Barton Payne, Col. H. J. Benchoff and Eckenrode, State historian.

The exercises will end with the dedication of a granite monument erected on the property of Miss Mona Heflin at Linden, Va., commemorating the discovery of the valley by Lederer, August 24, 1670.

The marker is erected on the Warren County side of the boundary line between Fauquier and Warren Counties, and also marks the spot where the waters of the Blue Ridge divide. Water flowing to one side drains to the Potomac, and to the other side to the Shenandoah River.

The highway follows the Manassas Gap road, the oldest road through the Blue Ridge. Lederer was the first white man to open this route to trade. For more than 250 years this road has been the trade route from the valley to Washington because of its directness and lowness of grade. Over this route the farmers of the valley hauled their flour, bacon and whisky to Alexandria and Georgetown and received in exchange manufactured articles needed.

Trade Route of Indians.

It was the trade route of the Indian fur traders for nearly a century. Then as the valley was settled it became more and more a farm to market route by tented wagon. So important did this route become as an artery of commerce that a railroad was built through the Gap in 1854.

The automobile and truck are fast succeeding the locomotive now in hauling the farmers' trade to market, and with the completion of the road their produce once again will follow through the lowest point in the Blue Ridge to Washington and Eastern ports.

The new road will open a shorter way to the proposed Shenandoah National Park from Washington and the South. It will act in conjunction with several other highways, among them the Lee-Jackson Highway and the Lee Highway, in carrying the crowds of motorists who will visit the National Park when it is prepared for public use.

The highway will lead into Front Royal, one of the historic spots of Virginia, and to the battlefields surrounding the section. The John Marshall Highway will begin at the John Marshall Monument in Washington and will cross the continent when it is completed. States in the proposed route have been requested to cooperate in forming this important highway.

Westminster Yields George II Inscription

Translated it means "In the eighth year of King George II. Anno Domini 1735." This inscription refers to a restoration at Westminster Abbey at that time.

WOMAN ADMITS SLAYING FOR WHICH NEGRO DIED

POLICE SET HER FREE

Norton, Va., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Though confessing she had killed Bertie Lindsey in Knoxville, about five years ago, for which crime Maurice Mays, a rather prominent negro was electrocuted, Mrs. Sadie Mendil, 28, was released from jail here this afternoon when Chief of Police Vic Warren received a telephone message from the office of the Knoxville chief of police advising that the negro had been electrocuted and the records showed no charge against the woman.

At the time she declares she committed the murder, the woman said her name was Mrs. John Roddy; that she lived at Devonia, Tenn., and that dressed in man's clothes, and with her face blackened, she slipped into the Lindsey woman's home and killed her in bed because a few nights previous she had tracked her husband, a traveling man, to the Lindsey home, and had seen them together on the street.

She confessed the killing to Chief Warren and Acting Mayor Fuller, she said, because her guilt had "burned" her mind and heart. She appeared much relieved after the confession and left the jail telling Chief Warren she was going to Knoxville to see her 2-year-old son, who is living with friends.

Mrs. Mendil and her husband, a palm reader, arrived in Norton Wednesday, she going almost direct to the chief's office and volunteering the confession. Local officers who heard her story said she showed no signs of mental distress and are inclined to believe her story despite word from Knoxville to release her.

Geare, according to his wife, had been despondent over financial troubles for some time. She had not, however, she explained, had any intimation that he contemplated taking his life. He had been enjoying fairly good health, she said.

Geare has fought grimly to reestablish himself since the collapse of the Knickerbocker which buried not only the victims but most of its architect's hopes. He, however, is known to have felt that he could never recover from the crushing blow administered by the falling trusses of the theater's roof.

Up to the night in 1922, when in a blinding snowstorm he made his way to the wrecked theater, "Reggie" Geare saw life before him as a rosy vista down which he would journey to happiness. But when he arrived at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, that vista was cut off, and the journey was broken. Valiantly he worked to release the victims of the disaster from their imprisonment in the debris, and his intimate knowledge of the construction of the building was of great value in the rescue work. Though he aided in pulling scores from the debris, he could not extricate his own wrecked hopes, and they were buried, victims, too, of the city's worst disaster.

For a week after the catastrophe the young architect was in seclusion, and then he made his appearance to answer the processes of the law, which summoned him to the coroner's investigation into the five-score deaths.

With a ghostly and haunted look the young architect appeared before the coroner's jury in the District Building, and there on the witness stand sought to defend himself from imputations that the designing of the theater had been faulty. The jury took testimony for more than a week, during which Geare's soul was wracked, while his body sat humped in a chair in the board room.

The jury ended its deliberations by finding that the theater victims had met their deaths because of faults in the construction and design of the building, and held the architect and others connected with its building for the action of the grand jury. With that verdict, a virtual "finis" was written on the career of Geare. A short time later the grand jury indicted him and four others on charges of manslaughter. Though none was ever convicted, the indictment sealed their fate in the public mind.

Geare fought to reestablish himself, but the feeling of the public over the Knickerbocker disaster downed all of his efforts, and since that fatal January night Reginald W. Geare was unable to lift himself above the shattered timbers of the once beautiful theater.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD TO RECONSIDER MERGER

Four-System Program to Be Revised at New Conference, It Is Said.

REJECTS PRESENT PLAN

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The Baltimore Sun tomorrow states in a copyrighted story from its correspondent in Philadelphia that officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad are confident a conference of railroad executives will be called in the near future to reconsider consolidation. The officials said, the article states, that if any agreement is reached it must revise materially the four-system plan now pending.

Not only must the present plan be revised as to major details involving additional lines and outlets to the Pennsylvania System, the article says, but its entire basic structure must be rearranged to permit a five-trunk line system instead of four between the Atlantic seaboard and the Mississippi crossings.

The Pennsylvania rejects the proposition of the Baltimore & Ohio, the New York Central and the Nickel Plate, which companies planned the original consolidation program. It maintains that the Pennsylvania System at present is complete, and that it needs no additions to enable it to compete with other roads.

The article further states that the Pennsylvania refused two years ago to permit the four-system plan to be presented by unanimous consent to the Interstate Commerce Commission because the three trunk lines failed to award to it at least three important links. Provisions for what the Pennsylvania believes to be vital needs, and consideration of the Loree fifth trunk line plan, must be embodied in any new plan that may be presented if it is to be a success.

The important additions to its system which the Pennsylvania will insist upon when any scheme is presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission are, the article says:

Ownership or joint control of the Lackawanna, so traffic congestion on the present main line of the Pennsylvania from Harrisburg, Pa., to Trenton, N. J., can be relieved.

None of these demands were included in the four-system scheme, the article declares.

Mountain Children's School Is to Continue

Burnsville, N. C., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Stanley McCormick School is saved. This unique vocational education institution, for 30 years holding open the door of opportunity to hundreds of boys and girls, will be continued, President LeRoy F. Jackson announced today.

Decision to continue the work in the Burnsville School was reached this afternoon when the board of managers announced that two-thirds of the $60,000 needed to run the school the next three years was in sight and that classes would start September 12. Plans were made at the meeting for incorporating the institution, for pressing the campaign to insure the permanency of the school, and looking to appointment of a financial agent to complete the $60,000 three-year fund.

Tabloid Opera Now Provided in Germany

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Darius Milhaud, French composer, set a new record for brevity in opera during the recent "Modern Chamber Musical Festival" at Baden-Baden. He produced an opera of eight scenes, each of which went over the boards in exactly one minute.

Milhaud's nearest competitor was Paul Hindemith, of Frankfort, one of man most prominent of younger German composers, whose operatic sketch took about 11½ minutes. Two other German composers, Kurt Weill, of Berlin, and Ernst Toch, of Mannheim, also demonstrated the possibilities of short opera by rendering works 19 and 29 minutes long, respectively.

Welshman Can Speak Only Native Language

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—David Jones, of Triael Blaenpennal, Llanilar, Cardiganshire, has proved that there is at least one Welshman who can speak only Welsh.

Jones, brought before the king's bench division in London, began giving his testimony in Welsh, to the confusion of the court. He failed to understand questions put to him by the judge, and a Welsh interpreter had to be called.

Of recent years there has been a concerted revival of the Welsh language throughout Wales, but hitherto Londoners have been unwilling to believe there are Welshmen who know only the language of their fathers.

POLICE CHIEF TO RESIGN AFTER DOUBLE SLAYING

TWO NOW HELD IN JAIL

Williamson, W. Va., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Evan Hall, chief of one of the factions of the Williamson police force, announced today he would resign and further allayed apprehension over the possibility of another clash of the rival groups of officers. Two policemen met death yesterday in a gun fight with two officers of the opposing faction over a question of authority.

Hall was chief of the "new" force named by city council last June in an effort to depose the other force backed by Mayor W. F. Hatfield. Julius Lawson and James Kirkpatrick, among officers supported by council, are held in jail in connection with the gun fight, which cost the lives of D. W. Deerfield and Harvey McGuire, who were aligned with Mayor Hatfield.

With quiet in the city fully restored, Williamson civic leaders began plans to petition the next legislature for a change in the city charter that would avert possibility of such a situation again arising from differences between the mayor and a bipartisan council.

Until yesterday's clash both forces had been patroling the streets and making arrests, but since the disturbance the remaining members of the "new" force have not appeared and police duty has been performed only by members of the other force.

Auto Steeplechasing Is New French Sport

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Automobile steeplechasing is a new sport shortly to be demonstrated in a match between a horse and Andre Mercier in an automobile.

Mercier, in trials, has sent his car over the jumps with ease and without accident. His biggest jump recently was 67 feet, during which his car rose 7 feet above the ground.

Mercier jumps by driving at speed up an incline, as has often been done in circus performances. He has calculated the angles and speeds so nicely that he believes he can make the series of hurdles in a race without great difficulty.

Craze for Pet Cats Sweeps Over Berlin

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A craze for cats is noticeable in Berlin. The dog once had the monopoly. Even the poorest people cheerfully paid the high tax of 60 marks for the first dog, 90 for the second and 120 for the third. Pussy has come into her own since the recent cat exhibition, at which very fancy prices were paid for animals rated as rarely beautiful specimens.

Advertising has led most cat-owners to pay more attention to their possessions in the hope that he or she may turn out to be a valuable "half-Angora" or "half-Maltese" or half something else, for which such desirable sums were paid.

Indian Scientist Says Flowers Fall in Love

London, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Flowers have hearts and often fall in love, says Sir Jagadis Bose, Indian scientist, who is lecturing in London.

Sir Jagadis says he hopes to prove that the present teachings of botany are far from correct. He says he can illustrate the effect of drugs on flowers and trees and show how the death of one flower may cause another to pine away and die.

ROUMANIAN EDUCATORS TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

TRIP OVER U. S. PLANNED

Washington will be host to a group of about 30 prominent Roumanian educators, public men and students who will arrive tomorrow evening for a visit of several days in the Capital, the first stop on an official "good-will" tour of the United States.

A similar group visited Washington last summer as guests of Georgetown University. A committee was appointed at a recent meeting at the Cosmos Club to arrange for entertainment of the visitors who will arrive tomorrow. This committee consists of Prince Mahail R. Sturdza, Counselor of the Roumanian Legation; George Boncesco, Financial Counselor of the Legation; Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown Foreign Service School; Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University, and William W. Bride, corporation counsel of the District.

Tuesday at 1 p. m. the visitors will be the luncheon guests of Dr. Walsh at Georgetown College. The Roumanian Minister being absent from Washington, his countrymen will be entertained by members of the legation staff.

Upon leaving Washington it is understood that the party will visit the great industrial centers of the country and make an intensive research of American financial and business methods as well as the educational system of the country. The last visit of Roumanian educators did much to cement good will between the two countries, and since then an exchange of visits between educational groups has been arranged.

AID ALREADY SOUGHT OF HINDENBURG FUND

Birthday, Date of Distribution, Still More Than Two Months Away.

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Though President von Hindenburg's eightieth birthday is still two and a half months off, his offices are flooded with requests for support from the Hindenburg birthday fund.

The fund was started in June. The underlying idea is that those desirous of showing their affection for the venerable head of the republic should refrain from showering gifts upon him, but should contribute instead to a special Hindenburg birthday fund, the proceeds of which are to be distributed among indigent war veterans and others in dire distress. Banks and other public institutions are accepting contributions to the fund.

Contributions have been rather meager in proportion to the number of requests for support. The president's secretary has been compelled to issue a public statement that all begging letters received now must go into the wastebasket.

Pretty Paris Models Seem Close at Hand

Paris, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Beauty standards for Paris mannequins have been so raised in the last few years that some of the girls would now do credit to the first row of a Ziegfeld Follies. Most of the customers, therefore, approve the closer view which is afforded them by the greater intimacy of the modern showrooms.

One dressmaker has ripped out the little theater which has been a characteristic of his salons, and substituted a long low runway, which permits closer view of the styles. The change, made at the sacrifice of 50 seats, is necessitated, he says, by the new models, who require very close scrutiny for maximum appreciation.

'SOB STUFF' CALLED SERIOUS MENACE TO NATION'S FARMERS

NEW FEDERAL POLICY ON PUBLIC LAND URGED

Williamstown, Mass., Aug 20 (A.P.).—Untable farming conditions throughout the country are giving rise to a constant outpouring of "sob stuff" that can in no way help the situation, declared Walter S. Case, New York investment banker, before the round table on American agricultural policy at the Institute of Politics today.

"Sob stuff is what is the matter with the United States," said Mr. Case, "and may end up by destroying American civilization. Anyone who can't make a living plays cry baby."

Mr. Case deplored the "basic assumption" that it is desirable for people to live on farms. Unsuccessful farmers, he said, should turn their hands to something else but if they persisted in the pursuit of agriculture then they should be educated to invest part of their money in something besides farm lands in which they were bound to lose.

Germany, to continue her compliance to the terms of the Dawes plan, must work out a new tax system, have her industry bolstered by froeign capital and be given a fair chance at world trade, said Dr. Peter P. Reinhold, former German finance minister, in the fourth of his five lectures before the institute tonight.

There is no doubt that Germany can and will meet the plan terms for the time being, said Dr. Reinhold, but, he asked, "Will Germany be in the long run in a position to raise the necessary sums?"

Urges New Land Policy.

The adoption of a scientific constructive land settlement program to relieve agricultural ills was urged by Nils A. Olsen, assistant chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Department of Agriculture, in a discussion of land policies as they relate to farm prosperity.

Much of the farmers' trouble has been due to Federal and State land policies, which stimulated unwise extension of agricultural production, he contended. He outlined a land policy designed to help place agriculture on a stable, profitable basis, claiming such a policy should prevent the present great reserve of potential crop land from being brought into use so rapidly as to cause chronic surpluses from farm products.

The outgrown homestead policy with its stimulus to land settlement should be abandoned, our reforestation policy should be expanded and a system of regulation applied to the uncontrolled open range of the West, he asserted. Reclamation of swamp lands which can not compete with lands now in use, and Federal and State activity concerned with shaping public land policies should be coordinated, he maintained.

G. V. Portus, of the University of Australia, declared the Australian farmer to be in the same straits as the American farmer. High tariffs, high production costs, high land values and a surplus which can not be profitably sold in world markets present an agricultural problem similar to our own, he said.

South America's Problem.

Central America faces profound social changes in the near future, Arthur Ruhl, correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune, who recently returned from that section, told the institute today.

Quite aside from political revolutions, he said, the big and tragic revolution there, for which nobody is to blame and which no one can stop, is the imminent industrial revolution. He pointed to the introduction of high-priced American goods in countries where peons work for 25 cents a day as a drive toward this social change.

Ruhl deplored what he termed American brusqueness in diplomatic dealings with the sensitive Central Americans. "I do not think our dealings have been hostile or malign," he said. "Our intentions have been good, but the carrying out of them is often inept and our manners often atrocious. In view of our propinquity and position, we ought to be ready to lean over backward rather than take a line in our policy toward Central America which would seem to the rest of the world unjust, unsportsmanlike."

W. L. Moffatt & Co., investment bankers, have purchased the McLean Building, 1522 K street northwest, it was announced yesterday by the C. W. Simpson Co., which handled the transaction. The price involved was said to be approximately $150,000.

The McLean Co., of which O. B. McLean is president, will move about September 15 to the Investment Building, where they have leased a suite of offices. The investment company, now located in the Hill Building, will take possession of their new home as soon as the real estate company vacates. This is in line with the plan of the concern to establish offices in other cities. The firm underwrites investment trust issues and participates in distributing general market issues, bank and insurance stocks.

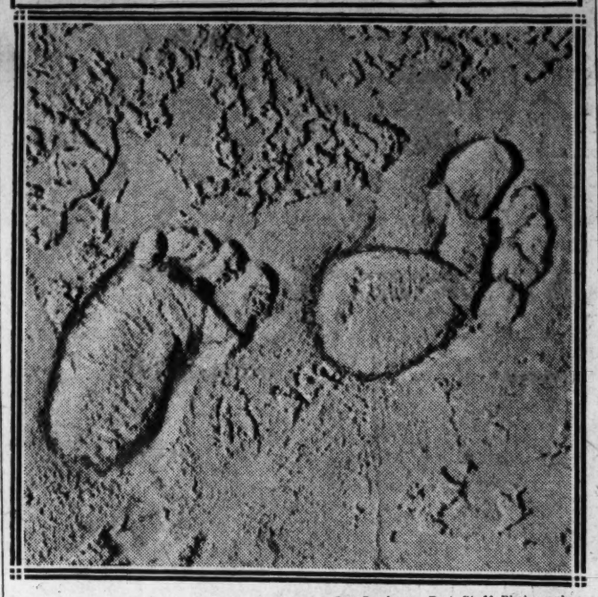
IMPRINT OF BABY FOOT MYSTIFIES



Joe Jamieson, Post Staff Photographer.

A baby's footprints, deeply impressed in a newly-plastered wall, are providing a thrilling mystery in the Bond Building, Fourteenth street and New York avenue northwest. It is a mystery just too cute for anything, but just the same it is a mystery

The wall on the seventh floor was plastered about a week ago, and the next morning the tootsy-prints were discovered. They are about three feet from the floor, and are about one-quarter of an inch deep. Evidently the child that made them is about 6 months old.

Now how did they get there?

One wag in the Bond Building has suggested that they were made by a future "human fly"—one of those persons destined to climb buildings and go in for nonstop sitting honors on flagpoles. However——

A more serious-minded group believes that a mother with a baby in her arms was standing near the wall, and that the baby let loose with a kick and drove its feet into the plaster.

If this be so, football and soccer coaches would do well to follow the career of the youngster; for any six-month-old baby that can do what this one did to that wall is going to pack a lot of punishment in his matured toes.

But the schools of speculation do not end here. Still another group—and this also is made up of serious-minded people—thinks that some fond mother, or, perhaps, father, deliberately planted the child's feet in the plaster. But why should anybody want to do this? Well, why do people sit on flag poles, enter coffee-drinking contests and try to see who can stuff the most chewing gum into their mouths?

There has been a lot of theorizing, but nobody has yet made a move toward a solution. Why not call in Detective Sergt. Fred Sandberg, the headquarters fingerprint and footprint expert, and let him try his skill? After making the impressions, he might compare them with those in the hospitals which footprint babies for identification purposes.

Anyway, it is a mystery that rates the adjective baffling. Perhaps the best way to bring the little culprit from under cover would be to have some enterprising merchant offer a pair of baby shoes as a reward.

RECORD FETE IS PLANNED AT ST. ANTHONY'S CHURCH

Annual Event Will Be Held on Lawn Friday and Saturday.

PEAK OF SOCIAL YEAR

Preparations are nearing completion for the annual lawn fete of St. Anthony's Church, which will be held Friday and Saturday on the church lawn, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast.

The fete planners are confident that the cleebration this year will be the greatest in the 30 years of the church's existence. G. H. Yocum is chairman of the general committee. The committees are composed of the following:

George Bradley, Miss Ida Madigan and Miss C. Brennan, publicity; S. Hart and Mrs. A. P. Bowers, dancing; Miss Florence Yocum, candy; P. J. Beaudet and Miss Catherine McHigh, grocery stand; John Bresnahan and T. Lucas, straw rides; Mrs. C. Lynch, "hot dog" stand; Miss Irene Doran and Mrs. J. B. Parker, fancy table; William McCord, stand construction and soft drinks; ladies' auxiliary to Catholic Boys' Club, fish pond, and J. E. Weeks, miscellaneous.

During the 30 years of existence of the church the pastorship has changed hands six times. The church was founded by the Rev. H. Hyvernat and the Rev. Father DeWoulf, teachers at Catholic University. The present pastor is the Rev. Patrick E. Conroy, who succeeded Father Pasquale DiPaola. Each year the lawn fete has been the outstanding social function of the parish and keen competition to surpass the celebration of the previous year always is attempted.

HONG KONG IS VISITED BY SERIOUS TYPHOON

Shipping Menaced and 400 Horses Are Stampeded to Save Lives.

Hong Kong, China, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A typhoon hit Hong Kong this morning. Trams and ferries to Kowloon, opposite Hong Kong, stopped running and shipping was held up. Naval men were sent to man a China navigation company steamer in Kowloon Bay without officers, owing to a strike which started recently.

Fearful the stables of various military camps at Kowloon might collapse, the authorities loosed nearly 400 horses and mules, many of which stampeded along the Nathan and Chatham roads.

The wind was increasing in force as this dispatch was filed, and blinding torrents of rain were falling.

The British steamship Ranalpindi, riding at anchor in the harbor, was blown to within a cable length of the Japanese steamer Kinyo Maru. A collision was narrowly averted when the Ranalpindi dropped a second anchor and used her propellers to keep herself in position. She was only 400 yards from the sea wall.

Man Asks $10,000 for Slander.

Slander is charged against Daniel A. Healy in a suit filed yesterday in Circuit Court by Richard A. Harman, Munsey Building, who demands $10,000 damages. Harman appears as his own attorney and alleges that in July, 1926, Healy, in New York City, uttered remarks reflecting on his integrity.

Y. M. C. A. AIDS VICTIMS OF MISSISSIPPI FLOOD

WORK WILL TAKE A YEAR

The Young Men's Christian Association of Washington is joining with other associations of the country in a program of rehabilitation among Mississippi flood sufferers, including extension of aid to more than 600 churches destroyed by the flood, according to an announcement by Hugh A. Thrift, president of the local Y. M. C. A.

A flood relief fund has been raised here for this purpose, and Y. M. C. A. executives in the South have sent out an appeal for more money, it is stated. Needs of the desolated communities in the Mississippi Valley will engage the energies of Y. M. C. A State committees in that region for another year, the local organization has been advised by R. H. King, Y. M. C. A. regional executive for the South.

"Although on the rim of financial extinction or grave impairment for years," Mr. King reported, "the State committees of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas, and the Greenville (Miss.) association have carried on as splendid a program of emergency service as the organization has ever known. Y. M. C. A. flood service includes the best adaptation of its war service. It has been able to command the services of 20 laymen without salary for every employed officer engaged. Thus the results have been out of all proportion to the special fund asked from the associations for this work.

"Numerous needs in the flood section will engage us for a year. It is estimated that more than 400 white and 200 colored churches have been swept away, and that the congregations will not be able for a year to pay pastors' salaries. It is important that all associations outside the flood area, which have promised financial aid shall extend this cooperation promptly and generously."

99.9 Per Cent of U. S. War Dead Identified

Latest official figures of the War Department show that 99.9 per cent of Americans killed in the World War have been identified.

There were 77,771 deaths in the American Expeditionary Forces, including those on transports, and the number of graves registered to June 30 was 77,701, or 99.9 per cent of the total deaths.

Of these, 46,284 have been returned to the United States; 605 were sent to foreign countries for private burial, and 30,812 remained in Europe.

Of the number left in Europe buried in American cemeteries, four are to be returned to the United States; 29,880 are buried in France, gium, while 123 have, at the request of their families, been left undisturbed where they were originally buried. Of bodies returned to the United State, 14.2 per cent are in national cemeteries.

CHAPLINS' DIVORCE AGREEMENT TERMS REMAIN CONCEALED

CASE WILL BE CALLED FOR TRIAL ON MONDAY

Press Makes Elaborate Plans for What May Be Routine Proceeding.

Special to The Washington Post.

Los Angeles, Aug. 20.—Reports that Lita Grey Chaplin and Charlie Chaplin had, through attorneys, signed a financial and divorce trial compromise last night circulated here today. Neither side made a point-blank confirmation nor a point-blank denial that a settlement compact exists.

E. T. McMurray, uncle and chief counsel for Mrs. Chaplin, said that he could not give out anything as to the hour when a property settlement, if any, will be announced. McMurray said "there is nothing definite yet."

Persons familiar with the recent moves of Chaplin and Chaplin's attorneys expressed the opinion that Chaplin's financial arrangement with his wife will not be regarded as a certainty until the divorce case is called for trial in Judge Guerin's court at 10 o'clock Monday.

Chaplin Wants Publicity.

Chaplin, it is said, wishes to make public the terms of his property settlement agreement, in order to demonstrate how generously he is providing for his wife and two children.

Mrs. Chaplin's lawyer is quoted as withholding consent and preventing a joint public statement.

Lawyers for Charlie spent the morning in conference. Chaplin was not with them. He was said to be "out with friends," and he did not visit his legal headquarters.

Mrs. Chaplin slept until noon in her husband's mansion in Beverly Hills, where she has made her home.

Like hers and Chaplin's advisers, Lita was said to be elated at the prospect of amicably closing her eight-month controversy with her husband and receiving $850,000.

Elaborate Press Plans.

Thirty or forty newspapers, which geographically represent the country from the Atlantic to San Diego, have filed requests for space in Judge Walter Guerin's courtroom. Linemen spent the day in stringing news service telegraph wires into the courtroom. The jury box has been converted into a press stand, by the judge's permission, since the Chaplin case is to be a nonjury trial.

In spite of the extensive preparations, attaches of the court who have consulted with attorneys on both sides, express the opinion that the case, instead of proving a long, drawn-out legal battle, will become a routine compromise and may be decided in a half day on Monday.

Father and Daughters Drowned From Truck

Pittsburgh, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A father and two daughters were drowned today when their automobile truck left the road and dropped into a creek. The victims, Michael Antion, and the girls, Virginia, 13, and Sylvia, 9, were pinned under the machine in the water and were drowned. They had started out to hunt berries. Antion leaves a wife and four other children.

Miss Stoner Won't Discuss Reported Troth to Former Secretary of State.

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Winifred Sackville Stoner, erstwhile infant prodigy, agrees with her mother that nursery rhymes are all wrong, but she apparently has no objection to riddles.

The mother and daughter sailed on the Ile de France today to pursue their search for juvenile genius abroad, and the younger woman was asked concerning persistent reports that she is going to marry Bainbridge Colby, former Secretary of State.

"I don't care to discuss that," she said.

"Will you deny it?" she was asked.

"I wouldn't ca to do that," she replied.

She then told ship reporters that "when a woman marries for the first time she wears white, the second time gray, and the third blue; when I come back I will be wearing blue."

The reporters had to content themselves with that, which sounded as if it meant a great deal and which might very well mean nothing at all.

GUATEMALA AWARDED DEAD REBEL'S ESTATE

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Superior Judge Frank H Dunne rendered a judgment today in favor of the Republic of Guatemala against the estate of Manuel Estrada Cabrera, Central American revolutionist, who died in exile in London recently

The sum for which the Guatemalan government sued represented reparations for raids, lootings and confiscation of property in that country by Cabrera, when he established a brief dictatorship in 1913.

When it was learned that Cabrera owened property in San Francisco valued at $27,000, Guatemala instituted suit against W. J. Hines, public administrator, who was in charge of the estate. Frederick W. Crawford, attorney for the Guatemalan government, declared that only the value of the local property could be recovered.

Texas Rancher Plans To Sell Sheep by Mail

Easterling, who for years was secretary of the S. M. S. ranch, originated the successful selling of cattle by mail. He plans to standardize the lambs he is to offer, and to sell none that do not weigh from 55 to 60 pounds and are in good condition.

Death-Bed Words of Hero Of Coast Guard Will Live

"Could Not Throw Up My Hands," He Said, Dying After Battle—Officials Declare Sentence Will Go Down to Posterity.

A sea fight witnessed only by the silent deep, ennobled on one side by heroic conception of duty, made gruesome on the other by treacherous murder, was told of in an official report to Coast Guard headquarters here yesterday on the encounter between coast guardsmen and desperate smugglers, August 7, off the coast of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

As a result of the encounter, two coast guardsmen and one secret service agent are dead and one coast guardsman is wounded. The smugglers, however, were overpowered, although they had every advantage they could have dreamed of.

But as a result of the encounter, too, the Coast Guard has a new hero, and perhaps a new slogan of duty. For one of those graves made by the fight is filled by a man who died because of lofty conception of duty, and who, but for that lofty conception, would now be alive.

So far as Victor A. Lamby was concerned, the standards of Leonidas at Thermopylae and of Davy Crockett at the Alamo were Coast Guard law. To him, these high standards were embodied in the oath he took on entering the service.

Lamby, mortally wounded in the encounter, died four days later in the Fort Lauderdale Hospital. He was only 25 years old. His home was in Braddock, Pa., and he leaves there his mother, who, it is said, was largely dependent on him for support.

He left as a heritage to the Coast Guard, however, a saying which Coast Guard heads here intend to preserve as representing the very highest ideals of duty. On his death-bed, he made the following half-apologetic explanation of his part in the fight:

"I did not do much, but I could not throw up my hands."

That he "did not do much" was explained by the fact that he was at the mercy of the smuggler. But that "I could not throw up my hands" was his own conception of what his oath meant, and of his duty. Coast Guard officials here are matching this statement with "Don't give up the ship," "We have just begun to fight," and other similar sayings that have inspired American soldiers and sailors to valiant deeds.

Therefore, although Lamby is dead, they are determined that his memory, and his death-bed words, shall live.

There is the barest suspicion that Lamby was not thinking of setting a high standard for others to emulate when he made the statement. That is usually the case in such instances.

He was merely trying to express how he felt at the crucial moment. It was from the heart. He simply could not bring himself to throw up his hands and surrender to an outlaw of the seas. As a fighter of the United States Coast Guard it wasn't possible—not with him. He died first.

However, there is another instance of Lamby's natural heroism in the story, and the other shows as great and lofty a nature. It is a thrilling story, a true tale of the sea.

The Coast Guard patrolboat CG-249, with a crew of seven men and one secret service agent as passenger, was 40 miles off the coast of Fort Lauderdale. A craft with a cargo of rum, manned by two smugglers, had just been captured. Coast guardsmen have found that these smugglers usually are desperadoes of the worst type. They will run rum or they will smuggle other commodities—do anything, as a rule, for gain. Their predecessors of the Spanish Main were not more desperate than they. The two captured on the craft in question happened to have a cargo of rum.

The rum craft had been tied to the patrolboat, and the crew, with the exception of Motor Machinist's Mate Lamby and Boatswain Sidney C. Sanderlin, officer in charge, were unloading the cargo of rum into the patrolboat.

According to the official report, Boatswain Sanderlin had searched the two prisoners, and had taken them to the cabin.

When searched, the prisoners had no weapons on their persons. This, in a way, disarmed suspicion. However, members of the crew unloading the cargo, who were at the time unarmed, recalled afterward that one of the men, just before stepping from the rum craft to the patrolboat, apparently stumbled backward, catching himself on one hand. But they attributed this to the rolling of the sea.

At the cabin, Boatswain Sanderlin started to notify the base at Fort Lauderdale of the capture, as he was required to do. He had no sooner put on the headgear of the radio communication set than the prisoner who had been seen to stumble drew a revolver and shot him dead.

According to the story, the prisoner then started toward the crew. Lamby, who was in the bilge, heard the shot and rushed to the scene. He was ordered to throw up his hands, but refused, and instead tried to arm himself. He was shot, and fell back into the bilge near the engines.

The gunman then held the crew at bay on the rum craft, while his companion took the slain commanding officer's gun and went down into the bilge where Lamby lay wounded. He commanded Lamby to "tear the gas lines apart," according to the story, to permit the gasoline to flow on the floor. Lamby refused.

The result, according to the story, was that he was kicked, beaten, threatened. The smuggler thrust the gun in his face, but when Lamby refused again to tear the gas lines apart, he relented, and proceeded to tear them apart himself. Then he struck a match, according to the story, and threw it on the floor.

Meanwhile, the first smuggler had kept the crew at bay. He had, according to the story, told the men to say their prayers, assuring them that the patrolboat would be destroyed by fire, and that they themselves would be shot one by one into the Gulf Stream. All evidence, therefore, would be destroyed. And the remarkable thing is that he might have kept his word except for just one slight slip, one brief turn of the head, an occurrence on the same order as the stumbling, which the survivors of the crew believe was purposely to obtain the revolver.

When the second smuggler appeared from the bilge, where he had thrown the match on the floor, apparently convinced, according to the story, that he had fired the patrolboat, the two boarded the rum craft. The first smuggler obtained, it is said, another revolver, and kept the crew at bay, doubly armed.

His companion then attempted to pull away from the supposedly burning patrolboat. However, the rum-craft engine failed to start.

Considerable difficulty was experienced. Finally, the first smuggler grew impatient and turned his head to ask his companion what was the matter. That turn of the head probably saved the crew their lives. Immediately they jumped him, and although he fired both guns into their midst, killing Robert K. Webster, of Washington, Secret Service agent, who was on the boat, and wounding Seaman J. D. Hollingsworth, he was overpowered and his weapons taken from him. The other smuggler rushed up to the deck, but was struck on the head by one of the men and knocked or thrown overboard. However, and this is another occurrence of which the Coast Guard is proud, the men did not allow him to drown. They threw him a line and pulled him aboard, and the two men were now at the mercy of the crew whose companions they had killed, but who brought them to shore unharmed. The patrolboat did not catch on fire. But the rum craft did, and was destroyed.

The Coast Guard intends to commend every member of the crew, it is said.

BERLIN HEAVYWEIGHT TO LAY ASIDE GLOVES

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Hans Breitenstraeter, until recently German heavyweight champion, will soon exchange his boxing gloves and togs for a smart cut-away and spats. Then, in German fashion, he will bow and say "Mahlzeit" to the patrons of his father-in-law's restaurant on historic Wilhelmstrasse.

"Blond Hans," as he is familiarly known, was the idol of German flappers. The race for his heart was won by the pretty daughter of Paul Lauer, proprietor of "Lauer's," a few steps from Unter den Linden. The restaurant has achieved historic fame through the fact that, during the revolution of 1918, President Ebert and members of the German cabinet singled out "Lauer's" as the only public restaurant to which they deemed it prudent to go during those troubled times.

First Visitors Will Arrive Today for Sessions Starting Tuesday.

H. K. THAW IS EXPECTED TO MARCH IN PARADE

Lower Rail and Bus Fares Will Go Into Effect Tomorrow.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
124 N. Patrick St., Alexandria, Va.

With the completion yesterday of the decorations on King street and Washington street, virtually the last detail of the arrangements for the forty-first annual convention of the Virginia State Firemen's Association, which will open here Tuesday morning, was completed The many hundreds of colored lights which have been strung on King street were given a 10-minute test last night and found to work satisfactorily. Flags and banners across the streets mark the line of the parade which will be held Thursday afternoon, and the reviewing stand will be erected on the west side of Washington street at Princess street.

The first contingent of the visiting firemen will arrive today, and it is expected each incoming train will bring others. All hotel and boarding accommodations in the city have been reserved for the visitors, and many of the delegates and their families will be entertained in private homes.

The work of the local reception committee will begin Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, with the registration and assigning to quarters of the delegates. This will be done at the George Mason Hotel, and at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening there will be a band concert at Prince and Washington streets, and at 9 o'clock block dancing will start.

The first business session of the convention will be held at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning in the auditorium of the Elks' Home. At 10:30 o'clock the women attending will be taken to Mount Vernon, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the delegates will leave on a sightseeing trip to Washington and vicinity. The automobiles and buses for this party will leave the George Mason Hotel. At 8 o'clock in the evening there will be a band contest, for which prizes will be awarded, and at 10 o'clock another block dance on the 100 block South Washington street.

The main feature of the convention will be the parade, starting at 1:30 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, which will be followed by a barbecue on the grounds of the municipal swimming pools, at which it is estimated 10,000 people will be served. At 9 o'clock Thursday evening there will be another block dance, and a burlesque parade.

The main events for Friday will be reel races and a swimming contest, and at 4 o'clock a foot race on the high school track.

The local committee will place a memorial wreath on the grave of Col. Kenneth W. Ogden, former chief of the fire department, in remembrance of the second anniversary of his death.

The Charley Rouss fire company of Winchester, of which Harry K. Thaw is a member, will bring 160 men to the convention, including the crack Winchester band. Thaw, it is understood, will come with the company and will march in the parade.

Beginning tomorrow reduced rates will be effective on both the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway and the Alexandria Barcroft and Washington bus lines. On the former the rates have been 40 cents round trip and 24 cents one way between Washington and Alexandria, and this will now be 25 cents round trip and 20 cents one way, while the rate will be reduced proportionately to intermediate stations. The bus line will sell tokens for a 25 cent round trip, or continue the present fare of 15 cents each when tokens are not purchased.

Delegates from Alexandria Lodge, No. 758, B. P. O. Elks, who will attend the State meeting of Elks in Fredericksburg tomorrow and Tuesday, will include Carl M. Rothmond, Harry Hinken, Elliott F. Hoffman, James Reece Duncan, William Baader, R. Oscar Robbins, Jerome Kaufmann, Herman Friedlander and John W. Tulloch, and Robert South Barrett, of this city, grand esteemed leading knight of the national body, and the Rev. Edgar Carpenter, of this city, State chaplain, will also attend.

Mrs. Edna Daniels, wife of John Daniels, of 1672 East Ninth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was cut and bruised yesterday morning when an automobile, driven by her husband, and another car were in collision on the River road between this city and Washington. She was taken to the Alexandria Hospital and treated by Dr. P. B. Pullman. Mrs. Florence Nutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniels, also was cut and bruised, but was able to leave the hospital after treatment. Mr. Daniels, who was driving the car, and two small children of Mrs. Nutt, occupants, were uninjured. The party had left Washington shortly before the accident, en route to Florida.

The Alexandria Light Infantry, or Company I, 183rd Infantry, Virginia National Guard, which has been in camp at Virginia Beach for the last two weeks, under command of Capt. Cameron Roberts, will return today.

Union services will be held this evening in Trinity Methodist Church, with R. E. Crist as the speaker.

The Rev. G. W. Shipley, of Herndon, Va., will address the Westminster Men's Bible class at the Second Presbyterian Church this morning.

How About a Ticket, Mister

By THEODORE TILLER

(Comment upon or republication of this exclusive interview forbidden except by express consent of the author or Mr. Sashweight.)

J. Lester Sashweight, of Mount Pleasant, who comments weekly upon current matters, was highly nervous when approached by this regular interviewer yesterday. Standing by his flivver, he confessed that he felt like a punctured spare tire.

"I have again lived through my annual scare," explained Mr. Sashweight. "Each year I forget there is going to be a baseball game between the policemen and the firemen, with the District Commissioners, the police and fire chiefs, and the inspectors, captains, lieutenants and sergeants acting as cheer leaders for their respective teams. However, it is my understanding that the Commissioners have to be rather neutral. Partiality would affect the playing morale of one team or the other, and might deter the brave lads from seeking promotion or an increase in pay.

"Anyway, I was in my office today and fairly at peace with the world, excepting my creditors. Through the door there suddenly walked a big policeman. He seemed one of the biggest policemen I ever saw, and as his bulk occupied the doorway I shivered and sank far down in my chair. When I finally arose to greet him my legs were unsteady, my face had reddened and I dare say my face bore a scared and haunted expression. At that moment the third degree would have caused me to confess to depredations I had and had not committed.

"I inherited a fear of cops and constables. I am told that my reverened grandfather once went to law about something, and the case dragged through the rural courts for years. In fact, he had two rumpuses with the sheriffs and constables and the law. There were few policemen in those days, but the latter-day minions of the law are just as terrifying to me.

"As I remember the tale, my grandfather was first proceeded against by an irate neighbor who held that a certain butting billygoat, the property of my ancestor, was a public nuisance and a neighborhood menace. There was also complaint about a fence line between their respective properties.

"How this ligitation was ended I do not know, but there is instilled in me an inherent desire to go on the other side of the street when I see a cop, although most of them are friendly fellows. Some scoffer may deduce that I have a guilty conscience While I am not a perfect man, and perhaps have violated one or more of the 2,000,000 laws on the statute books of this land, I refuse to incriminate myself by discussing that point."

"What did the cop want when he came to your office?" solicitously asked the interviewer.

"I was coming to that," replied Mr. Sashweight. "As he advanced I tried to remember where I had parked my flivver and how long it had been there. I wondered if there was an overlooked bottle of synthetic gin on the office safe. Through my head ran the thought of taxes and street assessment levies. Perhaps one of the Sashweight boys had been haled to Juvenile Court.

"Tremulously I inquired the mission of the officer. A sense of relief surged over me as he smiled, held aloft a batch of colored tickets and suggested:

"'How about a couple of tickets to the policemen and firemen's annual baseball game, mister? The Commissioners an' everybody will be there.'

"My finances are such that I can not be a too generous man, even in charity matters. But impulsively I reached into my purse and extracted therefrom $5 which Mrs. Sashweight had instructed me to bring home as the first instalment on the week-end market money. This I gave the cop and he beamed and I beamed."

"How long did your scare last?" Mr. Sashweight was asked.

"I am still slightly nervous," admitted Mr. Sashweight, "but have taken a bromide and feel convalescent. If it had been a fireman instead of a cop my fright would have been less, but even then I would have feared that the fire lad was there to tell me that the house had burned down and the fire marshal was just now appraising the loss, although Mrs. Sashweight and the children were safe but suffering from slight burns and smoke-filled nostrils."

"Are you opposed to the sale of their baseball tickets by these men in uniform?" the interviewer interrogated?.

"No; it is a worthy cause," replied Mr. Sashweight, "and these men who protect our lives and property ought to have their valor thus recognized. But—I do wish when they come to my office they'd enter with a handful of tickets extended in front of them, or first wave the tickets through a crack in the door. Then they wouldn't give me, and possibly other meek citizens, such a shock. And if a fellow is hailed on the street by a blue uniform his blood pressure would be reduced by sight of a placard reading "Tickets for Sale" just over the badge."

* * * *

"Do you know of any one other than yourself who is scared of our valiant cops?"

Sashweight smiled reminiscently and answered:

"I'm calling no names, but a friend of mine a year or so ago, about this time was approached as he started to drive away in his automobile. Unfortunately for his peace of mind, he had aboard a quart of contraband which, he said, had been donated by a friend. (Editorial note: I doubt that.) My frightened friend, so he confessed to me, had visions of a confiscated car, charges of transportation, illegal possession, malfeasance in office, conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, 30 days in the cooler and a separation from his wife, who'd always warned him about such indiscretions and informed him that eventually the law would overtake the guilty."

"And then——" asked the interviewer, who could hardly stand the suspense.

"Well," concluded Sashweight, "this cop came over to my friend, and didn't arrest him or anything, and just said: 'Want to buy a ticket to our baseball game, mister?'

"'How much are they?'. jubilantly asked my friend.

"'Dollar apiece,' softly said the policeman.

"'I'll take ten,' compromised this friend of mine and he produced a brand new ten-spot. Then he and the automobile and the quart—or maybe it was a couple of quarts—went on the way to their happy home."

As this interviewer departed Mr. Sashweight waved good-by with a hand in which he held five baseball tickets for the baseball game that a lot of folks properly are going out to see. His nervousness seemed to have disappeared and his blood pressure was normal.

ARLINGTON COUNTY REPUBLICANS PLAN TO LIST CANDIDATES

VIENNA PASTOR NAMED SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICIAL

BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

There will be a special meeting of the Arlington County Republican committee tomorrow night at Lyon Park for the purpose of receiving formal acceptances of candidates nominated at the recent convention.

Reports received from the county headquarters which were open yesterday in the Rucker Building, Clarendon, show that the party has arranged plans for the organizing of separate clubs to further the interest of each of the candidates.

A. F. Driscoll, town sergeant of Potomac, the Republican candidate for the office of sheriff, said last night that he has notified the county committee accepting the nomination, and that he will campaign for the office.

Arrangments for "Arlington Day," to be held Wednesday under the auspices of the Arlington Athletic Association, will include a baseball game between teams from Cherrydale and Arlington. and a tournament. The crowning of the queen will take place in the evening.

Moose Day at Arlington Beach yesterday held under the auspices of Alexandria Lodge, No. 1076, was attended by more than 500 persons. Miss Gladys Cookman as "Miss Washington," was the feature attraction.

Among the speakers of the day were F. E. Howell, general dictator of Alexandria Lodge, and E. A. Mifka, of Richmond, Va., representing the Supreme Lodge.

Arrangements for the annual field day to be given under the auspices of the East Arlington Fire Department are now being made.

The Rev. Edward G. Latch, of Vienna, was elected president of the Fairfax County Sunday School Association at the thirty-seventh annual convention held at Vienna yesterday. Other officers elected were H. Earlton Hanes, of Herndon, vice president; Mrs. J. B. Davis, of Burke, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Josephine Howard, of Falls Church, assistant secretary-treasurer. It was decided to hold the convention next year at the Methodist Episcopal Church of Falls Church.

An enrollment of 4,515 pupils in the 66 Sunday schools of the association was reported, a decrease of 322 in the last four years. The drop in enrollment was attributed to the nation-wide trend of young people toward the cities. A map prepared by Mrs. Davis, gave the location of the various Sunday schools in the association.

The honor roll of attendance showed Vienna to have a record of 90 per cent. In the 100 per cent class were Wolf Memorial Sunday school of Herndon, Union at Burke, and the Presbyterian school of Falls Church. Columbia Baptist of Falls Church, had a record of 99 per cent, and Cranford Sunday school a record of 98 per cent in attendance. The treasurer's report showed $300 contributed for State work during the last year.

The Rev. M. C. Miller, secretary of the Virginia State Sunday School Association, was the principal speaker at the morning session. His subject was, "Aims and Objectives of the County Association." In the afternoon, the Rev. W. A. McKee, of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, of Washington, spoke on "Trained Leadership."

Mrs. W. H. Dodge, of McLean, was chosen head of the primary department; Fred B. Cunningham, of Vienna, was named head of the young people's department, and E. C. Fenwick, of Falls Church, was appointed leader of the adult department

The Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus of St. Charles' Catholic Church of Clarendon will hold their annual outing today at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McDonnell, of Clarendon, at Fort Republic.

In the woods near Oadley, Prince William County, about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, State Prohibition Officers James D. East and Virgil Williams stumbled on three stills fully equipped for business. The stills, which were destroyed, were of 50, 40 and 30 gallons capacity. The officers also found four 30-gallon cooling tubs, ten 50-gallon fermenters and 20 gallons of alleged liquor.

The records in the office of County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green show that during the last week there were issued four permits for new buildings, representing $10,250.

A marriage license was issued yesterday by the clerk of the court to Charles N. Ingraham, of Springfield, Ill., and Ruth Thomas Ohlson, of Washington

Services in the new Methodist Church recently completed on Wilson boulevard, Fort Myer Heights, will be conducted tonight at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Charles F. Linger. Sunday school will be held in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Y. W. C. A. ACTIVITIES

The new Y. W. C. A. Building is proving of interest to many vacation visitors to Washington and representatives from other associations. General secretaries who have come in through the week have been Miss Leona MacGeorge, of St. Paul, Minn.; Miss Lucy B. Milligan, of Sioux City, Iowa, and Miss Edna M. Thatcher, of Washington, Pa. Miss Florence Risley, of the finance division of the National Board, also made a brief visit in Washington. Miss Gertrude Schermerhorn, industrial secretary at Binghamton, N. Y., stopped over for the week-end on her way home from the recent industrial conference at Camp Pawatinika. Many of the tourists in Washington have found housing at either the transient center at 614 E street or at the Residence at 1104 M street, both places reporting capacity registrations the last month.

Foreign visitors are also finding the Washington Y. W. C. A. a convenient headquarters. Last week a special visitor was President Donald Hsu, of Foochow College, China, who, with Mrs. Hsu, was a guest of the association for a sight-seeing tour of the city between trains.

The programs on the roof this summer are bringing pleasure to many Washingtonians and to out-of-town visitors. Tiling has been placed on the unfinished side of the roof. The Saturday night dances are continuing this month, under direction of Miss Jane Blinn, membership secretary.

Miss Cora Sponsler will sing and be in charge of the music hour from 5:30 to 6:30 on the roof this afternoon, and also will lead the group singing which is a feature of these informal at homes. Miss Mary Wright, of the staff, will be the hostess. Throughout the afternoon and evening members of the Indoor-Outdoor Club will act as hostesses in the building to give any information or assistance possible to visitors. The radio will be in operation on Wednesday evening as usual, with Miss Mignonette Buckingham as hostess.

The Italiana Professional Society held a meeting at the Blue Triangle Hut at Twentieth and B streets last Thursday evening when dancing and refreshments were enjoyed.

Secretaries who have returned from vacation trips are Miss Buckingham, Miss Henry and Mrs. Carney.

Health Education Department.

In spite of the chilly weather, there has been a steady increase in the number taking advantage of the early morning dips from 7 to 8:30 in the K street pool. The summer dip hours will be continued until October. For those returning to the city and who are not acquainted with the summer schedule, it is as follows: Seven to 8:30 a. m.; 11:30 to 1:30 p. m.; 3:30 to 6 p. m., and 8 to 9:30 p. m. A record was established in the K street pool when a 2-year-old registered and started in on her swimming career this week.

Tennis classes are drawing very good registrations during the cool weather. A course of tennis lessons consists of three one-hour lessons, for which arrangements are made at the Health Education office on the fifth floor at Seventeenth and K streets. The three excellent courts on which the lessons are given are located at the Blue Triangle Hut at Twentieth and B streets.

There will be a class in Junior Life Saving starting Monday, August 22, from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. No one over 17 will be admitted to this class. The course will consist of six lessons and each entrant will be allowed the privilege of purchasing six Tip-Dips at a special rate, to be used during any dip hour at either the K street or the E street pool. Information in regard to rates may be secured at the Health Education office.

Vacation Lodge.

New members of the Vacation Lodge family this week are Misses Kauffmann, Marion Lapp, Ethel Vest and Fulkerson.

Miss Myrtle Henry, house secretary at E street, who has been on a trip through the Yellowstone this summer, will be the speaker at the Sunday evening song service at the lodge tonight, when she will tell something of her experiences.

Seniors made a trip to Annapolis on Tuesday to make a tour of the city. A picnic supper was served on the launch. The party consisted of Miss Helen Wells, senior counselor; Miss Ethel Newell, junior counselor, and the following seniors: Helen Callahan, Esther Greenfield, Vera Cromwell, Velma Knecttl, Loretta Linsley, Frieda Lundberg, Agnes MacElroy, Lotta Leicht, Dorothy Mitchell, Jessie Martin, Mildred O'Leary and Elsie Lotto.

The theme of the past week has been "Stars," and this idea has been carried out in the day's program. Morning worship has centered around this thought, with the idea in mind that each girl will "hitch her wagon to a star" during her stay at kamp. Tuesday evening the movie "stars" came to Kahlert Kamp and a big party was held in their honor. On several evenings the girls have taken "star" hikes, and in this way have become better acquainted with the constellations. The Friday evening program consisted of a Venetian serenade on the point and river, followed by a "star" ceremonial.

In charge of the week's program is the hostess council, whose members are as follows:

On Wednesday evening the entire camp took a launch ride on the bay.

Miss Dorethea McDowell, who has just returned from National Training School in New York City, will be in charge of the junior program this week.

About 60 girls went down to Kamp Kahlert on the buses yesterday, chaperoned by Miss Annabel Bird of the staff. Among the juniors were Lucille Bowker, Mary Lois Rice, Louise Danforth, Dorothy Quinn, Marion Perry, Frances Fox, Quita Mellott, Elaine Fishback, Helen Wolcott, Lila R. Wallace, Helen and Beatrice Spasoff, Ella Sanborn, Leila M. Hild, Virginia Rusk, Eleanora Seidler, Vance Fisher, Elizabeth Jenkins, Virginia Beall, Martha Fisher, Mildred Lutes, Anabel McKee, Virginia Thompson, Rhoda Lydenstricker, Eleanor Coffey, Nancy Jennings, Betty Denham, Alice Matthews, Lila Moss, Marie Roberts, Margaret Moorhead, Kay Jones, Mary Blair, Virginia Crampton, Gertrude Rusk, Mary and June Rose, Eleanor Johnston and Ruth Linthicum.

Seniors going down were Mrs. Gladys Brown and Dorothy Peake, Pearl Newman, Edna Mason, Ruth Jackson, Mary Headley, Lois Nichols, Henrietta Seymour, Elizabeth White, Sarah Reed, Gertrude Robinette, S. Agnes McReady, Beatrice Latchaw and Frances Knowlton.

A preliminary meeting of the committee which is planning for the joint conference of the industrial department and the Women's Trade Union League to be held this fall, was held on Wednesday.

SEASON'S STAFF CHOSEN FOR BANK PUBLICATION

TRADE IS HELD IMPROVED

Announcement was made yesterday of the membership committee of the Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking for the season of 1927-28, and also the staff for the publication of the institute's "Dollars and Cents" which is devoted to the activities of the chapter.

The membership committee includes A. E. Henze, W. B. Hibbs & Co., chairman; Esther R. Lau, Riggs National Bank, secretary; Mabel V. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co.; Edwin C. Steffe, Federal American National Bank; O. Lehman, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, and Robert G. Whitton, First National Bank, Alexandria, Va.

Aubrey O. Dooley, Commercial National Bank, will be editor of Dollar and Cents. William M. Rankin, Riggs National Bank; Alice H. Whitton, First National Bank, Alexandria, Va., and Aubrey B. Carter, of the Federal Reserve Board will be assistant editors; William E. Schooley, American Security & Trust Co., has been named as business manager, and O. Lehman, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, will have charge of the magazine's circulation.

Reserve Debits Increase.

Debits to individual accounts as reported to the Federal Reserve Board by banks in leading cities for the week ended August 17, agregated $13,277,000,000 or 4.1 per cent above the total of $12,756,000,000 reported for the preceding week.

Total debits for the week under review are $2,668,000,000, or 14.4 per cent above these for the week ended August 18, 1926. New York City reported an increase of $1,411,000,000; Chicago, $91,000,000; Cincinnati, $31,000,000; Boston, $29,000,000; Philadelphia, $23,000,000, and San Francisco, $17,000,000, a decline of $7,000,000 was reported at New Orleans.

Aggregate debits for 141 centers, for which figures have been published weekly since January, 1919, amounted to $12,524,037,000, as compared with $12,069,158,000 for the preceeding week, and $10,895,887,000 for the week ended August 18, 1926.

Debits to individual accounts by banks in the Richmond district, which includes the District of Columbia, including 23 reporting centers, for the week ended August 17, were $294,944,000, and for the week ended August 10, $295,175,000; this compares with $300,752,000 for the week ended August 18, 1926.

Trade Improvement Seen.

"Improvement is the keyword in trade and crops this week," says Bradstreet's report. "There is, however, considerable spottiness in both of these lines, and the volume of trade is hardly as large or inclusive as it was a year ago. In industry the pace, aside from a few lines like cotton goods, rayon and shoe manufacturing, is little different from early in the month or in July and there is enough spottiness in nearly all branches of business activity to prevent volume in any one of these from equaling a year ago, when, it will be recalled, things were moving rather fast during the midsummer period."

The report continues, "Retail trade in summer goods, despite 'sales,' have tended to lag in wide area, partly because of cool or wet weather, while the lower than normal industrial employment also is a check on distribution. Car loadings for the first week of August are notable; first, for the large reduction, 4.7 per cent from the like week a year ago, and, secondly, because owing to this decrease the movement for the year to date thereby drops a shade below a year ago for the first time in 1927."

Business failures for the week ended August 18 number 337, according to Bradstreet's, which compare with 298 last week, 350 in the like week of 1926, 311 in 1925, 319 in 1924, and 324 in 1923. The Southern district leads with 81, Western district next with 77, Middle third with 75. The Northwestern district reported only 30, the least number of failures contained in the report.

The Washington Clearing House for the week ended Thursday canceled $23,240,000 in checks, which compares with $23,364,000 for the previous week and a decline of 5.3 per cent over the same period in 1926. A decline was also reported for Richmond over the week of August 11, and a marked drop of 40.3 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Clearings for Atlanta, although not up to last year, were substantially ahead of the previous week.

Baltimore reported a gain, however, the figure for the current week being $106,610,000, against the total of August 11 of $100,384,000, and a slight increase over last year.

Business Tenor Held Even.

Commenting on the report heard in some circles that business is due to "slow up," W. W. Spaid, of W. B. Hibbs & Co., and president of the District Bankers Association, stated yesterday that, despite this dark view, business has maintained an even tenor. Mr. Spaid said: "I am through trying to guess what each year will bring. The first six months of this year have exceeded similar periods in the volume of business in certain lines."

Loew's Declares Dividend.

The regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, payable September 30 to stockholders of record September 10, has been declared by Loew's, Inc.

Offering was made yesterday of a new issue of $3,000,000 National Fire Proofing Co. 20-year 5½ per cent sinking fund gold debentures, due September 1, 1947, by Hornblower & Weeks. The bonds are priced at 96½ and interest to yield about 5.80 per cent. They are callable in whole or in part at any time at 104½ and accrued interest up to September 1, 1928. The premium decreases 1½ per cent each year thereafter to 101.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Aug. 20.—Standard stocks displayed a confident tone in a quiet market in today's short session. Speculative sentiment derived particular encouragement from indications that the current ease of money was not due to a slump in business activity. Weekly mercantile reviews were decidedly more optimistic in their remarks on the current business situation and the fall outlook. Absorbing week-end realizing, the market today was able to shake off most of the irregularity which had characterized dealings in the previous tw osessions, and operations for the rise were resumed in a broad and brisk scale.

Bullish sentiment undoubtedly was encouraged by the publication of cheerful views expressed by a prominent operator on his departure for Europe, supplemented by an equally optimistic survey by the head of one of the country's most powerful banks. Both of these gentlemen, whose opinions are highly regarded, were openly confident on the outlook for business and security markets. The abundance of money offered on Friday and the possibility of the call rate dropping below 3½ per cent next week also encouraged the resumption of market operations by traders who had been rendered cautious by the recent slump.

The day's turnover was in the neighborhood of 812,600 shares. Net gains on the day extended to 7¼ points, but most of the appreciations were under 2 points. General Motors, Du Pont and General Electric were the leaders in the upward movement.

Du Pont was twirled up for a net gain of 7¼ points in a comparatively moderate turnover. General Motors rose to a new peak at 231, a net gain of 3⅞ points. Other motors also were strong aside from Yellow Truck, which had to shoulder considerable pressure. Chrysler, Moon, Nash and Studebaker made substantial gains. General Electric finished the day a gainer by almost 2 points net.

Allied Chemical, Paramount, International Combustion, Goodrich, Electric Power & Light, Pressed Steel Car, Radio Corporation, Shattuck Co., Willys Overland, Otis Elevator, Coca Cola, Baldwin, American Bosch and other industrials favored on the buying side closed with net gains extended to 3 points.

Trading in oils slowed up considerably and, with the exception of Houston, which closed 2½ points above yesterday's final price, most of the other members of the group were fractionally on the minus side at the end.

Profit taking increased in volume toward the close, but high-grade shares, including Atchison and New York Central, made their top prices of the day in the last few minutes. Trading in the carrier issues, as a rule, however was very light.

The activity in the motor group was stimulated by predictions contained in a bullish forecast by W. C. Darant prior to his departure on a trip abroad. Discussing the market outlook, he said: "While many students and specialists will differ with me, I believe we are drifting into a so-called bull market unprecedented in magnitude, which will extend over a period of many years. Good stocks will sell higher than ever before."

Moderate strength in demand sterling was the only point of interest in the foreign exchanges. Continental rates were generally a shade lower.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—An active and excited advance in the cotton market today followed publication of the Government's report on the activities of boll weevil and other insects in the South, all months making new high record for the season. December contracts sold up to 21.20 and March to 21.36, net advances of 72 to 80 points on the general list. The close was only a few points off from the best under realizing, with the final tone steady, at net gains of 62 to 75 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 27 to 38 points under more or less general buying. A good deal of realizing at the initial prices was absorbed on setbacks of a few points, the market showing increased strength and activity after publication of the boll weevil report. This was regarded as indicating a heavy infestation of the insect, particularly in Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina, and evidently was considered even more bullish than anticipated.

In addition to heavy covering by recent sellers there was a broadening demand from trade and commission houses. October deliveries selling up to 20.95 and January to 21.22. These prices represented advances of about $3.50 to $4 per bale over the closing quotations yesterday and of more than 2¼ cents a pound above the low level touched on the reactions late last week.

The increasingly serious view of the boll weevil situation, no doubt inspired expectations of smaller crop estimates, and buying was reported in anticipation that end-August condition and yield figures would show a considerable falling off as compared with the end-July reports.

Except for comparatively low temperatures, the weather news was considered somewhat more favorable, and may have increased the disposition to take profits on the initial advance, but the later market appeared to be entirely dominated by the boll weevil news.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 69,000 bales, against 37,000 last year and 32,000 two years ago.

NATS DROPS 1ST, 5-0; 2ND CALLED IN 15TH, 6-6; DISTRICT ASSOCIATION LIFTS BAN ON VOIGT

Star Eligible For Capital Tourneys

Eligibility Committee Gives Out Copies of Resolution.

GEORGE J. VOIGT, District golf star, was declared eligible for competition in tournaments under the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia Golf Association yesterday. Voigt had been banned by the local body, which charged that he had acted in a manner detrimental to the best interests and spirit of the game.

The United States Golf Association's eligibility committee made an investigation of Voigt's case and exonerated him of the charges.

"Whereas the executive committee at its last meeting adopted a report of the eligibility committee of the association, which presented certain facts in relation to the status of George J. Voigt and recommended that he be declared ineligible to compete in tournaments under the jurisdiction of the association; and

"Whereas the executive committee at the same meeting, pursuant to the above recommendation of the eligibility committee, adopted a resolution which reads as follows:

"'Resolved, That George J. Voigt be declared ineligible to compete in any amateur tournament held under the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia Golf Association; and that each club in this association be notified of this action, and furnished with a copy of the report of the eligibility committee of this association, upon which this resolution is predicated.'

"Whereas this action of the executive committee was taken as a result of its interpretation of the rules of the United States Golf Association; and

Whereas the executive committe of the U. S. G. A. has itself interpreted their rule and declared Mr. Voigt eligible to compete in the national amateur championship; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the executive committee, while still convinced of the correctness of its interpretation of the U. S. G. A. rules, feels constrained to follow the construction put upon its own rules by the U. S. G. A., and therefore, hereby rescinds the above resolution declaring Mr. Voigt ineligible."

Alexander Gets 17th Win; Cards Cop, 8-2

Philadelphia, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Grover Cleveland Alexander hurled his seventeenth victory of the season for the St. Louis Cardinals today by opening the series with the Phillies with an 8-2 triumph.

The world's champions hit Pruett and Sweetland for a total of seventeen hits, but did not cinch the game until the eighth, when five hits, an error and a walk netted four runs. Alexander was chary with his hits in the pinch and the Phillies first run of the game was put on base when Schuble made a wild throw of Thompson's grounder.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Cleveland came out of its batting lethargy today and romped away with the opener of a series with the Yankees by 14 to 8, the Indians assembling nineteen hits off four New York twirlers.

Babe Ruth's thirty-ninth home run which came in the first inning with one man on base again placed him in a tie with Lou Gehrig for swatting honors. George Burns led the attack of the Tribe with four hits in as many times at bat.

Cubs Outbid Pirates For Second-Sacker

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Announcement was made today of the sale to the Chicago Cubs of Fred (Doc) Maguire, star second baseman of the league-leading Toledo Team of the American Association.

The Cubs are understood to have outbid Pittsburgh for him. Toledo will receive cash and a player for Maguire, who will report to Chicago next spring.

Dempsey Due For Training Tomorrow

Former Champ Denies Wife's Condition Is Grave.

Sale of Tickets Is Deferred for 24 Hours.

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Peaceful in mind and in no hurry whatever to settle down to the task of training, Jack Dempsey today hovered attentively at the side of his ailing wife, Estelle Taylor. He announced, however, he would go to Lincoln Fields Monday, not only to look over his camp but to start active work.

The first week, according to present plans, is to be little more than a limbering-up routine, interrupted by visits to Chicago, particularly to Mrs. Dempsey's sick room in her North Shore Hotel apartment. After the first week the former title-holder will see little or nothing of Chicago until his battle, September 22, with Gene Tunney.

Dempsey laughed off reports that his wife had taken a sudden turn for the worse and that he had engaged three Chicago specialists to care for her.

"Nothing to it at all," Jack said. "She is getting along fine. The doctor says she will be up on her tee for good in a couple of weeks if she continues to improve.

"There is no truth to the report that we had to call in three doctors yesterday because of her grave condition. Most of yesterday afternoon we were both out riding, so she couldn't have been very sick."

Dempsey tore himself away from his wife this afternoon long enough to join Tex Rickard and Leo P. Flynn, his manager, for a match on the golf links. It was the first time that Jack had a chance to play since arriving from the coast.

The public sale of tickets scheduled to open Monday was deferred 24 hours because of the tremendous task of counting them. Charts showing the seating plan of Soldiers Field for the heavyweight championship fight will adorn the walls of the ticket offices, so that patrons can determine just where they want to sit—and then try to get the ticket.

John L. (Ike) Dorgan, publicly man for Rickard, who will have charge of press seats for the bout, said the number of working locations at the ringside would be restricted to 200, or at least not more than 250. He has already received more than 200 requests, and every batch of mail brings additional applications.

Pirates Beat Robins To Cut Cubs' Lead

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh slashed the Cubs' lead to three and one-half games today by whipping the Robins by 10 to 7 while Chicago went down for the count twice before the Braves.

The Pirates started off with a seven-run lead in the first four innings, but a five-run rally by the Robins in the seventh tied the score. Herman in the role of a pinch hitter drove in three runners with a double during the Brooklyn splurge.

168 Golfers at Minikahda For Title Battle This Week

Only Two Champions of Last 13 Years Absent.

Lesser Stars Show Up Well in Trial Rounds.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Practice rounds today topped off the grooming process for many of the 168 golfing stars entered in the national amateur tournament over the Minikahda course here next week.

Over the gently rolling fairways and occasional hilltop greens the thirty-first amateur championship will be fought out by a field considered one of the strongest ever entered in this classic.

Representing the outstanding amateurs in all sections of the United States and parts of Canada, the entry list includes more than 50 players with national, regional or State titles to their credit.

While George Von Elm, the defending champion from Los Angeles, and Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, have had the leading roles in pre-tourney predictions, their practice performances have been outdone by many lesser lights.

Besides the well-known trophy winners, from major champions down to State finalists, there are many young men of great promise ready for the bitter fight, eager to uncrown the champion or climb to the list of the elect.

Only two national amateur champions of the last thirteen years will be missing from the qualifying starters, the two Jesses, Guilford and Sweetser, the former 1921 champion and the latter winning the following year.

Hunter Beats Lott as East Is Victor

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 20 (A.P.). Francis T. Hunter, playing his first singles match since selection as a member of the American Davis Cup Team, bombarded his way to decisive triumph today over George Lott, 20-year-old Chicago star, and clinched victory for the East over the West in annual sectional tennis series.

The score was 7—5, 8—6, 6—0. Lott was one of Hunter's chief rivals for the fourth place on the American Cup Team, but he wilted today after making a battle of it for two sets. The match sparkled with sensational rallies, but Hunter, driving powerfully off his forehand and employing clever tactics, dominated most of the play. The East won four of today's five matches and captured the two-day series by the score of 6—3, thus retaining the supremacy.

Johnny Doeg, 18-year-old Californian, saved the Western troupe from rout today when he rallied from the verge of defeat in the straight sets to conquer Dr. George King, veteran New Yorker, by scores of 5—7, 9—7, 6—1. Doeg's service was all-powerful, as usual.

He aced Dr. King repeatedly to the cheers of a gallery of about 3,500 spectators, but was wild off the ground and at the net until he steadied in the middle of the second set. Two points away from defeat in the tenth game on King's service, Doeg rallied to deuce the set, finally pulled it out and then swept the New Yorker aside in the deciding set with a fine exhibition of volleying. John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., and Princeton, second ranking intercollegiate star, featured in two of the East's other victories.

In the singles he triumphed over Cranston Holman, former Leland Stanford star, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4, staging a winning spurt after trailing at 2—5 on games in the second set.

In the doubles Van Ryn paired with the national junior champion, Frank Shields, of New York, to defeat Holman and Lionel Ogden, also of Stanford, in another three-set thriller, 6—4, 3—6, 10—8.

Manuel Alonso, the Spanish star who resides in Philadelphia, helped the East hang up its fourth victory of the day by combining with Watson Washburn, of New York, to vanquish the brilliant Texas doubles team, Louis Thalheimer and Lewis N. White, 7—5, 7—5.

An international mixed doubles exhibition, featuring two of this year's Wimbledon champions, added color to the program. It resulted in a victory for Miss Helen Wills, the California girl who holds the Wimbledon women's crown, and Jacques Brugnon, of the French Davis Cup Team, over Miss Eileen Bennett, of England, and Henry Cochet, conqueror of William T. Tilden and winner of the British men's championship. The scores were 6—2, 6—4.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 20 (A.P.).—The seventh-place St. Louis Browns outslugged the last-place Boston team here today and won 8 to 4. Boston got seven hits, but the eight timely clouts of the Browns accounted for all their runs. Pitcher Gaston issued eight bases on balls, while Russell allowed two men to walk. The pitchers were credited with two strikeouts each. It was the Browns' fourth victory in five games this week.

KLAN LOSES TO JUNIOR ORDER

2,000 See Lodgemen Capture Contest, 5 to 3.

A CROWD of 2,000 fans witnessed Manager Hessler's Junior Order Team display a fine brand of baseball in its victory over the Ku Klux Klan Nine yesterday by a 5-3 score in a benefit performance at the American League Park.

Jumping away to a one-run lead in the opening inning, the Klan Nine was leading until the fifth inning, when the tide of victory changed in favor of their rivals. Junior Order tied the count in this frame and despite the stubborn opposition of the Klan Nine, proceeded to win the contest in the following innings.

After a timely attack of the Klan had tied the score again in the sixth at 3-3, Junior Order staged a thrilling two-run rally, which proved to be the margin of victory.

Cullinane pitched a steady game for the winners, many of his twelve strikeouts coming in the pinches. Wormsley, Raines and Snoots divided the twirling assignment for K. K. K., but their efforts were in vain before the determined attack of the Junior Order forces.

Tigers Move Into 2nd Position

Tate Is Batting Hero; Whitehill Stops Washington.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post.)

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—The fact that the Tigers had won their last nine games and that second place was at stake in today's doubleheader with the Nationals brought more than 30,000 fans through the turnstiles at Navin Field this afternoon. And, although their idols did not cop both contests, they have little cause for complaint.

The Tigers extended their streak by taking the first, 5 to 0, this putting them in the runner-up berth by a narrow margin, and they lost nothing when they deadlocked the second at 6-all after fifteen hectic rounds.

The first affair was no contest, with Lefty Earl Whitehill having the Nat hitters eating out of his hands while Tom Zachary was not very effective, but the nightcap was a masterpiece.

"Lil" Stoner and Fred Marberry were the starting pitchers, the former going the entire distance. "Firpo" was excused in the fourteenth, although not because he was being punished.

In this fracas the Nats were never behind and they should have won, but the Jungle Cats would never give up the fight. A lusty home run clout by Harry Heilmann, who was in a batting mood today, knotted the count at 4-4 in the eighth, while after the Harrismen had counted twice in the eleventh, Marty McManus discovered a four bagger in his bat which he proceeded to get out. And, as a mate was on the sacks at the time this was good for the two needed runs to tie things up

PEGGY TAYLOR, showing good speed from the start, was forced extremely wide on the stretch turn and, holding on well, easily outfinished the others. GO AWAY began sluggishly, was urged repeatedly in the first three furlongs and, after meeting interference in the stretch turn, finished well.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:04. Winner, Wild Rose Farm's br. c. (2), by Noblesse Oblige—Binfield. BLESSEFIELD, fractious at the barrier, but away with the leaders, raced on the pace, but wide, from the start and, standing a long drive gamely, outfinished MAY COOPER. Latter raced into a short lead at once, disposed of SEVENTEEN SIXTY in the first half mile and, although making a game finish, was not good enough. HY SCHNEIDER was well up, but raced wide to the stretch, where he held on well under his weight, but could not get to the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:38. Winner, J. W. Lewis' br. g. (4), by Sweep—Hawksora. Trained by A. J. Plack. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG SWEEP, $12.44, $4.68, $3.04; OH SUSANNA, $3.20, $2.40; REPUTATION, $2.66.

BIG SWEEP began swiftly, made a fast pace under restraint to the stretch, where, after meeting the challenge of OH SUSANNA, he drew away in the last sixteenth. OH SUSANNA, always in closest pursuit of the pacemaker, made a strong challenge after reaching the stretch, but failing to get to the leader, tired when nearing the finish. REPUTATION raced forwardly from the start and, giving an even effort, was easily best of the others.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $15,000 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving. Place same. Went to post at 4:12. Off at 4:10. Winner, S. Peabody's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLAT IRON, $8.94, $5.84, $3.20; CHICAGO, $4.82, $2.84; MIX UP (entry), $2.24.

FLAT IRON, beginning well, raced into the lead when finishing the first half mile, saved all possible ground while showing fine speed thereafter and, holding on resolutely under a good ride, outstayed CHICAGO. Latter, never far back and restrained to the stretch, moved up strongly when called on and, finishing best, was slowly wearing down the winner. MIX UP raced wide to last turn, where she saved some ground and made a game finish under vigorous handling.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 4:53. Off at 4:54. Winner, F. M. Grabner's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SPANISH LAY, $7.02, $3.86, $2.88; PRINCE RONALD, $4.88, $3.38; POLANTE, $4.22.

SPANISH LAY, easily best, raced in tight quarters first half mile, saved some ground working his way up on the last turn and, after going to the outside for the stretch, finished with a big rush and drew out at the end. PRINCE RONALD was taken into the lead at once, saved ground where possible, appeared beaten when a furlong out, but came again and outstayed POLANTE. Latter, showing improvement, was a strong factor from the start, neared the lead in stretch, then tired.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:26. Winner, C. H. Knebelkamp's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GEORGIA ROSE, $11.88, $6.52, $4.26; SMILING GUS, $8.26, $5.94; FLAGSHIP, $6.58.

GEORGIA ROSE, occasionally roused while forcing the pace, came to the outside of the leader on the last turn and responding excellently to hard riding, quickly disposed of FLAGSHIP and, going steadily thereafter, held SMILING GUS safe. Latter was taken back when finishing first half mile, came again strongly on the outside when entering the stretch and, after passing FLAGSHIP, failed to get to the winner. FLAGSHIP was hustled when making the pace and began tiring after six furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL SWEEP, $12.08, $6.56, $5.00; DR. LARRABEE, $4.94, $4.66; FIRE UNDER, $7.12.

ROYAL SWEEP, saving much ground and forward from the start, came around the leaders in the stretch and, although bearing in, drew away slowly. DOCTOR LARRABEE, also a factor from the start, took the lead after a half mile, suffered from light crowding in the stretch and was going well at the end. FIRE UNDER, hard hustled first part, swerved in when taking the lead, which he held briefly, but outfinished FORESTAR when tiring.

Police and Fireman Nines Prepare for Annual Game

By GARRETT D. WATERS.

"IN time of peace, prepare for war." That's the motto of two organizations who are planning for their annual clash on the baseball diamond Labor Day.

The Police-Firemen baseball game has now become one of the city's institutions. Not that the game itself is such a wonderful piece of art, but the benefits derived therefrom create such an atmosphere of importance that interest has manifested itself into the hearts of many a hardened soul that has overlooked such occasions before.

The work of arranging the game is credited wholly to the cooperation of members of the Home Defense League who earnestly endeavor to aid to the relief of the widows and orphans of police and firemen. Each year a baseball game is played for the benefit of these unfortunates.

Great rivalry has developed in these annual classics and the Cops have always been able to overcome the Firefighters right handily, no matter what the latter had to offer. This will be the sixth year of this clash of wits and brawn and the Firemen feel that this year they have something up their sleeves with which to upset their ancient rivals.

"Finney" Kelley will have to be reckoned with though, and he has mounted like a stone wall on past occasions. This worthy's trusty right arm has vanquished the Firefighters each time that he has faced them. He expects to continue his reign as monarch of the pitcher's box. Whatever happens a spirited game is promised with both teams putting forth their best fronts.

To offset any weakness in their team-play, the Firemen expect to shine in "putting over" a pretentious parade. Plans for the same have been going forward under the direction of Sergant A. J. Bargagni and he has not overlooked anything to make it a complete success.

No less than 40 of our local companies will be represented as well as 63 Virginia and 41 Maryland companies. These organizations will place before the public beautiful floats in addition to the wonderful fire equipment used in modern fire-fighting.

Business merchants will also lend their assistance with picturesque floats, helping to make the parade beautiful as well as spectacular. Ladies of the various volunteer companies are to be in the march and Washington has organized a ladies auxiliary which will offer a float.

A feature of the parade will be the showing of an old hose wheel that was used in 1811. Another interesting feautre will be the first fire alarm Washington ever had. This alarm dates back to 1783.

The Army, Navy and Marine bands as well as numerous other musical organizations will play along the line of march and everything points to a big and noisy time for the firemen and public.

The parade starts at 12:15 o'clock from the Peace Monument and proceeds up Pennsylvania avenue to the ball park where many added attractions are booked. Nick Altrock and Al Schacht will be there to clown and aiding these popular comedians will be various vaudeville entertainers that are appearing at local theaters that week.

again. There were no serious threats in the remaining rounds.

Bennie Tate was the hero of the second game. He came through with a single, double and triple. All were timely, driving home a total of four runs.

In the story of the first game there is little of interest to Washington fans. Stewart, who ran for Judge after the latter had singled in the ninth, was the only National to get as far as third and an error by Blue let him do this, while Speaker was the only other Harrisman getting to second, his double in the first inning putting him there. As a matter of fact, these were the only innings in which as many as two men got on the paths, for Judge walked following "Spoke's" two-sacker in the opener. Whitehill kept the other three Washington hits scattered in as many different innings.

Zachary pitched good ball for three innings, two errors by Rice letting the Tigers score in the third after two were out.

The box score only charges the Nat outfielder with the error of commission—a muff of Blue's fly right in his hands—but Warner went all the way from first to home when Rice pegged to second instead of stopping the run at the plate, which he could have done.

This seemed to throw Zachary off his balance, for in the next canto Gehringer and Heilmann singled and Fothergill's double scored the pair. The Tigers did nothing in the fifth, but their sixth was good for another pair of runs, the ingredients of which were two passes, Manush's single and a second double from Fothergill's flail.

Van Alstyne then was given his first trial as a National, and he held the Jungle Cats to but one hit in the remaining two rounds.

Stoner's ability to pitch double-play ball helped him out in each of the first three innings of the second engagement, but before the first of this trio of twinmurders was committed the Nats managed to score a run.

Rice, first up, singled and took second on Fothergill's miscue. Harris suicided him to third and he dashed home on Speaker's one-base liner to right. Judge then hit into a two-ply killing. Bluege did the same thing in the second after Goslin had walked, while Marberry duplicated the stunt in round three, following Reeves' opening single.

Meanwhile, the Tigers had used their second to knot the count, making this run from Heilmann's triple down the right field line and Manush's sacrifice fly.

With two down in the fourth, the Nats suddenly rallied and scored twice, a fine driving catch by Fothergill robbing Reeves of a hit and the Harrismen of another marker.

Judge complained that his injury was bothering him and McNeely represented him at the tee, singling to center. Goslin walked and Tate then doubled the pair home. Warner's error gave Bluege life and advanced Tate to third and Fothergill then contributed his fine catch to kill the rally.

In the fifth, the residents got one of these runs back and threatened to knot the count. With one dead McManus singled and registered on Shea's triple. The latter, however, died at third watching Stoner foul to Bluege on an attempted sacrifice and Goslin camped under Warner's hoist.

It looked as though the Nats would blow a golden opportunity in the sixth round when Speaker's single, Fothergill's error on it, and McNeely's out put him on third with only one down. Goslin failed but again Tate came to the rescue, tripling through Gehringer. The catcher was left when Warner made a nice play on Bluege's high-bounding roller. This frame was halved, however, when the Tigers molded a marker from Blue's opening double and Heilmann's single. Fothergill also hit safely but this blow was not used.

In the hope of starting something, Moriarty sent Bassler in to hit for Shea opening the seventh, and the catcher coaxed a pass, but he was a double-play victim when Stoner's effort to bunt sent a pop to Marberry, who easily made the second out on a snap peg to McNeely at first.

The Harrismen died in order in their ninth, with McManus getting as far as second for the Tigers by virtue of his single and an infield out.

Stoner fanned Marberry in the tenth and then walked Rice, but this helped none, as Harris lined to McManus with the hit-and-run one and Rice was easily doubled up at first.

Blue walked with one down in the home half. After Gehringer had flied to Goslin, Heilmann inserted his fifth succesive hit of the game, but Blue was held at second and Marberry pulled out unscathed when Goslin fastened himself on the end of Manush's long looper.

Speaker pried the top off of the second extra session by singling to left. McNeely's grounder to third let the runner take second and he advanced another base on a wild pitch. Stoner then purposely passed Goslin, putting the responsibility up to Tate, who had already driven home three runs. And the little catcher delivered again, his single letting Speaker score and putting Goslin on third, in position to tally on Bluege's long fly to left.

Ordinarily a two-run lead at this stage of a game would stand up, but it only took two of Moriarty's men to show that this was no ordinary game. Fothergill, leading off in the home half, doubled to the base of the score board in left center and then McManus crashed one all the way over, knotting the count again, this time to a six all. After Reeves camped under Bassler's pop, Stoner coaxed a free ticket to first, but he died there.

Stoner set the Nationals down in one, two, three order in the twelfth and thirteenth sessions and Marberry gave the tigers doses of the same medicine.

With one on the shelf in the fourteenth, Bluege gave the Nats hope by singling, but the Gehringer to McManus to Blue combine turned Reeves' tap into the Tigers' fifth double play of the game. With two aliens dead, Blue tripled to right in the home half. Harris then figured that his starting hurler had earned his salary for the day and called Braxton to the hill. Gehringer greeted the southpaw with a well hit liner to left on which Goslin made a fine catch for the third out.

Rice came through with his third hit with one mate out in the fifteenth and took second on a wild pitch. After Harris had fanned, Speaker was intentionally walked. The plans worked out this time and McNeely hit into a force-play.

The moon was beginning to shine about this time and when the aliens were sent back as fast as they came up in their half, the game was called. It will be played as part of another twin bill Monday.

of the auto company. Indications are that Thurston will turn down the proposition as the idea of traveling from town to town like a circus parade does not appeal to him.

Manager Harris made a shift in his pitching plans today, starting Fred Marberry on the hill against the Tigers in the second game. This leaves Horace Lisenbee in line for assignment tomorrow. Moriarty is expected to turn over his mound duties to either George Gibson or Haskell Billings, Brown collegian, tomorrow.

It is reported here that Walter Johnson will take up clowning when his pitching days are over. He worked out with Altrock in left field before the game. If he shows just a little more talent, Nick and Al will let him in their "closed corporation."

A train wreck ahead made the Nationals more than two hours late in pulling into town this morning. Had the players been delayed another hour, Harris' team would have looked like a "House of David" outfit. The boys just had time to grab a hasty breakfast—lunch, shave and get to Navin Field on schedule time.

Harris and Reeves spent considerable time in practice before play started today on pivot plays around the middle sack. Of late the young shortstop has been handling the ball in the most approved fashion on twin-murders started by Harris but, when Reeves has had to start them, his tosses have not been in the proper place to let Harris finish the job.

As the success of making double plays depends largely upon how the ball is fed to the man covering second, this feature will come in for attention in daily drills until it is perfected.

All ball players seem to have the idea that they are just as good in other positions as they are in their own and that's one reason why early comers at games see outfielders fooling around the infield and vice versa.

Harry Heilmann, the Tiger fly-hawk, is one who probably will be satisfied to wander around in the wide open spaces from now on. While playing third before today's game, a bad bounder hit him above the left eye, giving him a beautiful facial decoration absolutely free of charge. For a while, it was thought Harry would not be able to play, but first aid treatment by the club trainer fixed him so that he could see and he filled his regular position.

Outfielder Sammy West has been ordered to take the rest cure, and he will be allowed to leave his bed during the Nats' visit here. In order to keep him and his charley horse from being too lonely, a radio has been installed in his room so that he can keep up with the progress of the ball games. Johnny Neun, injured Tiger first baseman, did the broadcasting today.

Joe Judge was back at first base today, although not as spry as usual. Harris figured that Judge handicapped would be better than Speaker, who has been subbing in that position.

This is no reflection on the veteran, who must be given credit for being willing to try a new position, but because of its strangeness to him, several balls got past him at critical stages in the St. Louis series, and the loss of two or three of these games may be charged to the Nats' weakness around the initial sack.

Judge was unable to last through both games, retiring in the fourth of the nightcap. Harris used McNeely as a pinch-batter for Joe and then gave him a trial as a doorway guardian.

The two best catches of the entire afternoon were turned in in the first three innings of the first game. Both prevented runs. In the first inning, with two Nats on, Manush came tearing in to snare Goslin's near-Texas leaguer within a foot of the ground, while in the Tiger third Goslin raced all the way to the scoreboard to take Fothergill's drive with his gloved hand. Heilmann was on first at the time and the blow looked like at least a triple when it left the chubby hitter's bat.

Detroit Club officials did not expect the large crowd which showed up for today's games and had to turn some away because the circus seats in left center had not been installed. This mistake will not be repeated tomorrow. The gathering was so large that about half way through the first game, fans were allowed to pack in around the press box on top of the second balcony. The Yankee series were the only others drawing crowds of this size.

LITTLE TACKLES BIG JOB IN HILLTOP REVAMPING

Coach Finds Vital Gaps To Fill

Three Star Linesmen Form Georgetown Nucleus.

2 Tackles Remain; 40 Will Seek Positions.

THOUGH several veterans of the formidable 1926 Georgetown eleven will report next week to begin training for the coming football season with a squad of 40 or more candidates, Coach Lou Little faces a big task in replacing the five players that were graduated this year.

The Hilltop coach is fortunate in having "Dud" Saur and "Moose" Mosko, the tackles of last year's powerful line. Claude Grisby, a fine center, and Jerry Carroll and Weldon Munson, who alternated at guard position last year, will also be back.

Even with such experienced players as a nucleus for his 1927 team, Little tackles a difficult proposition in filling the gaps, left open by Connaughton, all-American guard, Bob Gormley, a capable quarterback, and Carl Waite and Capt. McGrath, the brilliant ends of the 1926 eleven.

PLAYGROUND POOLS DEVELOP SWIMMING STARS

1,800 Boys Will Compete In Plaza Meet Thursday

Post to Award Medals to Winners of Playground Events and Cup to Victorious Team—Close Contests Expected.

THE big moment in the lives of Washington playground youngsters is near at hand, as Thursday the annual interplayground field and track meet will be held on the Plaza Playground. The first event will start at 9:45 o'clock, and playground officials say that in order to complete the meet, in which 1,800 boys are expected to take part, about four hours of intensive work will be necessary.

The Washington Post again will award medals to boys who are first, second and third in each event and a silver cup to the winning team. In all, The Post will give 105 medals Thursday. Georgetown playground holds The Post cup at present by virtue of its hard-earned victory last year.

Fifty-two teams will compete in the games, representing the 52 white playgrounds in the city. Each of these grounds has had elimination meets and has figured in dual or triangular events that bring the total number of preliminary meets to near 120. Approximately 15,000 boys have participated in the eliminations.

The interplayground meets have always been keenly contested, the final winner gaining the verdict by but a few points. An example of how close the games are is shown in the number of teams winning places last year. Forty-two teams scored points at that time.

Playground directors declare that the meet Thursday will be the hardest-fought of any in the history of the games. Every team has trained with a determination to win and, since playground officials have ruled that only boys 18 and under and those who have not won high school letters are eligible to compete, there is little opportunity for any of the teams to load up with stars. Any normal boy who can run and jump, regardless of his training, has an equal chance for a place and one of The Post medals.

The officiating will be handled by employes of the Playground Department, many of whom are track and field stars of large universities. The officials will be:

John O'Reilly is particularly keen about the youngsters' meets and in spite of the fact that he has trained and turned out more world-renowned track stars than any other living track coach he is still interested in the endeavors of the juvenile athletes. He picks out flaws in their form and praises promising material. Incidentally his son will run on the Georgetown Playground Relay Team.

Harry Helme, a former track pupil of O'Reilly's and one who won two national titles, will start the youngsters on their way in the dashes. His trigger finger will need liniment afterwards as indications are that from sixteen to twenty heats will be the rule in each of the dashes besides the semifinals and finals.

Ball Clubs Waste More Than Half of Game Time

By FRANK H. YOUNG

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—For several seasons, Ban Johnson, president of the American League, has been laying down laws and making suggestions with the view toward speeding up play in games. He has contended that there has been too much lost motion, and has pointed to the fact that the average time consumed for contests in the National League for years has been many minutes less than needed in the junior circuit.

Baseball fans no doubt are bargain hunters at heart, but they also are good enough business men to figure out that they have gotten no more for their money simply because it took the two teams two and one-half hours to get in one and one-half hours of action.

Fans can not, of course, find complaint in the time lost while the players are changing positions between innings, but there is much tossing around of the ball which seems absolutely unnecessary.

The pitchers are responsible for most of these delays. Before each inning starts, for instance, the flinger pitches five balls to the catcher, this even applying after a relief hurler, who has been warming up for many minutes in the bull pen, comes into the game.

Moundsmen also waste much time fooling around doing nothing on the hill before making their deliveries, while some continually make useless pegs to first to get runners who are only a yard or so off the sack and apparently have no intention of trying to steal.

Following a foul, infielders toss the apple to each other before returning it to the pitcher.

The players at bat seem to take the attitude that everyone has plenty of time and kill many minutes knocking the mud off their shoes, carefully marking off the lines of the batter's box, imagining things in their eye, &c.

In order to get a concrete idea as to just how much actual playing is furnished in an average game, a stop watch was used in last Saturday's game played at Washington between the Harrismen and Yankees.

It showed that, although the official time of the contest was listed as 2 hours and 31 minutes, the actual playing time was 1 hour, 6 minutes and 36 seconds, with more than an hour lost during innings and more than 21 minutes consumed between rounds.

In making this discovery that more than half of the time of the usual game means nothing at all, the watch was started when the pitcher took his place on the rubber. It was stopped when balls were fouled and a hit or an error, when the ball was returned to the infield after time was taken out. Fifths of seconds were not recorded except that over three-fifths were charged as a whole.

Fans no doubt will be interested in exact figures—so here they are:

Third inning—Elasped time, 12m. 5s.; actual playing time, 6m. 3s.

RECAPITULATION.

Loss of time between innings—21m. 18s.

Helen Wills at Last Barrier In World Tennis Title Quest

Victory This Week at Forest Hills Will Crown Her Queen of Courts—English Star Is Rival.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (A.P.)—Victory for Helen Wills in the American women's championships at Forest Hills, Long Island, next week will crown the young California girl "Queen of Tennis" without a murmur of dispute for the first time since she scaled title heights.

The American girl's triumps abroad earlier in the season, including the Wimbledon singles, removed all doubt about her ability to come back after the appendicitis operation that forced her out of competition early last year. If she caps her campaign with a convincing victory at Forest Hills, there will be no hesitation in awarding her the international honors that Suzanne Lenglen until this year was able to dispute with "Our Helen."

Suzanne, now a "pro," is no longer in the title picture, nor is a conclusive test between her and Miss Wills now possible. Many close observers wil contend that but fo her illness Miss Wills would have dethroned the French star last year. But Suzanne won their first and only engagement, in two straight and hard-fought sets, on the Riviera.

Whatever the rival merits of Helen's play now, and that of Suzanne at her peak, little doubt remains of the dominant place the 21-year-old California girl has now attained. Having decisively defeated this season, or before, most of the stars in her path at Forest Hills, it would be the most astonishing sort of an upset for her to falter there.

Foremost of her rivals is probably Kitty McKane Godfree, the captain of Britain's Wightman Cup team. Playing a versatile game, in which her volleys sparkle as a rule, Mrs. Godfree has two victories over Miss Wills to her credit, and has extended the American on other occasions.

Among her homebred rivals, Miss Wills seems to have little to fear. The defending champion, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, although always a courageous foe, has passed the peak of her game. Her return to the title last year, after a lapse of four seasons, was gained through a victory over Miss Elizabeth Ryan in a tournament which did not have Miss Wills in the lists.

The most promising of the younger stars, Miss Helen Jacobs, has not yet reached the extent of her possibilities, as her decisive defeat at the hands of Miss Wills recently demonstrated.

PREP TEAMS TO BE BUILT ANEW

Gonzaga Retains Two Veterans; Devitt Has Old Line.

THOUGH handicapped by the loss of leading stars through graduation, Gonzaga, Devitt, St. John's and Georgetown Prep loom as the strongest threats this fall in prep school gridiron cirles.

Gonzaga retains only two letter men in Capt. Thomas Brew and George Garvin, halfback, but the Eye Streeters are noted for strong elegens, and before the season is far under way is expected to have a formidable machine. Farrell and Hinkel, of last year's squad, will be available, and undoubtedly will be given regular posts this season. Farrell is a backfield man and Hinkel a guard. Coach Simondinger is expected to call out his men early for practice, probably on the Georgetown freshman field.

The fact that all schools were hit heavily places Georgetown Prep among the select class, although it must build up practically a new team. St. Alban's a great rival of the Garret Parkers, is without the services of a number of its stars, and until the season is farther advanced its status is doubtful.

Devitt is a little better fixed than most of the other schools in that it will have a strong line which will protect greatly the new backfield it must build up. The bulwark of the ball toting will fall upon the shoulders of Bert Kennedy.

Coach Zebe Sullivan, at St. John's College, is to return shortly and will probably select the Tidal Basin again as the training grounds for his eleven.

J. H. Riley, Veteran Oarsman, Is Dead

Riley was a survivor of the days of Hanlon, Courtney, Plaisted and Ten Eyck. He was a participant in many of the important rowing races in America half a century ago. A victory over Ned Hanlon was one of his achievements.

"Football is no longer a sentiment with me," he said here today in announcing that he had turned down three proposed contracts from American League Clubs.

As a University of Washington player, Wilson was almost unanimously chosen all-American back after the season of 1925. Last year he led his own professional team. The rejected contracts were submitted by Chicago, New York and Philadelphia organizations.

Barracks Nine Bows To Columbia Firemen

Alexandria, Va., Aug. 20.—Columbia Engine Company easily defeated the Washington Barracks this afternoon by the score of 12 to 5. Good pitching coupled with extra-base hits won the game for the firemen, while Darley, with two doubles and a single, led the attack for the winners, while Davison secured three hits for the losers. Tomorrow afternoon the Columbia boys will face the toughest foe they have faced this year when they will have as their opponents the Jefferson District Firefighters.

Arthur Playground Is Winner in Meet

The surprise of the interplayground meets of the season came when Arthur Playground defeated New York Avenue in a thrilling and closely contested duel at the New York Avenue Playground. Although outnumbered the Jones-Costello proteges stubbornly contested every race to the final 70 to 61 score in their favor.

New York Avenue uncovered a star in the unlimited 70 when Coulter breasted the tape ahead of Himmelfarb, of Arthur, in the fast time of 8 seconds. The half-mile again proved its popularity when twelve contestents faced the starting gun. Colbert, of Arthur, won the event after a stirring duel with Raidy, of New York Avenue. Himmelfarb, of Arthur, sprinting by Carlo Villari, of the same school, for the third place.

In the field, Shepback, of Arthur, was the outstanding performer, leaping 16 feet 2 inches in the running broad jump for the 100-pound boys. Stepper, of New York Avenue, was a close second for honors, when he skimmed over the bar at 5 feet in the high jump for the same class.

Dr. Parson's fine score of 96, considering that he shot from 18 yards in the second session of the 200 bird race, earned for him the District handicap title. E. R. Colberth, with 90, was second best in this part of the program. Colberth won the trophy from the 18-yard mark.

GOLFERS WARM UP FOR NATIONAL PLAY

Among those in the select list are Charles Evans, of Chicago, twice champion; Francis Ouimet, of Boston; Robert A. Gardner, of Hinsdale; Max R. Marston, of Philadelphia, and William C. Fownes, jr., president of the United States Golf Association.

Among the stars that have not glittered on that highest plane, but whose practice rounds and past performances stamp them as serious contenders, are such players as Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, Minneapolis, and Eddie Held, of St. Louis.

Both Johnston and Held have shown better practice scores than Jones, and the latter has complained bitterly that he is "way off his game." But then, he said he was also off it when he won the British open.

Minikahda is an all-green course, the fairways showing the same verdancy as the greens, although they are, of course, firmer than the greens.

Three days of sunshine have taken much of the moisture out of the fairways, after a midweek downpour of rain, and the drives today had longer rolls and more bound.

Harold Thompson, of Pasadena, Calif., who has shown consistently good cards throughout the week, turned in a 75 today, 3 over par. Al Moser, of Los Angeles, had a 76, while Dave Martin, of San Francisco, finished with a 74, after going the first nine in par 35.

Battling Nelson Refused as Referee

The $25 the one-time world's lightweight champion left with the State Boxing Commission as a fee for a referee's license was returned to him. That implies his application was denied.

16TH ARTILLERY AND WHITES WIN POLO GAMES

Hard-Fought Tourney Looms

Third Cavalry Does Well in Defeat, 4 to 2.

DURING the two games of polo yesterday on the Potomac Park oval the fans had visions of a hard-fought fall championship tourney. The fast-going Sixteenth Field Artillery Squad, led by Capt. Sharpe, gave a near-perfect exhibition to down the War Yellows, 9 to 0. The War Whites had to fight every inch of the way to get a 4-to-2 verdict over Third Cavalry.

In the spring tourney the Artillerymen gave the veteran War White combination a strenuous battle to win and, judging from the showing of the two teams yesterday, the odds will be nearly even when the youthful Army officers meet the Whites next month in tournament play.

Capt. Sharpe was the particular bright light of the Artillery stand. He scored four goals and handled his team in a masterful style. Lieut. Pence gave Capt. Sharpe a close race for individual honors, although he was up for but two chukkers. He scored once and wielded his mallet in rare form during his short stay in the game.

Third Cavalry covered itself with glory by holding the champion War White four to a 4-to-2 score. This match was much faster than the first, furnishing sensational riding and driving throughout. The old reliables for the Whites, Col. Margetts and Maj. Woodward, gave the Whites their margin of victory.

Dempsey's Fan Mail Rivals Movie Stars'

Chicago, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey has as big a fan mail as the most popular movie star, according to his secretaries, Miss Marie Hannon and Leonard D. Sacks. They began wading in 6,500 letters and 500 telegrams today.

"Each day we get about 5,000 letters from fans and a thousand more on business," Miss Hannon said. On the eve of a battle the number is doubled, she added.

Tunney Ignores Tradition In Conducting His Camp

Champion Refuses to Draw Mother Into Ballyhoo—Declines to Pose as Dishwasher—Has No Chef.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Gene Tunney's training camp, if you would call it a camp at all, is another violation of the sacred traditions of the pright fight industry where most cherished traditions have suffered much at the hands of this book-reading pugilist within the last year. You may not have noticed it, but Tunney just about demolished one of the oldest and tenderest traditions the industry had when he refused to stand for news photographers showing him helping his mother dry the dishes or turn the mattresses—two standard poses used since memory runneth to prove that a new champion is good to his home folks.

Tunney did not go into great detail regarding his ideas on this subject, but he intimated that a mere news picture of this type would prove nothing, as a champion might pose for the flashbomb with a look of intense filial piety on his countenance and tell his mother to shut up and go on out to the movies or on up to bed as soon as the photographer had unstrapped his tripod.

It is his decision that his mother shall never be used as an incidental character in the ballyhoo tableau for any of his prize fights. In fact, I doubt that you ever have seen any photograph of Tunney's mother posed, sniped or looted off the mantel shelf by a picture chaser disguised as the gas man in any of the papers, either before Tunney was champion of the world or since then.

The picture editors tell the photographers for God's sake to get some shots of that fellow doing what a prize fighter does in a training camp, but when the photographers ask him to grab the handles of a wheelbarrow and pretend to be pushing it around the place or to climb a tree on the edge of the clearing, he tells them not to be preposterous or ludicrous, as he does not push a wheelbarrow or climb trees in his training, although such obliging boys as Paul Berlenbach, Jack Delaney and even Jack Dempsey, himself, have done as much.

In this place, Tunney resides in a small cottage situated about a whoop-and-a-holler down the mountain pike from the roadside clutter of wooden hotels, boathouses, gasoline pumps and such-like familiar appointments of a fresh water summer resort.

There is no detective sergeant squatting on the top stoop as in Dempsey's training quarters, nor does Tunney maintain any such household menagerie of bottle holders and motion picture prize fighters, generally to be described as lop ears, as usually are to be found where Dempsey is training.

In this cottage he lives alone, save that the elderly Will McCabe, known only as Gene Tunney's best friend' is invited to sleep in the spare room when he comes up to Speculator. The best friend is Tunney's only concession to regularity in the role of heavyweight champion. There never was a heavyweight champion without a best friend, and there never was a best friend who lasted through his champion's administration.

Jack Curley was the best friend of Jess Willard and he never speaks ill of Willard and the best he wishes him is the worst of everything. Wild Bill Lyons and Detective-sergeant Mike Trant, of the Chicago police force, were joint claimants of the title of best friend to Dempsey when he was champion, but Detective-sergeant Fred Tapscott, one of Detective-sergeant Trant's comrades in mufti and number 11 shoes, was posted on Dempsey's front stoop at the last training camp in Saratoga, with instructions to ostracize them over the place they should appear, as happily they did not.

According to tradition, when the heavyweight champion desires food, there should be a tremendous banging of skillets and sizzling of pig-fat on the gasoline stove in the kitchen eventually eventuating in a sole-leather steak, burned to a clinker, and a coffee pot with a smoke-blackened belly and a heavy deposit of coffee grounds in the spout.

The producing genius behind these culinary triumphs usually is a colored gentleman, who once warmed a can of delicatessen soup for his own repast along some remote railroad right-of-way and thus discovered previously unsuspected talents as a chef. He probably boasts about his biscuits, which means that the champion must eat the biscuits and suffer the consequences or decline to eat them and wound the chef's feelings.

As an extra duty the chef probably launders the towels and boxing tights, and from such casual meals as I have shadow-boxed my way through in various training camps, I suspect that he often confesses one function for another.

Tunney has no chef. On the contrary, he takes his meals with tourists, vacationists and the numerous family of proprietors in the dining room of the hotel, answering mess calls promptly under penalty of the customary dirty look of woundedness from the waitress for tardiness.

One of the numerous family of proprietors is Will Osborne, late of the United States Marine Corps, and I think it was as much Will Osborne's military record as his hospitality and the natural attractions of the country which brought Tunney here in the first place.

Tunney says he will stay until the first of September because he couldn't possibly do as well in a training camp near Chicago. Aside from some boxing in the afternoon, he is living about the same life that any vigorous vacationer would live.

LOCAL anglers have two contests scheduled, and with fishing at its best this season no trouble should be experienced in landing something worth putting in as an entry.

The Howard A. French sport goods store is the sponsor of the latest contest, which, by the way, is a one-day affair, and which will be in the nature of an excursion today to Chesapeake Beach. Prizes will be offered for the largest fish caught by a woman angler, the largest trout caught, and other similar awards. Arrangements have been made to use the fleet of boats owned by Noah Hazzard, a captain who has experienced good luck this season in taking out fishing parties.

The second contest has been running some time, but little has been said about it of late because bass fishing on the Potomac River has not been unusually good. The Atlas store is sponsor of the contest and has valuable prizes up for the largest bass caught. The rules of the contest will be furnished by this store.

The Vic Sport Shop at 716 Ninth street, recently opened by Vic Gauza, also is planning an attractive contest to test the skill of the local fishermen. Details will be announced soon.

Several exceptionally big catches were reported this week. Spot and trout were running very good, and more Taylor or bluefish made their appearance.

W. Berry headed a party that visited Chesapeake Beach, catching 30 trout and 5 hardheads, the largest trout weighing 6 pounds, which can be classed as a fine catch. The party fished this side of Red Top.

About the biggest single haul was made at Solomons Island by Guy Roane, John Krumbine and Lou Kolodin. The three declared that they took 325 fish, including spot, hardheads and 15 trout. Kolodin caught the majority of the trout. The party hooked 5 Taylors, which were all small, weighting only about three-quarters of a pound apiece.

Z. Clark and a party who fished at Kopels Point Thursday experienced great luck, with a catch of about 300 trout, hardheads and spot. Bloodworms, shrimp and peeler crabs were used.

William E. Wilson, Joseph Lang and Frank Chesney, who were trolling at Herring Bay, caught 58 trout, which ranged from 1 to 8 pounds for the largest.

Thompson Is Star In Scapa Flow Meet

Plans are under way at Scapa Flow pool for the largest race meet of the season when, on September 3, District championships will be at stake. A large entry is expected to compete in the races, which will be held under the auspices of the South Atlantic Association of the A. A. U.

In the finals of a series of meets held at Scapa Flow yesterday, Owen Thompson, with a total of 20 points, captured the Scapa Flow silver loving cup. Norman Smith was second, with 18 points, and Helen Carr third, with 15 points

In the 50-yard free style race Thompson defeated Van Horn and W. Miller, the latter two finishing second and third respectively. The time was 27 3-10 seconds. In the 440-yard race Thompson finished first again, ahead of J. Johnson and Duke Potterton, winning in 7 minutes 6 3-5 seconds. The men's back stroke event was won by W. Miller.

Helen Carr won the 50-yard breast stroke event for women, but lost the 100-yard free style event to Doris Halford. In the boys' 75-yard free style race Norman Smith defeated Molyneux.

The officials were Nicholson, A. Levin and M. Leach.

Cubs, Synthetic, but Keep Experts Busy Explaining

By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD.

THOSE "synthetic Cubs." While local fandom is engrossed with Washington's vain effort to catch the fast-stepping Yankees, the National League experts are scratching their heads and attempting to ease their conscience in explaining why the Cubs are showing their heels to the powerful Pirates, the champion St. Louis Cardinals and the expensive New York Giants. Their final deduction is that the Cubs are a synthetic outfit, which all goes to prove that everything synthetic is not so bad after all.

There is no denying that the Cubs on paper do not look like a first-place outfit, but nevertheless those same Cubs are plugging away, winning ball games, and Chicago fans are already beginning to recall the Cub machine of 1906 and incidentally the famous Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance combination in an effort to get all warmed over the prospects of another world's series.

That the experts picked the Cubs to finish in fourth place is not surprising. They looked upon the Cubs as not having much of an infield and not much of an outfield and not much of a ball club in addition to the fact that Manager Joe McCarthy was an ex-bush leaguer, just coming up.

But in McCarthy the experts overlooked a bet. The first thing McCarthy did when he took over the reins last season was to let the Cubs know that he was boss, and as boss his men would have to be on their toes fighting every inch of the way. McCarthy promised Chicago a winner, and his general manner and that square, set jaw of his was full proof that he meant what he was speaking.

McCarthy, blessed with a weak hitting infield, which sadly needed bolstering up, picked up Earl English, a shortstop from Toledo during the off season. Early this year he grabbed Eddie Pick, a third baseman from Kansas City, also of the American Association. English has been a valuable asset and Pick has filled the bill somewhat satisfactorily at third base. McCarthy, however, just recently obtained Elmer Yoter, another third baseman, from the Indianapolis Club in exchange for Fred Haney and considerable cash.

McCarthy's move of trading Tony Kaufman and Jim Cooney to the Phillies for Hal Carlson was a gem of scheming. McCarthy saw early in the season, before the other clubs began to take Chicago seriously, that his team would be fighting for the pennant if he had but one more reliable pitcher. Carlson filled the bill, for he gave the Bruins a well-rounded staff which could be relied upon to win consistently and yet the five stars, Root, Bush, Blake, Carlson and Percy Lee Jones could be given a regular turn on the mound.

As this writing Root has won 22 games, Carlson 9, Bush 8 and Blake 10, or a total of 49 games. Last year the cardinals won the pennant and their four best hurlers, namely Rhem, Sherdel, Haines and Alexander turned in but a combined total of 51 victories for the season. The same as in 1906, when the Cubs relied upon Brown, Pfeister, Ruelbach and Lundgren, who turned in 82 wins, pitching is the deciding factor in the race. That's one department of the team that there is nothing synthetic about.

When McCarthy parted with Tony Kaufman he parted with a young pitcher, but one who was erratic and failed to perform at his best for Chicago. Doubtless the fact that Kaufman ran a smoke shop of his own on the North Side and his avowed fondness for the boxing matches and the fact that his home was in Chicago was responsible for his faulty showing.

What punch the Cubs do possess is mainly centered in the hitting of the outfielders. McCarthy has Riggs Stephenson, former Indian star who he dug up from the association and who is hitting the ball at a .341 clip. In center Hack Wilson, one of John McGraw's "bloomers" of judgment is a North Side Chicago idol. Wilson at this writing is hitting .320. In right Earl Webb, the Louisville slugger has been playing with the best of them in this, his first year in the big show. His batting average of .324 is ample proof. Cliff Heathcote at present is holding down the right field berth, as his longer experience is now needed in the crucial race in which the club is now engaged. Scott who often fills in, is the fastest man on the club and "death" on left-handed pitching. He also is hitting over the .300 mark with an average of .313.

For the pinch hitting role, McCarthy has Charley Tolson, who delivers. He also is a capable sub for Grimm at first. Webb, Heathcote and Scott can also be used in this role.

"Who is this McCarthy?" the other clubs are asking. He has answered them by putting the scrappiest, cockiest team in the majors today, on the field. The Cubs were admittedly a fourth place team. The players believed it. But McCarthy has put them on their toes and has implanted such words as "pennant," "fight," hustle," into the minds of the players that they have fully accepted his viewpoint that they are a "team of destiny."

The Cubs have won more small score games than any other National League team this season, climaxing the feat by winning eight games recently in two weeks, which were decided by a single run. The Chicago clan cashes in on the mistakes of the opposition more than any other club in the circuit.

The Chicago manager brought an innovation into the league, in introducing a stunt of having a coach on the bench for the players who do not start the game. The coach keeps the substitutes all pepped up and from going to sleep and more than one pair of pants has been worn out by keeping the players keyed up so they could not sit still on the bench, over the excitement of the play out on the field.

While the fact that McCarthy came up from the minors was not looked upon highly by the rest of the pack, that same experience, however, that he gained in the Association has helped him greatly in his deals. Beck, Yoter, Pick, English, Maurice Shannon and Wilson and Webb, both of whom McGraw passed up, have all with the exception of Shannon, who did not stay up, and Yoter, who just came to the club, done well.

The Cubs may or may not win the pennant, but McCarthy can be given credit of building up the best fighting and hustling club in the big leagues today.

TWO HOP OFF FOR BIKE RECORD

Harry Cameron and Hassley on Weekend Diversion.

TWO more bicycle enthusiasts started pedaling around the Polo Field last night in quest of endurance records set by Milton Albert Smith last week.

Cameron began his grind at 9:01 and Hasslup "took off" one minute later. Edgar Bieber, junior bicycle champion of Washington, acted as official starter. The boys plan to ride continually until they break or make endurance records.

Cameron is a Hyattsville boy, just past 15 years old, and has been "tuning up" for this event while delivering papers on his Hyattsville route. He is a member of the Century Road Club of bicycle riders. This organization is sanctioning the event and is led by Robert Conner, president; Edward Peters, treasurer, and Jim Barnes, secretary. Cameron will be watched, checked and fed by his companion, Edgar Bieber, who will be with him throughout.

High Grid Coaches Will Return Soon

The next two weeks will mark the return of the respective High School gridiron coaches to the city after a summer spent at various camps and as umpires of nearby leagues.

Coach Guyon, at present an arbiter in the Eastern Shore League, expects to return in time to call out his Eastern High School candidates shortly after Labor Day. "Hap" Hardell, who has been at a Y. M. C. A. camp, plans to take his Tech squad out to University of Maryland for early practice. Coach Dan Ahearn, at Western, will complete his duties at Camp Overall the latter part of the month and after a short vacation in New Hampshire will be ready for grid activities at Western.

Chevy Chase Trounces Annapolis A. C., 11-5

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 20.—Local baseball followers were given an unusual sight at the Annapolis Baseball Park this afternoon when the hard-hitting Chevy Chase Athletic Club defeated the local club, 11 to 5. The home boys were outplayed afield, while the visitors' lusty bats ran out sixteen safe hits.

Annapolis got three runs in the first two innings, but Chevy Chase knocked Wiltse, former Reina Mercedes moundsman, from the hill in the fourth, and kept after Kelly. Batson was given spectacular support, especially by Bobby Stevens, shortstop, recently returned from the Hanover Club of the Blue Ridge League.

The Chevy Chase Team will journey to Camp Meade tomorrow for a game with the Soldiers.

BALLSTON AND ST. JOE IN CRUCIAL SERIES GAMES

West Section Lead to Be At Stake

BARRING the appearance of the rain jinx which has prevented the Ballston and St. Joseph's Teams from playing and from getting title matters in the west section of the unlimited class of the Capital City League on three previous occasions, these nines will meet in the long-looked-for battle at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the Friendship Field.

William Fiester's hopeful band of Hartfords and the baseball team of the Hess A. C. will provide the action in the last section in a single contest, scheduled for the Washington Barracks Diamond at 3:30 o'clock.

The games of both divisions have important bearing in determining the section winners, and the St. Joseph-Ballston clash is more or less crucial for the participants as the outcome of these games will probably decide who shall represent the west section in the play-off for the unlimited championship.

The Hessmen, practically out of the pennant race, can cause disaster in the Hartford camp with a surprise victory, that would put the leading Northeast Motors aggregation far above its contenders, and make neighbors of the teams playing today in their second and third-place positions.

Tripp, Van Landingham or Bellman is the probable pitching choice for the Hartfords, with the former having the edge in the assignment. Deuterman or De Marco will pitch for Hess.

The Ballston-St. Joseph's feud, that stands out among the feature games on today's sandlot program, has benefited greatly by the postponement from a competitive angle.

St. Joseph's is certain to feel the loss of Morris, whose hitting and defensive play in the outfield have been deciding factors in the Saints' drive for first place. He is recovering from an operation.

Tom Stolle, former Quantico Marine twirler, Augustine or Farrington will hurl for St. Joe. Manager Wood, of Ballston, will probably call upon Sebastin and King to ward off the dangerous threat of the northeast club.

Both teams have practiced diligently for today's game, which, if advance information can be taken at its face value, should furnish one of the sandlot classics of the season.

Flaherty Seeks Fulfillment Of Grid Dreams at Fordham

By ORREL MITCHELL.

WHEN a young man, fresh from high school ranks, having the courage and confidence to face a big test, and by sheer pluck and grit makes good, only to lose out after he had reached the peak of success, it is very disappointing, to say the least, and yet encouraging for the young man in person.

That is the story of Vincent Flaherty, a robust redheaded, young Irish youth of 20, former Eastern High School and St. John's College star, and the tale of his shattered dream to play for Notre Dame.

However, young Flaherty plans to start his collegiate career anew, and will enter Fordham University in the fall. He leaves on next Sunday for New York, where the Maroon football squad will begin its preliminary training on the 29th. The lad was highly recommended to Maj. Frank Cavanaugh by such football personages as Knute Rockne and Richard (Dick) Hanley, coach at Northwestern University, and the Fordham coach thinks he has in Flaherty the making of a real star.

When Flaherty was offered a scholarship to play football at Notre Dame, he didn't sit down and peruse over his chances of making the team, but immediately "hopped" his way to South Bend, Ind., and the journey was considerably longer than it sounds. That was last September.

Arriving at the South Bend institution, the capital youth was given one of his greatest thrills, when the famous Knute Rockne, himself, received him and told him to report for practice on the next day.

A flurry of footballs flying through the air and a veritable army of players thrilled the newcomer almost to a point of nervousness, as he trotted out on the field in the midst of a galaxy of grid performers. "Red Head," as he was popularly called by Rockne and the other coaches was assigned to an end position on the fourteenth freshman team.

The fighting spirit of Flaherty in the daily scrimmages impressed the coaches, and the following six weeks saw his promotion to the first freshman team where he alternated at a halfback and end positions.

Once acclimated to the atmosphere of the place, the husky prospect from Washington, who weighs 190 pounds and stands 6 feet 1 inch in his stocking feet, was showing those admirable physical qualities to great advantage. Flaherty was making good wth emphasis, and had become well adapted to the Notre Dame style of play.

In the examination of the scholastic requirements of the first-year students, however, Flaherty's scholastic record was found two credits shy for the course he had started at Notre Dame.

Rockne, greatly enthused over his prospect, proposed to send him to Culver Military Academy, where he might make up the credits, and continue his course this year, but the lad would not consider this plan and returned home, heartbroken, at the end of the football season.

Vincent began his athletic career in 1922 as a member of the St. John's baseball and football teams. During the following two years he attended Eastern High School, and performed at the end and fullback positions for the football team in the high school series.

In 1925 he returned to St. John's, his former allegiance, where as captain of the football eleven, he earned recognition as one of the best developed players in prep school. An injury to his arm in 1924 cut short his promising diamond career.

Vinnie is a younger brother of Pat Flaherty, former Washington pitcher, who played with Red Grange's Yankees in the Professional Football League last season.

VINCENT FLAHERTY.

2 PETWORTH LEAGUE GAMES

T. T. Keanes Oppose Yorkes; Tremonts Face Kanawhas.

TWO games are scheduled in the Petworth League today. The T. T. Keanes meet the Yorkes on the South Ellipse at 3 o'clock and the Tremonts engage the Kanawhas on the East Ellipse at the same time.

As the schedule nears its end all the teams are fighting to a finish. The Yorkes with their lowly position feel that they can upset the Keanes even if all the odds are against it. The plucky cellar champs, after being battered from pillar to post, think that although very late to start, a game on the right side of the ledger will help the runner-up teams not a little. Therefore, they will present their best front against the league leaders. Jewett, Jones or Shreve are ready to hurl.

The Tremonts can knock the Kanawhas out of the race entirely by a win over the Jewish boys. Manager Pete Ciango has that thing in mind, too, and he will use his hurling ace, Tack Ensor, in an effort to get a toehold on second place.

The Kanawhas, on the other hand, want another chance at the Keanes and will be striving for a victory that will place them once more on the heels of the coveted first position.

Phil Sykes or Newman will occupy the mound for the Kanawhas. Everything points to another one of those masterful pitching batles that has featured each time these teams have met.

Takoma Tigers Play At Oxon Hill Today

The Takoma Tigers journey to Oxon Hill today to play the team of that town at 3 o'clock.

A good game is predicted as both nines have revamped their line-ups. Paul Buscher will pitch for the Tigers. All latter players are requested to meet at the District Line at 1:30 o'clock.

SPEAKERS IN FIELD.

The Tris Speaker Insects are in the field for games with Insect nines. New members, between the ages of 12 and 14, are also wanted. Call Manager Coleman, if interested, at North 6646. The Mathewsons forfeited to the Speakers yesterday, 9 to 0.

JUNIOR NINES IN HARD GAMES

Leaders in 3 Sections Meet Formidable Opponents.

JUNIOR nines are carded heavily today, Section A offering the Auths and Kennedys in the feature game on Diamond No. 1, starting at 11 o'clock. The Senators and Waverlys clash on Diamond No. 3 at 11 o'clock, and Palace and Coco Colas mix on Diamond No. 4 at 1 o'clock in the other A games.

Section B schedules the Peerless and Jewish Community Center nines in another twin bill, Diamond No. 9 furnishing the scene, with the first game starting at 11 o'clock. The Lindberghs and Montellos play on the South Ellipse at 11 o'clock.

Sction C lists the Corinthians and Manhattans on the Plaza at 1 o'clock and the Smithfields and Central Reds on Diamond No. 10 at 11 o'clock.

The Auths can virtually clinch honors by defeating the Kennedys twice today. The latter club, however, is determined to break into the win column. Plenty of action is expected in this pair of games.

The Waverly will endeavor to jump from fifth to second place in their tussle with the Senators. Teams in this section are waging one of the closest fights. Every game means something. The result of the Palace and Coco Cola game will place the winners in a better position to strike the leaders.

The Peerless Nine in its twin bill with the J. C. C. tossers can run away from all opponents if they win just one engagement. The "Yankees" of this section have had an easy time of it so far.

They won't be pushed so much when the Lindberghs and Montellos, cellar dwellers, clash. The result of this latter game has no bearing on standings of the race. A good game is predicted, though, as these teams can still offer fight.

The Corinthians bested the Manhattans last Sunday in the only game played, and thereby strengthened their first-place position by several notches. Another game is carded today, and the Manhattans must win to stay in the race. Otherwise, a cinch for the Corinthians.

Another pair of lowly teams meet when the Smithfields and Central Reds face. Each will be fighting to push the other farther in the rut. The loser today will have undisputed possession of last place.

Ku Klux Klan Plays Purcellville Tossers

The Ku Klux Klan Baseball Team, which has upset many leading unlimited nines this season, entertain the strong Purcellville Club today on the Arlington Horse Show grounds at 3 o'clock.

The Sam Rice Midgets hung up their twelfth straight by defeating the Alligator Nine yesterday, 13 to 8. Robertson and Wood led at bat with three hits apiece. Mates was the winning pitcher.

Rice players are requested to meet at 10 o'clock at the Plaza today as pictures will be taken of the team.

The contest developed into a pitchers' battle between McPherson, of the Villagers, and Russell, of the losers, with the former having a slight edge. Ed Lynch Engaged to Wed After Gridiron Romance

Miss Cecilia Garry, of Roanoke, Is Bride.

C. U. Star to Walk to Altar on Sept. 1.

ED LYNCH, former Catholic University three-sport star, and later one of the outstanding football performers in the Professional League, will marry Miss Cecilia Garry, of Roanoke, Va., September 1.

The romance started a few years back when C. U. was playing Roanoke College at Roanoke and Miss Garry, a rooter, at the game, became enthralled by the marvelous play of the fullback and defensive ace.

Lynch, while at C. U., played for four years on the football and basketball teams and although he was a first-rate baseballer, he made his letter in that sport his first two years and due to the strain of the other two sports and the necessity of keeping up in his studies did not go out for the diamond sport his last two years.

After leaving C. U. Lynch played professional football with Rochester, Detroit and Waterbury teams of the Professional League, and with Washington, Detroit, and Jackson Professional Basketball Teams.

ED LYNCH.

Miss Garry is a member of an old and wealthy Virginia family, and is an enthusiastic follower of all sports. After the marriage the couple will go on a honeymoon to Europe. On their return they will probably make their home in Washington or Roanoke.

Dutch Eberts, who also gained fame as a basketball player at Catholic University, and now prominent as a court official, will be the best man at the wedding.

HARPS RENEW FEUD WITH KNICKS

WEE WILLIE GLASCOE will lead his band of Shamrocks to the Knickerbocker Hollow, where at 3 o'clock today it will renew its old feud with the recently organized Knickerbockers.

For the past several years the District independent title has been confined to the merits of these teams, and today's battle will be no exception. The clashes between these rivals in the last three years, when sandlot baseball had reached its zenith, has produced some memorable baseball classics.

Although several veterans who have graced the line-ups of the opposing teams for many years will be found again at their old posts, when the teams take the field, many new young players, acquired to keep up the strength of the teams, will be seen on the rival rosters.

Burrows, of the Harps, and McCarty, of the Knicks, most likely will be the starting hurlers, but sandlot fans with the memories of the former years' battles still lingering, are hoping to see Ross Fisher, the rotund veteran, and the crafty "Lefty" Kuhnert hook up again, before it is too late.

The strong left arms of these two veterans may have lost some of their speed, but not enough to make them fear even the strongest batters, and the respect of the latter for their pitching craft is not wanting.

Plaza Trackmen Hold Trial Meet Tomorrow

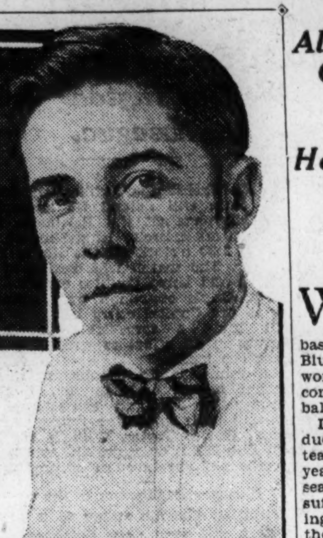
Mertz Lewis Adds Luster To Capital Sandlot Annals



MERTZ LEWIS.

All-Star Team to Be Organized by Him Again.

By ARTHUR A. HEYWOOD.

WASHINGTON sandlot baseball may not list its pioneers and upbuilders of the sport in a baseball's "Who's Who," or a Baseball Blue Book, but nevertheless one man worthy of that honor who has been connected more or less with local baseball for ten years is Mertz Lewis.

Lewis has been a prominent figure due to his connection with leading teams of the city for a number of years. The year 1924 marked his last season as an active player, when he suffered a broken finger while catching for the Black & White team of the Terminal League.

This untimely injury did not keep Lewis out of the game he loved so well. But let's start back at the beginning of his career on the sandlots. In 1919 he organized and managed the Young Nationals, who flashed through that season to the junior championship.

In 1921, Lewis was playing with the crack Independents, the leading senior team. The same year he managed the Hilltop A. C., with whom he had been connected for ten years, in its series. In 1922, Lewis was a member of the Holy Name Seniors, champions of their class.

In 1923, Lewis was found playing with the Roamers, and he also aided in organizing the Chestnut Farms Dairy team, which won the Commercial League pennant the same year. The following year he helped organize the Black & White team, and he was field captain, catcher and outfielder before the injury to his finger forced him out of play.

This spring the Elliott A. C. elected Lewis as manager, but he declined so that he might organize and manage the team for the Northeast Motors, leaders at present in the east section of the Capital City League.

Lewis was the originator of the plan to organize a professional all-star team at the close of the season of the various leagues, his team being composed of local players.

This fall he will organize a similar team. Among the players who have signed to play on this team are: Frank Watt, recently with Detroit; Larry Boerner, of Norfolk; Jack Smith, of Toledo and Norfolk; Fred Noone, of Charlotte of the South Atlantic League; Long, of Bridgeport of the Eastern Shore League; Herbert Young, of Martinsburg of the Blue Ridge League; "Sonny" Burdine, recently with Petersburg, and Earl Clark, of the Boston Braves. Hack Wilson, the Chicago Cubs' star centerfielder, is a personal friend of Lewis', but with the Cubs the possible National League champions, there is little hope that Wilson will play here. Lewis declares that Wilson desired to play here last fall, but the Cubs failed to release him.

Last season every man whom Lewis advertised would play, reported and took part in the games here. Games this year will be scheduled with the leading local clubs.

Today Manager Lewis will lead his Northeast Motors to Arlington for a game with the Arlington Bearcats. The Washington team is requested to be at the Arlington diamond at 2:30 o'clock.

CORINTHIANS AND RICES CLASH

Game Is Feature of Midget Schedule for League.

THE big attraction of the Midget Class is the Section A game between the Rice and Corinthian nines on the Plaza at 11 o'clock. Section B also offers some interesting tussles when the Aces and Eskimos play on Diamond No. 10 at 1 o'clock and the Americans and Calhouns mix on Diamond No. 7 at 3 o'clock.

Great rivalry exists between the Rice and Corinthians. The former handed out a severe trouncing the last time these teams met, and revenge is the motto of the Corinthians today.

Both Milstead and Tate are ready to fling against the Ricemen, while the latter will depend largely on one Mr. Wood, who has so nobly carried the pitching asignments this year.

One game separates the Aces and the Eskimos, and an undisputed leader will hold forth after today. This game should provide plenty of good baseball and in all probability a close score will result.

Two more teams who are still in the running, the Calhouns and Americans, will endeavor to advance in their game. The feature of this Midget Division is that all the teams are so clustered together that a break means a whole lot to every nine. Thus, some very interesting tussles are on tap.

Falls Church Downs Tremont A. C. Team

The Falls Church Nine surprised the Tremont A. C. yesterday by handing them a 7-to-5 set back. The Churchmen hopped on Ensor, star pitcher of the Petworth Leaguers, in the first inning, and drove him to cover. Thompson was the big gun at bat with three sound wallops, while Purvis hurled a steady game, striking out nine opponents.

Aztecs Get Chance at Auths In Today's Senior Feature

National Circles Play Robins; Moose Meet Atlantics; St. Martin's and Crescents Opponents.

THE Aztecs of Section A of the Capital City League are given an opportunity to go into first place today when they meet the undefeated Auths, leaders of the league, in a double-header, on No. 1 Diamond at 1 o'clock.

A victory in both games will put the Aztecs out in front by a slight margin, but to accomplish that feat is much easier said than actually done.

While these two teams are involved in a fight for the leadership the Crescents, holding down the cellar berth, will be given the opportunity to win their first league game when they meet up with St. Martin's on the South Ellipse at 1 o'clock.

Falls Church, in fourth place, will remain idle.

The Section B games will be equally as interesting, as the National Circles and the Moose are separated by only one game and both will play today. The Circles will meet up with the Robins on No. 4 diamond at 1 o'clock, while the Moose and the Atlantics are scheduled on No. 3 diamond at the same time.

The teams in both sections of the league are out gunning for the leaders and some snappy games are sure to be on tap if the weather man does not interfere again.

CASPER TOPS BATTERS IN LEAGUE

JACK CASPER, of the Agriculture Team, is the 1927 batting champion of the Departmental League, according to the final averages for the season, as compiled by Edward J. Conover, official scorer. In the 23 games in which he has participated Casper has hit safely 46 of his 92 official times at bat, for the grand average of .500, a very nice mark in any league.

Wilner, of Government Printing Office, and Fredericks, of Postoffice, are the next most consistent hitters of the league and stand in the runner-up and third positions, respectively.

Tom Giddings, ace of the champion Treasury Nine, is the real leader of the pitchers, having only one defeat in the 12 games he has hurled. Giddings also leads the rival twirlers by a large margin in strike-outs. In the 12 games the Treasury pitcher has retired 115 on strikes, for an average of almost 10 a game.

Barry, of Postoffice, and McBride, of Agriculture, have also turned in some brilliant performances.

As previously stated, the Treasury entry won the Departmental League title after strong opposition from the Postoffice Team. The Mailmen displayed a strong attack, leading the league in club batting with an average of .312, but the greater pitching strength of the Treasury Nine more than offset this advantage.

Treasury won the title in both sections by brilliant pitching, thus eliminating the necessity of a play-off

Silver Spring Meets Black Sox Today

Brook Grubb's Silver Spring tossers face a test today when the Washington Black Sox will be engaged in a double-header at Union League Park, first game starting at 2 o'clock.

The Black Sox has beaten down every local team that has crossed its path this season and a heated pair of tussles are promised, as the Maryland aggregation has also run up an impressive record on the sandlots.

Manager Grubb requests all Silver Spring players meet at the Union League Park clubhouse at 1:30 o'clock.

Harrisburg Giants Play Sox Thursday

The Baltimore Black Sox, who defeated the Washington Black Sox last week, will show their wares before local fans again when the reputed Harrisburg Giants will be entertained at American League Park Thursday at 4:30 o'clock.

The Harrisburg club is rated as the greatest aggregation of colored ball players in the game today. Among the many stars included in their line-up are Oscar Charleston, "Fats" Jenkins, "Heavy" Johnson and Perez, a Cuban performer.

The Baltimore nine also boasts of outstanding stars in the form of Ben Taylor, "Judge" Witson, Max Eggleston, "Scrappy" Brown and Peter Washington.

M'GRAW DECLARES HUSTLING PUTS CUBS ON TOP

Team Alert For Every Break

Smart Players Move in Direction of Each Play.

Pennants Often Won by Attention to Details.

By JOHN J. McGRAW,
Manager, New York Giants.

NEW YORK CITY, Aug. 20.—The difference between what we call a really great ball club and just an ordinarily good ball club is in the ability, willingness and alertness to take advantage of every possible move on the field that may be favorable. The smart club anticipates plays or mishaps that may not occur in a dozen games. When they do happen, however, the advantage of having been prepared and on the job counts heavily. On the bench we call that playing the percentage. And, believe me, it is not easy to make an ordinary ball player look far into the future. A combination of those who do become a great machine. It is such a combination that we managers constantly seek.

Taking advantage of the little things on a ball field is much the same as the man of ordinary income who becomes rich by keeping his money constantly invested so that every point of percentage will work in his favor. The small change adds up big.

It is the failure of the ordinary spectator to notice these little things that makes him wonder why a weak-hitting club can pass a team of heavy hitters in a pennant race. It explains the success of the Cubs this year, for example. It also makes plain why the old Orioles were a great ball club; why the famous "hitless wonders," the White Sox of 1906, came from nowhere, as they say, and won the pennant.

Attention to details is more important in baseball than in any profession or business I know. On most clubs they are overlooked.

On a really smart ball team every player moves in the direction of every play, no matter where it may be. You often hear fans say that such and such a player is good on backing up plays. Well, on a smart club, every player backs up the play. A team must always be prepared for any break that comes.

I had a young center fielder once whom I directed to start toward left or right with the ball even if the other fielder had the ball in his hands. Even if the ball is a foul fly to left the center fielder should immediately move with it. If a single is hit directly at either fielder the other two should start for him with a jump.

It was difficult to make the young outfielder appreciate this, but he kept trying. One day a single was hit to left. Just as the fielder reached for the ball it took a false bound; hit him in the head and would have bounced away for a three-bagger. The young fielder had followed up the play. While the other fielder was stunned, he pounced on the ball, which had rolled toward him, and threw the runner out at second base. That play saved the ball game. The percentage of being on the spot told in the long run.

When Bill Terry started playing first base as a regular it was practically a new experience to him, though he had been a substitute, and also a pitcher. He had many little tricks to learn, and his improvement in one season has been marvelous.

I showed him the advantage of making a start on every fly ball that was hit to the right fielder. Ordinarily you would think an infielder was running himself to death for nothing But this move of Terry's finally bore fruit. On the last Western trip he started for a ball that was going toward Harper in right field. The wind caught the ball and carried it away from him toward the foul line, w e it finally fell safe for a two-bagger. Terry had kept right on going, tho h, and to the surprise of everybody he captured the ball and threw the runner out at third. It isn't often that you hear of a first baseman stopping a two-base hit to deep right field and throwing to third base

The good catcher is one who always backs up first base on every infield play. He may do that for two weeks without getting a play, but when he does capture an overthrow to the bag he may save the ball game. The same thing often happens when the pitcher continually backs up the plate and third base.

Players who do those things are called hustlers. They make up what we know as a hustling ball team. You will find that a hustling ball club usually wins. The percentage is bound to tell in the long run. A lot of good hitting may settle a ball game quickly and make all this activity look foolish and unnecessary. Over a season the games picked up here and there by taking adavntage of "breaks" very often decide a pennant.

Very likely you could point out five or six games that have been won by a smart ball team this way in a season. Most pennants are won by less than that many games. There is your answer.

The Cubs this year have kept right up on top because of their smart, hustling tactics. They never overlook anything. That is why they have kept ahead of several teams that are admittedly stronger hitters.

Incidentally, it is my knowledge of how the old Baltimore Orioles hustled that makes me doubt that a powerful hitting team like the Yanks could have beaten them out in a season's race.

Wheatley Is Winner In Playground Meet

Wheatley won overwhelmingly over Ludlow and Hayes in their meet on the Wheatley Playground. The meet was featured by close finishes in every event, with Wheatley just sufficiently strong enough to garner the majority of points. While Wheatley won every first place with the exception of two, one to Hayes and one to Ludlow, the fight for points was by no means entirely among themselves.

The 70-pound class events called forth the largest number of entrants and the relay in that class which was won by Jim Cunningham's boys from Ludlow by a narrow margin, was the feature event of the days competition.

70-POUND CLASS.

D. C. NETMEN IN INTERCITY MATCH

Baltimore to Meet Washington in League.

THE Washington Public Park tennis team will defend its championship against the Baltimore netmen, in an intercity league match today at 2:30 o'clock on the Henry Park courts. The match will consist of six singles and three doubles events.

The Oriole courtmen were runners-up to the Capital entry last year and will bring a formidable squad of players in an effort to wrest the title from the locals.

Manager Rathgerber, of the locals, realizing the advantage of a good start, will oppose the Baltimoreans with a team composed of the foremost Public Park players.

Dooley Mitchell, No. 1 and Gwynn King No. 2 ranked among the most promising youngsters in this section. Bob Considine No. 3, Maurice O'Neil, Dave Hedekin, Henry Fowler, and Hugh Trigg have been displaying a consistent and brilliant brand of tennis.

Mitchell and King will likely pair as No. 1 doubles, and Considine and O'Neil will team as No. 2 doubles

Wilmington and Chester have withdrawn from the intercity league, leaving the "big three" teams of Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington to fight it out among themselves.

HUME SPRINGS ACTIVE.

Hume Springs Nine defeated the Rex A" Stars, of Alexandria, yesterday, 11 to 9. Vaughan's double with the bases loaded decided the game. The winners are without a game for today. Call Manager Roberts at Alexandria 24.

I like to play golf in the springtime,
When the songs of birds are sweet,
And the ground is covered with violets
Like a carpet for my feet.

I like to play golf in the autumn,
When the air is crisp and keen,
Like a beautiful painted screen.

With a red ball in the snow,
For I laugh to scorn the icy sting
Of the north wind's bitter blow.

But I'd rather play golf in the summer,
With the course as hard as a floor,
When my half-topped drive of a hundred yards
Will run two hundred more!

A GREAT battle will be fought on the course of the Minnekahda Club at Minneapolis this week. The field which will contest for the national amateur golf championship is undoubtedly the most impressive in many years, both in the number of entries and the skill of the players. It includes practically every amateur of note, with national champions and ex-champions too numerous to mention, and many golfers who have won sectional and State titles.

The first struggle will come, of course, in the effort to be among the 32 who, by qualifying, will be eligible for match play. As there are 168 entries, only one in every four can be successful. It is easy enough to select the names of 32 players, who, according to form, ought to qualify, but experience has shown that predictions based upon past performances are not always accurate. Time and time again some comparatively unknown contestant, playing at the top of his game, has come through victoriously, while others, far more distinguished, have encountered one or two unlucky breaks and have fallen outside the breastworks. Anything may happen in either one of the two qualifying rounds of eighteen holes each Francis Ouimet is only one of the many who have learned this to their sorrow.

The par of the Minnekahda course is 72, 35 out and 37 in. At Baltusrol last year scores of 163 qualified for the thirty-second position, but this figure is exceptionally high At Oakmont in 1925 only sixteen were allowed to qualify and that event can not be accepted as a fair standard of comparison. At Merion in 1924 the highest qualifying score was 158, while at Flossmoor in 1923 nothing over 161 was eligible for match play.

Although the Minnekahda course is 6,669 yards in length, it is not of insuperable. difficulty — Harrison Johnston has played it in 67—and it certainly must be much easier to negotiate than Oakmont, where innumerable traps and other hazards play havoc with a medal round.

Taking into consideration the character of the field and the fact that the course, while a test of good golf, is not a second Oakmont, it would seem as if no score over 160 for 36 holes will be worth while. In other words, golfers who would qualify must at least break 80 in each round.

A press dispatch a few days ago stated that the Minnekahda course was not to the liking of Bobby Jones because it has only two holes over 500 yards in length, thus affording him little opportunity to play long second shots with a wooden club. As a matter of fact, the statement is inaccurate, for Minnekahda has three holes over 500 yards—the fourth, 524; the ninth, 512, and the thirteenth, 547. To any one acquainted with championship courses and past records, it seems absurd to assert that Jones is handicapped by the lack of long holes. Oakmont, which is 6,965 yards in length, 300 yards longer than Minnekahda, has only two long holes, 536 and 621 yards respectively. Baltusrol has only one hole, the seventeenth, which is over 500 yards. The same is true of Merion, where there is only one hole, the third, which extends beyond 500 yards. Inwood has only two—and the list might be indefinitely extended—and yet on all of these courses Jones has performed in championship fashion. If long holes are necessary for Jones to win, the Minnekahda course offers exceptional advantage.

The real test will not come on these holes of inordinate length. Glance for a moment at the card of the Minnekahda course. It shows at least four holes, each with a par of 4, which will call for the skill of the long player—the second, 444 yards; the seventh, 455 yards; the tenth, 419 yards, and the sixteenth, 419 yards.

To score par on these holes will take a wallop of a drive and a fine second shot, either with wood or iron. There are four par 5 holes on which it will be apparently easier to obtain pars than on the four holes over 400 yards in length.

As for the outcome of the championship struggle, it can be said that Jones and Von Elm are the leading favorites. Beyond this simple statement, all is guesswork They are unquestionably the outstanding players and it is hoped that they will be drawn in opposite brackets, so that they will not be forced to meet before the semifinal or the final round.

The third hole on the Beaver Dam course was negotiated last week in rather unusual fashion. It is 465 yards in length and yet it was played in an eagle, a birdie and two pars. The four players were William. H. White, who secured the eagle by reaching the green with his second shot and running down a 20-foot putt; J. H. Byrne, who holed out from a distance of thirty feet for a birdie 4, and Luther Florine and R. B. King, who scored pars with two putts after being on the green in the regulation three strokes.

Golfing members of the Washington Dental Association will hold a miniature tournament next Wednesday on the course of the Town and Country Club. Five holes will be played as a qualification round. Players will then be paired according to qualifying scores for nine holes at match play. The winners of the first round will continue playing against each other and the losers will be paired for the consolation prize.

This is the first event of the kind in the history of the assocition and promises to be a pleasant departure from the usual medal play with handicap allowance.

Joseph A. Carey, who was private secretary to the former Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby and now among the long list of Washington attorneys who indulge in golf, played the Indian Spring course last week and sought to equal the score he usually makes on his own course, the Congressional. He was going fairly well until he reached No. 7, which boasts of an expansive lake. Having been so long on shore duty in the Navy, he complained of seasickness after shooting three balls into the water and conceded the hole to his host.

A quartet, consisting of C. H. Pope, Bynum E. Hinton, E. Lodge Hill and John H. Cowles, came into the clubhouse of the Columbia Club last week and announced proudly that the best ball of the foursome was 71, one stroke over par. On the seventh hole both Hinton and Cowles scored birdie 3s, the outgoing nine being played in 34, one under par. On the homeward journey every hole was played in par except the fourteenth and fifteenth, where no player did better than 5, so that the second nine was played in 37.

The sixteenth green at the Congressional Club is being reconstructed. The back of the green is being raised so that a pitched ball will not run over. This hole is a short one, played from an elevated tee, and requires an accurate mashie shot.

Perry B. Hoover, chairman of the golf committee of the Indian Spring Club, with an eagle 3 on the par 5 lake hole, has scored a total of 25 for the first nine of the course in the "ringer" contest. Hoover made birdies on every hole except the seventh. The second nine, however, has been more difficult for him, with only three birdies to his credit.

A unique exhibition was given last week on the course of the Washington Golf and Country Club. Armed with bows 6 feet in length and each with a quiverfull of arrows, W. O. Robinson and J. G. Pratt, president and secretary, respectively, of the Potomac Archers Club, played the Washington course against J. E. Graf and William Wood, the latter the club's assistant professional. A. G. Rice, secretary of the Washington Club, who arranged the match and acted as referee, carried a small target, the bull's-eye being a circle of exactly the same diameter as a putting cup. The golfers used clubs and golf balls, and the archers used arrows and the target. When the green was reached the target was set up about 4 feet from the pin.

The archers won handily, defeating the golfers, 5 up and 4 to play. Pratt had the lowest score, playing 73 shots with his bow and arrow, while Robinson took 81. Graf and Wood had 81 and 80, respectively.

Robinson's arrow flew straight as a string for a distance of fully 225 yards, while Pratt, although covering only about 200 yards, was deadly when it came to hitting the bull's-eye. On the third, eighth, fifteenth and eighteenth, all long holes, the archers were on the green with their second shots.

Golfers in the Congressional Club are discussing the possibility of a father-and-son tournament during the fall, with 16 or 32 entrants. Among the eligibles are E. F. Colladay and S. F. Colladay, J. Ashby Leavell and John M. Leavell, Dr. Bruce L. Taylor and B. L. Taylor, jr., Luther Steward and Luther Steward, jr., C. Royce Hough and C. Royce Hough, jr., Maj. Chester O. Bennett and Melvin Bennett, William Frank Thyson and W. F. Thyson, jr., and Thomas Bradley and son.

Contemplated improvements at the Washington Golf and Country Club include construction of drainage for the fourth and eighth greens, where the seepage from the adjoining hillsides causes trouble, and the building of new tees around the entire course. The first work will begin on the second, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth tees, all of which are in poor condition.

Lieut. Comdr. F. C. Denebrink, of the office of Naval Intelligence, was confronted by some difficulties in playing the Indian Spring course last week, and confided to his host that it was much easier to play golf in the Philippines, where he was recently stationed.

The native caddies in the islands, Commander Denebrink explained, go unshod, and when a player happens to shoot into the rough he does not worry, for by the time he reaches his ball it is invariably reposing in the fairway. "The barefoot caddy," was the further explanation, "has a helpful habit of locating the ball in the rough and then, fixing it securely in his toes, brings it innocently out to the fairway."

William M. Smith, Ed B. DeGraw, Frank Govern and E. I. Ober played a round on the Columbia course last week, cumulative syndicates being a feature of the game. When the quartet returned to the clubhouse Bill Smith was chuckling. He had captured all eighteen.

Junior teams of the Washington and Columbia clubs will play against each other on the Columbia course this afternoon. Other events today include a team match between Argyle and Manor on the course of the latter club, a handicap match against par on the Indian Spring course and the beginning of the Bannockburn Club championship contest.

The scores made in the Indian Spring event will give the handicapping committee additional information on the scoring of members for possible use in completing the revision of handicaps before the annual club tournament and play for the Caywood Cup next month.

Chris. H. Pope, vice president of the Munsey Trust Co., who, as a banker, has a natural bent in his mind toward figures, told an interesting golf story last week.

"I was with a foursome some years ago, and just learning to play golf," he said, "and we started with a modest stake of a nickel a hole. At the fourth tee some one suggested that we play for 10 cents a hole on the fourth, 20 cents a hole on the fifth and 40 cents on the sixth, doubling up as we went along. We all agreed, but when we found that at the tenth hole we were playing for $6.40, one of the party became suspicious and began to do some figuring. If we had kept on, what do you think we would have been playing for on the eighteenth tee? Exactly $1,662.40! All at once all bets were declared off and we went back to our original scheme of a nickel a hole."

BONDS RALLY BRISKLY; SOME SCORE NEW TOPS

U. S. FEDERAL LIST FIRM

New York, Aug. 20 (Associated Press). The bond market, after a brief period of hesitancy on profit taking again moved forward today, with considerable strength. Several issues scored advances of a point or more, and new high records for the year or longer were well scattered through the list. Trading was in rather limited volume, total sales falling below $5,000,000.

Easy money continued to supply the power for the advance of such railway issues as Baltimore & Ohio (Southwestern) 5s, Rock Island 4s and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis 5s, Soo Line 5½s, and Seaboard All Florida 6s, all of which rose to new peak prices. Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh 4½s and New Haven 4s also displayed outstanding strength.

Convertible liens recovered after early realizing, both Erie "D" 4s and Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s converting small losses into gains. Baltimore & Ohio convertible 4½s were bought in moderate amounts and St. Paul 5s improved their previous best figure.

Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s and International Mercantile Marine 6s featured the industrial group, and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s led the utilities, all touching new tops. The last named, however, fell back later for a fractional net loss.

Most of the French issues were heavy under profit taking after their recent advance, but the governmental 8s established a new high record of 114¾. New South Wales 5s sold at their best price of the year.

United States Government bonds were quiet, but firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Firmness of Liverpool cables, an improved seaboard demand for American wheat and late frost damage reports from Saskatchewan gave strength to wheat values here today, closing prices showing a net gain of 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents. Corn was up ⅛ to ½ cent; oats, ⅛ to ¼ cent, and provisions, 5 to 12½ cents advance.

Wet weather in the United Kingdom and the continent was given as the cause of the late upturn in Liverpool. Considerable damage was said to have resulted in many sections because of the rainy weather, while harvesting has been curtailed. These conditions have brought European buyers to a realization of the seriousness of the situation abroad, and they have come into the American market to meet their needs. All offers abroad overnight were accepted, indications pointing to upward of 1,000,000 bushels.

Crop news from Canada continues to be of a conflicting character, some advices indicating that damage will be more severe than estimated, but there are many optimistic reports current stating that from one to three weeks of good weather will be required to mature the entire crop. Temperatures were warmer yesterday and today, but the forecast was for slightly cooler. One leading authority telegraphed that frost damage in the northwest Saskatchewan district was severe and that many fields suffered.

Corn was dull but showed a firm tone most of the session, being influenced largely by the action of wheat. Continued cool weather prevails over the main parts of the belt, but warmer weather is forecast over the week-end.

WALL STREET NEWS BRIEFS

New York, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—No serious setback in business prosperity is seen by Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank of New York, largest bank in America, who sailed today on a European vacation. He denied rumors of an impending increase in the bank's capitalization from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000, which gave the stock a recent sharp rise. The banker takes the view that prevailing easy money rates would have no marked effect upon the bank's earning power. He believed, however, banks that are more reliant on the discount rate ultimately would feel the effect. He could not share apathy with those, he said, who foresaw depression through President Coolidge's decision not to seek renomination.

July surplus of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis (Nickel Plate) was $371,058, after charges, against $422,955 in July, last year, and for the seven months this year $3,665,427, against $4,551,207 in the same period of 1926.

Dividends received by E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., from General Motors Corporation in the first half of 1927 and credited to du Pont's income, were more than double du Pont's earnings from all other sources. Dividends received in the half-year from General Motors were $15,960,331, exclusive of $3,992,488, representing the extra dividend paid by General Motors July 5, whereas net income reported by du Pont for the period, exclusive of General Motors revenues, was $7,908,840.

Hecla Mining Co. had net profit of $972,972, or 97 cents a share, in the first half of 1927. Second quarter profit was equal to 41 cents a share. The regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents was declared payable September 15.

Current business of the Timken Roller Bearing Co. is ahead of 1926, and is expected to continue good the rest of he year, said Walter R. Timken, president, on his departure for Europe. "Although we are in a position to increase the present dividend rate, no likely action in this respect is in prospect. The company's equipment business is coming in well."

80,000 FEWER HANDS NEEDED FOR WHEAT HARVEST THIS YEAR

MODERN ENGINES BRING POSSIBLE EXPANSION

Number of Horses Decreased From 21,047,000, in 1920, to 15,179,000.

Rapid mechanization of the American farm is revolutionizing the entire agricultural industry and is becoming a most important phase of the national farm problem.

Two effects of the rapidly increasing use of improved farm machinery are seen in the unofficial estimates that from 80,000 to 90,000 fewer harvest "hands" will be needed in the Western wheat belt than were required a few years ago and the fact that the number of work horses on farms has decreased from 21,047,000 in 1920 to only 15,179,000 at the beginning of 1927.

Money Saving Machinery.

In the words of one agricultural expert, the rapid development and adoption of labor, time and money saving farm machinery, such as combined wheat harvester-threshers, mechanical corn huskers and pickers, cotton picking machines, and tractors with the progress being made in rural electrification are "tending to convert the American farmer into a manufacturer, rather than a grower, of foodstuffs and raw materials."

The full effects of such improvements as now are in progress in wheat and cotton harvesting, for instance, can not be foreseen, but two possibilities are suggested. It is pointed out that the use of combined harvester-threshers may make it possible to produce wheat economically and on a large scale in wide areas of the West which have not as yet been utilized for this purpose.

A marked impetus thus would be given to American production of wheat. Surplus of even larger proportions than at present would have to be sold in the export market, and American wheat would continue to sell at a world price—a price too low to recompense farmers who raise wheat on high-priced land in the older areas.

Practical Cotton Picker.

In the case of cotton, it is suggested that the development of a practical cotton picker out of present so-called "cotton sled," which strips cotton bolls from the stalks, will make it highly profitable to raise cotton on a much larger scale than at present on the 18,000,000 acres of fine cotton land available in west Texas. In this area a vast amount of cotton can be raised at costs much lower than anywhere else in the United States.

It is suggested that the South Atlantic States, even if they, too, should adopt machine methods would be unable to meet the new competition successfully, and thus would be compelled to give up the production of what has been their staple crop for more than a century.

Value of Farm Machinery.

A rough idea of the growth of mechanical methods in American agriculture during the last 75 years may be gained from the following table, which presents Federal Census Bureau figures on the value of farm machinery and implements in use in the United States for various years since 1850:

Year—	Total value of implements and machinery.	Value per farm.	Value per farm acre.
1860.....	246,118,141	120	.60
1870.....	270,913,678	102	.66
1880.....	406,520,055	101	.76
1890.....	494,247,467	108	.79
1900.....	749,775,970	131	.89
1920.....	3,594,772,928	557	3.76
1925.....	2,691,703,629	422	2.91

Decline shown in the above table for the last five-year period was due in part to the changes in price levels and in part to the agricultural depression.

Increase in Efficiency.

The outstanding result of the steadily increasing application of machine methods to farming has been an enormous increase in agricultural efficiency and one of the certain results in the future will be the speedy elimination of the inefficient farmer.

In 1790, at the time of the first census, the work of seven rural families was required to supply one townsman with food and raw materials, according to the estimates of Prof. N. S. B. Gras, of the University of Minnesota. At present seven rural families supply about 84 townspeople.

According to another estimate, average production per agricultural worker increased threefold between 1820 and 1920. In 1820 it required 60 hours of man labor to bring an acre of corn through the crop cycle by hand methods. The same work could be done with the use of horse power in 1850 in 38 man hours, and in 1900 in 18.

At present, with tractors, two-row cultivators, and power-driven corn pickers, the work which required 60 hours in 1820 can be done in 5 man hours. The labor required in the raising and harvesting of other crops, with a few exceptions, such as cotton and tobacco, has been reduced in similarly dramatic fashion with the spread of machine methods.

Production of Foodstuffs.

The production of foodstuffs and raw materials is a first charge on the labor energies of the nation. If farm families can produce little or no surplus above their own immediate needs, only relatively few people can live in cities and engage in urban pursuits.

This was the situation in 1790, when not more than 90 per cent of the population drew its support directly from agriculture. With the introduction and spread of machine methods in agriculture the proportion of the population engaged in and supported by agriculture has been progressively reduced. In 1920 only 29.9 per cent of the population fell in this category.

High Standard of Living.

Between 1920 and 1925 there was further reduction in the farm population from 31,614,269 to 28,981,693. Thus labor has been progressively released for the vast urban industry which has made it possible for the American people to enjoy their relatively high standard of living.

The reduction of heavy manual labor through the use of machines has rendered farm work less arduous than in the past, and rural standards of living have been raised by the resulting increase in agricultural efficiency. These tendencies should continue with the further mechanization of farm work. As farm investment requirements mount higher and higher there is likely to be a considerable spread of corporation farming in certain sections, and in other sections an increase in the size of family farms, due to the ability of the farmer to crop and harvest larger acreage than formerly with the family labor supply.

REPUBLICAN PARTY ON TRIAL.

If the Republican party should fail to reduce taxation during the next session of Congress it would demonstrate its unfitness to manage the Government.

There is a surplus of not less than $635,000,000. This enormous sum has piled up after huge payments have been made on the public debt and all Government expenses met. Taxes are unnecessarily high. The people are paying into the Treasury more money than is needed. Hence the temptation to squander the surplus is bringing forward all kinds of schemes for appropriations. Unless the party in power keeps firm control of itself it will indulge in a spree of extravagance that will either make it impossible to reduce taxes or, if they should be reduced, make it necessary to increase them in 1929.

By judicious legislation there will be money enough to provide for increase of the Navy, for Mississippi flood relief and for beginning a flood-control project, for public debt reduction, for the conduct of the Government, and for facilitating cooperative agricultural marketing. The drafts thus authorized will not exhaust the Treasury surplus, but will leave a comfortable margin for emergencies and will enable Congress to reduce taxes by at least $300,000,000.

Is there to be judicious legislation, or a jamboree of extravagance and a denial of relief to taxpayers? If a presidential election were not approaching, it would be safe to predict that the surplus would be wiped out by unnecessary appropriations and taxpayers denied any relief. But the Republican leaders, as well as their opponents, have an eye on the campaign, and will hardly dare to go to the country on a record of extravagance and denial of tax relief. The urge for victory will operate powerfully in behalf of the people, and perhaps will overpower the urge for extravagance. It must be borne in mind, however, that strong sectional interests are concentrating in efforts to get appropriations while the getting is good. Combinations among these blocs may succeed in pushing through legislation that would make tax reduction impossible. If Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and the McNary-Haugen blocs should effect a combination, it would be very difficult to prevent the absorption of so many millions that a deficit would supplant the present surplus.

Before blocs and combinations have brought their engines to bear on the Treasury the committees in charge of naval affairs, Mississippi flood control, and current appropriations should advance their programs and secure for them a privileged position. Although the engineers working upon flood-control plans have not completed their work, they are expected to have a plan ready for submission to Congress in December. The House committee on naval affairs can bring in a program for cruiser construction. Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, is always prompt, and he may be depended upon to take care of necessary appropriations for conducting the Government. No plan for helping the farmers has been agreed upon, but President Coolidge has been carefully studying the question and may present a plan that will command the approval of Congress.

The great test of the faithfulness of the Republican party is about to be made. The Republican presidential candidate, whoever he may be, will win or lose on the record made during the coming session. If the party in power should fail to reduce taxes that are superfluous and a temptation to extravagance, the Democratic candidate, whoever he may be, will have an issue that may win over all others and put him in charge of the Nation's business.

NEEDLESS WASTE OF LIFE.

The misfortune attached to the Dole flight between San Francisco and Hawaii is followed by the disappearance of Capt. William P. Erwin and his flying companion. Seven lives have now been placed at the mercy of the Pacific, for no good and sufficient reason. The publicity that rewarded the donor of the prize must have a bitter taste now. The monetary gain of those who made the trip successfully can not be sweet in view of what happened to the other contestants.

Aviation officials of the Department of Commerce state that future long-distance flights should have far better preparation and more stringent requirements than those attending the Dole race. Hereafter, according to department officials, such distance flights should be open only to those who can meet rigid requirements, specified by some competent authority, such as the Army, Navy or Commerce Department experts.

But there is no way to enforce such a procedure. Individuals can not be restrained by law from risking their lives. The work must be done by those with the interest of aviation at heart. No doubt the offer of prizes stimulates the development of flying. There are hundreds of sane ways in which this may be done. No good reason exists why long-distance flights should be made over water. The practicability of crossing both the Atlantic and Pacific has been established. The danger is too great to be lightly regarded. The fact that the chances are 1,000 to 1 against the fliers in the case of even the slightest accident should be well considered.

Long-distance flights may be held without these dangers. Endurance records may be challenged and weight-carrying marks established. All of these offer splendid possibilities to those who can not resist the urge to put up purses for some new aerial performance. Competition for such rewards will still have its risks, but not such foolish ones as have been taken in the past week.

IRELAND AT SIXES AND SEVENS

The well-planned attempt to displace the present executive government of the Irish Free State failed because certain elements necessary to its success were not sufficiently taken into account by its proponents. In the first place, the Laborites were able to muster only 21 votes out of a total of 22, because one of their number happened to be in America instead of being in Dublin, and a member of the Dail Eireann can not vote by proxy. In the second place, one of the eight National Leaguers actually sided with the government, and another refrained from voting, so that the expected eight affirmative votes of that small but important party were cut down to six. Even Fianna Fail, supposed to be the most cohesive body of all, was unable to poll its full strength, showing only 43 "ayes" instead of 44. It is understood that the missing vote was cast in favor of the existing executive. Lastly, the Independents did not measure up to expectations, for only one of them, instead of the anticipated three, voted for the no-confidence motion, and, in point of fact, no fewer than fifteen Independents were found in the division lobby among the supporters of the Cosgrave regime. Even so, it was a case of touch and go, as the tie vote of 71 to 71 showed. The tie was, in itself, sufficient to negative the motion, and Speaker Hayes acted in strict accordance with constitutional doctrine when he broke the tie by voting in favor of a continuation of the status quo.

As matters stood on August 16, the defection of the two National Leaguers may be taken as the main contributing factor to the unlooked-for result. The explanation of that defection is, perhaps, simpler than it might at first sight seem. The Irish liquor trade, which is a powerful and highly organized body, came out on August 13 with a downright threat that its support would be withdrawn from the members of the National League, if they persevered in their announced intention of voting against the Cosgrave administration. The inference is that the liquor interests were, up to then, solidly behind the National League. Both traditionally and historically that is likely to be so, for Capt. William Redmond, leader of the National League, is the son of John Redmond, who, in the dark and evil days which followed the fall and death of Charles Stewart Parnell, was elected chairman of the little band of members of the British Parliament that had remained loyal to the "chief," when others of his party were, in that chief's own telling phrase, "anxious to throw him to the English wolves howling for his destruction.

Now, in the welter of confusion, rowdyism and intimidation that then prevailed in Ireland, it was the whole-hearted support given by the liquor trade to John Redmond that enabled him to return to the House of Commons at the head of a small but compact group, and to hold on until, a few years later, when the air had somewhat cleared, he was elected chairman of the reunited Irish parliamentary party. History repeats itself, and what was done for the father and his followers might well be done for the son and those whose political fortunes are linked with his. Hence the potency of the threat in question and the success which, though only partial, was yet enough to accomplish the purpose for which it was made.

The Dail now stands adjourned until October 11, but there are pending two by-elections, which give promise of providing a straight and clear-cut fight between the respective followers of Cosgrave and De Valera. The outcome in each case is doubtful, and the struggle for votes will therefore be strenuous in the extreme. There is, apparently, an understanding that, if both elections go against the administration, President Cosgrave will request the speaker to convene a special session of the Dail for another show-down vote. If one of the elections, or both, favor the administration, there will be no occasion for such a proceeding.

In any case, it is evident that parties in the Irish Free State are too numerous and too evenly balanced to permit of the establishment of a stable government. Mergers are urgently called for and, now or later, such mergers will have to take place, if the Free State Parliament is to function with proper efficiency.

WILL THE SENATE DICTATE ELECTIONS?

The Pennsylvania senatorial contest is in a bad snarl as a result of the failure of the Senate to dispose of the Wilson-Vare case in the usual manner. The ballot boxes are about to be emptied of their contents to prepare for the coming primary elections. Unless the ballots are removed by responsible authority and safely impounded they will be worthless in determining the contest between Wilson and Vare, even if they are not destroyed. Ballots that can be tampered with are not worth counting.

It is to the interest of William S. Vare that the ballots be preserved, because there is no doubt that a large majority of the ballots bear his name. If the Senate committee on privileges and elections can obtain all the ballots, before they have been removed from the boxes by careless hands, a recount can not fail to verify Vare's election. No doubt some of the ballots would be challenged as fraudulent, but it would be another thing to produce a sufficient number of questionable ballots to change the result.

The New York Times seems to think it might be a good thing for the Senate to unseat Vare on presumptive evidence of corruption, if evidence of fraud on a large scale should appear in the recount. But a man can not be unseated unless he is already seated, and it is this fact that may have caused Vare's opponents to become lukewarm on the subject of saving all the ballots. If Vare is to be beaten by Wilson in an election contest, Vare must first be seated, and then Wilson must convince the Senate that Vare was not elected.

What Vare's opponents desire is to prevent him from taking his seat. Hence many of them are describing the Wilson contest as a great tactical blunder. They contend that the campaign against Vare should be waged on the ground of excessive primary expenditures implying corruption, thus paving the way to a Senate vote refusing him his seat. But the New York Times thinks this is not very firm ground. The argument that the Senate should deny Mr. Vare his seat "because of the money spent by him to match the money spent by his Republican opponents does not strike the Times as a good argument. "Pennsylvania electors had been made aware of that, yet elected Mr. Vare," says the Times. "Shall the Senate tell a State's voters what they should have done?"

There's the rub. Pennsylvania voters elected Mr. Vare, without regard to the primary slush fund disclosures. If the Senate should hold that this disqualifies Vare, it will be creating qualifications never imagined by the Constitution, and the will of the voters in any State may be nullified at the pleasure of the Senate. The right of certain Southern senators to take their seats would be immediately challenged if the Senate should create new qualifications.

If the Senate can deprive the voters of Pennsylvania of the right to elect a senator of their own choice, it can apply the rule to any State. From that point to the supervision of senatorial elections in certain States is a very small step.

Only a Magician Can Do It.

COMPOUND INTEREST.

Every schoolboy knows that a comparatively small sum will grow to gigantic proportions through the medium of compound interest. It is one of the problems with which teachers delight to vex their pupils. It is one of the theoretical nuts young intellects are asked to crack as a means of establishing mental discipline. Now the possibilities of compound interest are to be utilized if the trustees of Harvard University and their successors for the next two centuries are equal to the task.

Prof. Charles Sargent, late curator of the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard, has left a bequest of $10,000 to the institution with which he was so long connected. The money is to be invested and the income added to the principal for 100 years. At the end of that time the money then available is to be divided into two parts. One-half is to be used for the care and maintenance of the arboretum, the remainder is to be invested for another 100 years under terms similar to those that apply during the first century, and then go to the arboretum.

It is impossible to calculate, without knowing the rate of interest that is to be obtained, exactly what amount the Sargent bequest will reach at the end of the period specified. But the following figures, prepared by financial experts, illustrate the possibilities:

	4 Per cent.	5 Per cent.	5¼ Per cent.	6¼ Per cent.

More extraordinary even than the revelation of the size to which a $10,000 fund will grow in 100 years, and to which one-half the total will grow further in the next 100 years, is the disclosure of the tremendous difference that the rate of interest will make. In 200 years, under the conditions prescribed, a given sum will accumulate to a total nearly 50 times greater at 6¼ per cent than at 4 per cent. The difficulties facing the administration of Harvard University in the investment of the Sargent fund are apparent. The difference between 4 and 6¼ per cent is not a mere difference of $225 a year in income—it is a difference of $668,000,000 in future principal. The sum itself is almost ten times the amount of the university's present endowment.

CAN SCIENTISTS BE TRUSTED?

At the convention of the International Geodetic and Geophysical Union, to be held at Prague next month, the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey will have three delegates. Representatives of 25 countries will be present. It will be a notable gathering of scientists, some of whom have contributed death-dealing formulas and appliances to the arsenals of nations.

Scientists are charged with chief responsibility for developing new devices and gases which threaten in the next general war to depopulate the nations. Is it desirable, in self-protection, that the world shall catch and kill off its scientists before they discover still more dreadful means of destruction? The scientists object to such an idea. They insist that they are not responsible for the misuse of the discoveries they have made. They blame the military, naval and air authorities for perverting the death-ray into a man-killing device, when it was meant only to paralyze boll weevils. They hold that ingenious cachinnatory, lacrymatory and ejaculatory gases which were developed for the sole purpose of causing bugs to laugh, weep or sneeze themselves to death have been turned against man by baleful engenders of war against the wish of science.

Perhaps the convention at Prague can do something about this perversion of inventions intended to be benevolent. Much can be done if the scientists can be made to agree—but who ever heard of scientists agreeing? While they carefully guard the secrets of their craft, it is commonly believed that they engage in controversies of diabolical fury, resembling nothing so much as the remorseless wars of ants and beetles. If the inner horrors of the Cosmos Club could be exposed, what tales would be unfolded! Dry blows given and taken, much eloquence spilled, stalwart theories beaten down and rising again, like Antaeus, as soon as they have hit the ground.

On one thing, however, scientists do agree; and that is, upon the incapacity of nonscientists to understand them. They say they are not blood-thirsty, and with unanimous voice they deny the charge that they are responsible for the misapplication of their inventions and discoveries. They clinch it with this argument: "No one ever shouldered a gun and went out to make war for a theory of geophysics."

That is a strong argument, beyond doubt; but still the besotted commonalty are suspicious, and fully expect that, sooner or later, science will resort to force, with hideous combustion and universal extermination.

RED TAPE AND HUMAN LIFE.

Governmental red tape can be a reproach as well as a valuable and useful check upon the expenditure of public funds. There must be safeguards to make certain that the $3,000,000,000 which the Government spends annually is not wrongfully applied, but there should be a realization that major emergencies come without the scope of petty regulations. The Nation may laugh when Comptroller General McCarl refuses to authorize tips, but when his ruling endangers the lives of 200,000 persons and all their earthly belongings, what then?

Emergency repairs that must be made in the Mississippi levee system call for an expenditure of $8,000,000. The Mississippi River Commission has available $6,000,000. It was proposed to transfer $2,000,000 from the appropriation for river and harbor work to make up the difference. The allocation of the money was approved in turn by Maj. Gen. Jadwin, chief of army engineers; Dwight Davis, Secretary of War, and President Coolidge. But McCarl says that it can not be done.

Without this additional money, experts who have studied the Mississippi situation say that it will be impossible to close the break in the Atchafalaya at Melville, which is still throwing a Niagara of water into Louisiana. It will be impossible to repair the ten breaks in the Bayou de Glaises line, through any of which water will start flowing again in the event of flood. It was proposed to have all of these temporary replacements finished by December 15. Lacking the money which the Comptroller General is withholding, it may be impossible to afford any protection for this region between now and the next spring freshets.

It is unthinkable that in the event of war the Nation would allow a minor official of the Government to jeopardize the national defense, by stubbornly exercising authority without discretion. Short shrift would be made of any such ruling. Conditions in the flood area may well be compared to those that exist in time of war. The destruction wrought by flood in the Evangeline country of Louisiana has no parallel, other than in the war-torn fields of France. It is not habitable, much less capable of sustaining life. The money that the President and all of his advisers seek to use would be replaced by act of Congress as soon as that body meets. If the responsibility for using it is willingly assumed by the administration, Comptroller General McCarl could well afford to waive the rigid interpretation of the law.

Alleged Milk Graft of New York, Where the Producers Scarcely Make Production Cost, Is Compared to Efficient Service Received by Capital Under Sanitary Market Conditions — Maryland and Virginia Association Lauded After Ending Strife Between Producers and Dealers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of August 1 on milk graft has aroused a more than passing interest. The story of the milk graft of New York is the most sordid and cruel graft of any ever inflicted on the greatest city in the Union. It not only imperiled the health of millions of consumers but it laid a heavy toll on the hardworking body of producers who sold hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of their product at scarcely the cost of production for a long series of years, with not a particle of benefit. A graft that flourished for many years with sufficient political power to suppress every attempt to eradicate it until now.

Dr. Louis J. Harris, health commissioner of New York City, published a statement on May 2, 1926, "that a graft fund of $3,000,000 was used to cover up the traffic in adulterated milk. That milk prices were arbitrarily fixed by the dealers and that neither the consumer nor producer received a square deal." More than a year elapsed before any action achieved any result. It was found that the entire army, save two, of officials paid by the taxpayers of New York to safeguard the health of the metropolis were either direct participants in bribery or cognizant of the daily graft, and necessitated the wholesale discharge of the force save the two lone individuals who found the offices like some banquet hall deserted.

The question may well be asked why the producers suffering from this deplorable and depressing blight on their industry were unable to secure relief. The simple answer is the absolute failure of their various organizations to bring the force and power of a business of more than $100,000,000 to wield any influence whatever, owing to their everlasting contentions in the courts and gross mismanagement through extravagance, which left little time or surplus money for this most vital element of their business success.

In sharp contrast to the slow official action in a matter of vital concern to the health of the great city is the prompt and speedy action for the punishment of a gang of powerful influence in Cortland County of that State. A combination successfully silenced the public officials of that county. They were engaged in substituting for tuberculosis condemned cows of high value animals of low value and then selling the condemned cows again to dairymen and breeders of high-class stock.

It was common knowledge that this graft was operating. When complaints were lodged with prosecuting officers the complainants were met with the stereotyped answer, "Not sufficient evidence to warrant action." A city journal outside of the county began a systematic investigation and spread it broadcast. The governor ordered the supreme justice of that district to convene a special grand jury in July, 1925. The protection afforded by the county officials fell before the outside prosecutor sent by the attorney general of the State.

On August 7 eleven men were sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined. Little damage had been done to the community health. The prestige of being the best breeding ground of the highest type of Holstein cattle was so seriously impaired as to entail heavy financial loss on the breeders.

The consumers of this most health-giving food in Washington may know with certainty that they are securing a high quality of milk produced and marketed under the best sanitary methods. It is a fact that 85 per cent of the milk is sold through Virginia and Maryland Milk Producers Association, which, through the assistance of the trained experts of the University of Maryland, ended the former chaotic condition and continued strife between producers and dealers, has now a satisfactory contract with its members, strengthened its financial status and is following the principles of cooperation of the Maryland Dairy Association which insists on high-quality milk produced with sanitary conditions on the farm which are constantly inspected.

Samuel Shoemaker, one of the most successful Guernsey breeders of America, as president of the Maryland State Board of Agriculture, and president of the board of trustees of Maryland State University, more than five years ago enlisted Dr. Albert Woods, president of the State university, in the campaign of organizing the great dairy industry of Maryland on a real substantial basis which should include producers, dealers and health authorities in a common purpose to produce quality milk and educate the public for greater milk consumption.

The university trained experts created a spirit of cooperation among the producers for cleanliness at the barn, cows of higher milking strain, reduction of bacteria contents, incessantly preached on every farm, and thorough subordination to the rules of the association, produced an enthusiasm which increased the membership from 4,000 in 1917 to 21,800 in 1926. Ninety per cent of the milk sold in Baltimore is pasteurized.

By an expenditure of more than $25,000 through a dairy council, which, by leaflet and continuous work in schools and meetings with attractive pictures scattered broadcast, increased the consumption more than 30 per cent in 5 years. It absorbs the surplus milk of the producer so that more than 13,500,000 gallons were sold by the association last year. The association today has a surplus fund of more than $600,000 and today pays its secretary and general manager who began ten years ago, a salary of $20,000 per annum.

The reduction in infantile diseases has been more than 25 per cent in Baltimore since this model cooperative organization has reached the pinnacle of success. The best brains of the university dairy department, with its county agents, preached again and again that the surest guarantee of permanent success was the consideration of the health and purse of the consumer and its foundation was cooperation by producer and dealer in diminishing the cost in production and transportation and in constant friendly contact with the board of health whose regulations are enforced by the association far more thoroughly than any official agency could. The Maryland Dairymen's Association is without doubt the most successful and prosperous in the country.

A living example of cooperation beneficial to producer, consumer and distributor, the result of the work of unselfish, trained experts. The University of Maryland has not been alseep at the switch. It has gained the confidence of the farmers of the State, who readily adopt its plans for better seed, intensive cultivation and thorough cooperation. It has stimulated the boys and girls on the farms to do successful work with live stock. Maryland boys' stock judging teams have won the championship in four great national stock judging contests and in two international contests in England. It has so far stood first in this country.

By dint of years of effort by the experiment station, the average returns per acre to the wheat growers of the State reached $29 average per acre, the highest of any State east of the Mississippi in 1926.

If Congress will heed the prayers of the agricultural organizations for an increase over the 10 cents per capita now devoted to agriculture while it is giving $4.65 per capita for national defense, it could devote it to no more profitable purpose than to secure more trained specialists to do such profitable work as is being done by Maryland University.

The mantle of Dr. Woods, the apostle of cooperation among the farmers of Maryland, has fallen on worthy shoulders. Dr. Raymond Pearson, whose fourteen years of work at the head of the Iowa State College of Agriculture, where more farm experts have been trained than in any other college in America, amply fit him to carry on the great work which will reduce the shout for McNary-Haugen to the gentle zephyr of a summer's dying day.

Citizen Thinks District Should Provide Suitable Quarters for National Guard—Present Buildings Declared Unfit as Armory and Training Headquarters—Suggest That Trade Bodies and Press Back Move Before Congressional Committee — Maryland's Activities Along This Line Held Up as Contrast.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I happened to be in the vicinity of the Union Station yesterday when some 450 of our young men left in motor buses for their annual encampment. These men constituted the District's Regiment of Engineers. They were a fine looking body of men, and their earnestness and determination were impressive.

The buildings which serve as an armory for this regiment are temporary structures, built during the war as hotels. They have served their purpose, and now can be classed as shacks. It does not appear that our young men in the National Guard are getting a fair deal as to their armory.

These boys give up their evenings when they might be with their friends at the theater or at a dance to undergo training in the military profession. They should be provided with decent quarters for this purpose. The main trouble is that the citizens do not support and back up our National Guard in the manner they should. These fellows are giving up spare time in order to perfect themselves as a unit of the national defense, and the least the rest of us can do is to encourage them and support them.

Isn't it possible for the press, our citizens' associations and organizations such as the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants and Manufacturers Association to get together and make a drive for an armory for our boys?

You only have to step over the District line to see what Maryland is doing for her citizen soldiers. Of course, her citizens can vote and make their voice heard, whereas we must wait for Congress to act. And Congress won't act unless our citizens get together and inform the members of the District committee of the necessity.

The National Guard in Washington has never in its history had suitable quarters. The old Washington Light Infantry Armory at Fifteenth and E streets, the Center Market Armroy, the L Street Armory and the present location would not serve as storage space for equipment in any other place but Washington. The Capital of the Nation should have the finest armory in the country.

There was some talk of "trying" to get the Pension Office, but the effort has apparently died at birth. What is the matter with our Commissioners, our citizen associations and our newspapers? We won't get a thing if we sit and twiddle our thumbs. Let's get behind our citizen soldiers and show them they have the support of the District and not wait until an emergency arises when they are marching away and then stand on the curb stone and cheer.

De Valera's Oath to King Declared as Binding as if Taken in Fear of Condemnation by Deity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an open letter to The Post of August 17, entitled "Sanctity of the Oath," several statements were made which are questionable, and several questions were asked which I desire by this means to answer. This letter was in regard to the oath of allegiance taken by De Valera to the King of England.

One statement made was, "An oath involves the imprecation of some person, power or principle whose vengeance we invoke if we violate our vow." That is superstition, pure and simple. If De Valera took his oath with fear of invoking the vengeance of an unseen, unprovable and unreliable diety, I would call him a greater coward than if he took that oath without such fear and broke it.

Just what is taking an oath? It is not necessarily needful of "divine sanction," that is certain. An infidel, agnostic or atheist may take an oath with the same sincerity and clear conscience as used by a minister, monk or Christian. An oath is the giving of one's word upon his honor to keep it, not necessarily given in the name of God, but more in the nature of a promise. An oath of allegiance is a declaration promising to bear true allegiance to a specified power.

De Valera's oath binds him as much as if he had taken it in fear of the condemnation of a revengeful diety as if he had taken it purely "without mental reservation or purpose of evasion," with a clear conscience and with intent to bind his word of honor. He is none the less responsible for its breach.

This letter asked the following question, "Is not our ethical and social system in serious jeopardy when we recognize no sacred sanction which we violate at our own moral peril?" My answer is "No!" Our ethical and social status is in peril as long as we teach man the existence of ghosts. When we refuse to recognize that man may give his word to do or not to do a certain thing unless he fear the vengeance of a "supreme power" or a god, our ethical and social system is in jeopardy.

When we begin to recognize a man's word by oath, that is, by him giving his word to keep his trust upon his honor and conscience, then our ethical and social system will glow forth with the radiance gleams of justice and tolerance. To do such a thing, the author of this letter said, "would be the unforgivable sin of blasphemy." Tolerence, love of all people and recognizing the rights of man have always been "blasphemy" to the eyes of the clergy. They would rather teach men to fear; to be cowards, and to be ignorant.

If Mr. De Valera fails to keep his oath, he will have failed to keep his word, and in my eyes will have committed a very dishonorable deed, for which he should be called upon to answer, not to God, but to the King of England.

Writer, Friend of Democrats, Declares Party, Through Inertia, Ignores Opportunities Whereby Votes Could Be Obtained, and Charges Organization With Seeing and Doing Nothing — Wealthy Members Fail to Contribute Funds Due to Lack of Faith, He Declares.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this morning's issue of The Post you assert that the Democrats are adrift. It's worse than that. They are lost. The good old party which claims Jefferson for its father is hopeless. It is so enfeebled that it can not draw its own breath. It is like a wounded whale lying helplessly on the political seashore. If it sees any opportunities it has neither the strength nor the inclination to make use of them.

A wounded elephant can kick, a wounded lion can snarl, but a wounded whale can do nothing but await death. This is the condition of the once active party which is now reduced to blubber. It is only awaiting death. The national committee is in despair. It is hopelessly static and will not take the spark. All the committee apparently hopes for is enough money to finance the next convention and at the same time take care of the debts contracted in 1924.

I write not as an enemy of the party, but as its friend, and it is with great grief that I recognize its inevitable death and burial. It appears to be content to smother in its own blubber. And yet millions of citizens would vote for the party if it had anything to offer. But instead of paying attention to real issues, the party goes through the country with heavy eyes and infirm step, seeing nothing, doing nothing, and never fully awake.

In New York, New England, New Jersey and Maryland all the Democratic party has to offer the voters is booze and they can not deliver the liquor. In the middle West they have some vague and indefinite idea of tariff reform and in other sections they are talking about tax reduction which they know they can not bring to pass.

This country needs and must have two active, virile and aggressive parties if the Nation's business is proprely to be cared for. There is peril in the fact that one of the major parties is a poor political cripple, incapable of going forward on its own steam and its credit so low that it can not get any steam from any other source.

The present leadership complains that it has no money and yet there are men in the party who could finance a nation. There is a United States Senator who could plaster the country with $100 bills and still have enough left to take care of his family and himself. But if he has ever given anything worth while to the Democratic cause I know nothing of it. There is a Democratic Representative who is rich enough to redeem the captivity of Israel, but as far as I can learn has never contributed a cent to the national coffers of the party. This suggests that neither he nor his colleague has any substantial faith in the party.

They reached their places in public life through the agency of the Democratic party, but don't care a rap whether it lives or dies. There is quite enough money in the purses of so-called loyal Democrats to pay the cost of a vigorous campaign, but evidently they are not inclined to finance the physical regeneration of a wounded whale.

Of all the political rot that has been distributed since the Civil War nothing is so rank as that which comes from the national Democratic committee. It is without public interest, it makes no appeal, it gives no facts worth recording and is wholly without power to influence a single vote. The leaders appear to be afraid of the truth. They approach problems with cringing timidity when they ought to attack them with vigor. There is nothing inspiring in their utterances. Their only hope—and this is a dismal one—is in the possibility that the Republicans will be guilty of some colossal blunders before the elections of 1928. A party which places its sole reliance for success on the prospective blunders of the opposition is indeed in extremis and need the services of a clergyman.

The people of this Nation are entitled to the entertainment which a real political fight is able to give them. But they are not very keen on a wholesale political slaughter, where one of the parties shows that it is both unable and unwilling to struggle for its own existence. Two complete knockouts have already been administered and not a single worth-while blow has been delivered by the Democratic party. In this the sportsmanship of our people has been outraged. But the donkey is able no longer to afford even mediocre entertainment. He should regenerate himself or go out of existence. His emanciated features are becoming repulsive to our people.

Writer Urges That Citizens Organize to Answer Alleged Challenge of Anarchy of Sacco-Vanzetti Sympathizers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should suggest to Alfred B. Williams, writing to your paper under date of August 19 a proposition that the citizens of the United States who believe in their laws and government organize to let the world know their answer to the challenge of anarchy as exemplified by the fight of certain persons to save the lives of Sacco and Vanzetti in the face of their sentence to death by the courts of Massachusetts, that, in addition to those who will fight for one American tradition, respect for the courts and those in authority, there are also those who, failing to discover any reason warranting the furtherance of that respect in a particular instance, will fight equally as hard so that the prostitution of another and as great American principle shall not be trampled to the dirt.

That principle is that no man shall stand convicted of and be punished for the commission of any crime until proved and found guilty in the course of a fair trial.

I, as an American citizen, finding it impossible to retain any respect for a judge who is found guilty of a "grave breach of judicial decorum" in the trial of a case before him or for a State executive, who, when a member of the National Legislature, pleaded for the annihilation of all radicals, such as Eugene V. Debs and Victor Berger, without furthen inquiry than that they were radicals, and who later takes it upon himself to grant to two such radicals the benefit of an investigation instituted by him and conducted by him in order to determine the rightfulness of their conviction before the aforementioned judge, cast my lot with those true old-time Americans who believe in a principle intelligently and honestly, and who will fight for that prnciple in spite of the louder, contemptuous rantings of the new 110 per cent Americans.

You yourself will gain some measure of admiration from me, which I can assure you that you have not now, by publishing this letter with prominence equal to that given Mr. Williams' communication.

Mrs Ogden L. Mills at Bailey's Beach Newport

THE Presidential twain in the Black Hills of the Dakotas has become a Coolidge trio, and President and Mrs. Coolidge are happy showing the novelties of their summer residence and Western life to their son, Mr. John C. Coolidge.

President Coolidge had delayed his projected excursion into Yellowstone Park until the arrival of the junior member of the household, and it is probable that they will set out today on this journey of exploration into the scenic beauties of this great reservation.

According to their usual custom the President and Mrs. Coolidge are not entertaining formally in their Black Hills home, but many friends have been received informally and gay house parties have been the rule rather than the exception.

While no definite date has been set as yet for their return to Washington, the indications are that they will arrive here about September 15. It is most probable that they will occupy the temporary White House on Dupont circle for several weeks until the restoration and refurnishings of the interior of the White House are completed.

YACHTING and tennis are holding the attention of the Washingtonians on the North Shore and at Newport and Bar Harbor, where society finds its attention fairly well divided between these two diversions. Last week was yachting week at Newport and much of the entertainment of the summer colony took place afloat. The New York Yacht Club fleet arrived in the middle of the week in all the bravery of new rigging and nautical neatness. On Tuesday the annual tennis tournament will open at Newport, and smart hosts have already taken boxes for the netside, as it were, so a large and fashionable attendance is assured.

RETURNING wanderers will find Washington en fete for October when the opening social event of the season, the exposition by the branches of the Army Relief Society in Washington will be held at Washington Barracks. More than a hundred leaders of the Army set and many women from the resident set interested in furthering the fortunes of the Army Relief Society form the committee cooperating with committees of ranking Army officers. Officers led by the chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, are working every day to make this a notable event of what promises to be a notable Washington season.

Mrs. Summerall and her aids are meeting every day at luncheons at the Army and Navy Club or for tea in the pleasant outdoor living room of the house set aside for the chief of staff at Fort Myer to perfect the plans for the social and carnival features of the great event.

The exposition will open in the afternoon and will continue to midnight, and will certainly be the rendevouz of society en masse. There will be something to interest everyone: dancing and motion pictures, good music, supper, fortune telling, theatricals, a fair with many ornate and unique booths, grab bags, bridge and other games and amusement especially designed for children.

THIS week will be the occasion for many farewell parties for those who sail on one of the fifteen vessels taking the delegates of the American Legion and their families to France for the convention which will be held there in September.

It is probably because they anticipate this trip that so many army and navy people and officials have remained in and around Washington all summer. Of course, some have already gone abroad, but the lure of being part of the great pilgrimage of those who cross in a body, as our Army and Marine Corps did during the war, has appealed to many.

The social program of the American Legion meetings and that of the American Legion Auxiliary, which will meet in Paris at the same time, will include dinners and luncheons and group receptions and pilgrimages to places of interest.

The American colony in Paris and those who are remaining over for the legion meeting, it is learned, are arranging many functions of a formal and informal nature for their compatriots, who will go back to the scenes of war to discuss ways and means of furthering the welfare of the men, the widows and orphans of those who made the supreme sacrifice, and to carry on the principles for which they united to defend with their courageous allies.

THE North Shore has become a summer mecca for diplomats accredited to Washington in the past few years, and the foreign colony there, has grown to considerable proportions.

The entire British Embassy is established at Manchester, Mass., which has been for many years one of the most popular resorts. The Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, has taken two trips here lately on official business. At present he is enjoying a visit from his son, Mr. Henry Howard, who came over from England, where he attends school, about two weeks ago.

The Ambassador of Argentina and Mme. de Pueyrredon, who were on a motor trip through the West for two months, have been in town since their return July 10. While away they visited Senator and Mrs. John B. Kendrick on their ranch at Sheridan, Wyo. A rodeo was provided for their entertainment. They also were given a dinner by Vice President and Mrs. Dawes at their home near Chicago, on their way back to the East. Another daughter of Ambassador and Mme. de Pueyrredon, Senora Centano, with her husband, Dr. Edouardo Centano, and their baby, are now with them at the embassy.

Dr. Hernan Velarde, the Ambassador of Peru, is passing his vacation here, and so are the Ambassador of Mexico, Senor Don Manuel C. Tellez and Senora de Tellez.

Nobile Giacomo de Martino, the Italian Ambassador, has made his headquarters at the embassy in town, making frequent trips to New York and Newport, sometimes accompanied by Signor Leonardo Vitetti, the secretary of the embassy. The ambassador had planned to sail yesterday on the S. S. Duilio to join Nobile Donna Antoinetta de Martino in Europe, but his departure has been postponed for two or three weeks.

The German Embassy is in charge of Herr O. C. Kiep, the counselor and charge d'affaires, while the Ambassador and Baroness Maltzan are abroad, where they have been for some time.

Englewood, N. J., is the place where the Japanese Embassy is situated this season. The ambassador, Mr. Tsuneo Matsudaira, passes part of his time here, usually going to join his family for the week-ends.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Mr. Gurgel do Amaral, has been on his vacation since early in the summer, and the Ambassador of Chile, Senor Don Miguel Cruchaga Tocornal, has taken short trips near Washington for his holiday.

The whole family of the Spanish Ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padillo, sailed for Madrid the latter part of June and expects to remain in Europe until fall.

The Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, represented his country at the League of Nations meeting at Geneva. Before going there he and Senora de Ferrara passed a month at St. Jean de Luz, one of the most attractive of European resorts. They

A FAMOUS INSTITUTION

New Lamps For Old!

Come, now—it's time to discard your favorite old necklaces, handbags and "what-nots"—the new things are here—all the lovely important trifles that a far-sighted Paris has devised to lend endearing, young charm to the last frocks of summer and the first frocks of fall!

Gold Pearls

For Instance—

You may have worn them creamy—and you may have worn them rose-tinted—but until you wear them "gilded" you really can't be smart these days! There's a graduated choker at $5—and a 60-inch rope at $10! Not bad at all when you consider all the distinction they give you!

Rings on Your Fingers!

Neither marriage rings—nor engagement rings—nor sorority rings—nor class rings—but Marcasite rings set with constructed emeralds, sapphires, topaz, amethyst, jade, real carnelian—and set in a stunning new Paris way—yes, they're French, even though only $10 and $15!

Bags Like Books

They're made of black antelope with a corrugated metal binding—and, by the way, this new corrugated metal is something really worth seeing—the the size is just right, too—and while you can't read it, you can certainly read its smartness at a glance—$10.

Just a Ragged Flower!

—but Chanel designed it—

Which accounts for its raggedness and its smartness—unless you have forgotten that it was Chanel who made shoulder flowers so important and who found a way to make the most stunning flowers—by shredding perfectly good silks. Now, she shreds felt—and the result is amazingly chic—$2.25!

A New Neckline

Which just goes to show how clever one's lounging pajamas can be—and how careful one must be these days to be just "au fait" in the boudoir. These are made with stunning printed silk jumpers and black satin trousers—they're most enticingly priced at $7.50!

Stepping Along!

It's becoming smarter and smarter—perhaps because black velvet is so smart in frocks—perhaps because it is so effectively combined with gunmetal patent leather—who knows, or who cares—as long as it is as smart as it is—and only $10 for a pair of black suede Sorosis slippers!

4 NEW POETS IN 'AMERICAN POETRY, 1927'

A poetical experiment begun some years ago is continued in the publication of "American Poetry, 1927," Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York, which is the joint work of sixteen American poets to each of whom was assigned 20 pages of the volume for them to fill at will. The Miscellany contains new poems only; and, therefore, differs widely from the usual anthologies adoring American poesy. All the poems contained in this volume have never appeared in book form. In some instances the poems have never even been offered for publication.

The experiment is an ideal one for poets, for there is no editor of the volume, each poet supervising his or her own work. Furthermore, the division of royalities is in proportion to the length of each poet's contribution.

The youngest member of this Poets Round Table is Nathalia Crane, the Brooklyn girl, whose poems have been the occasion of so much discussion in American literature. Nathalia does not favor us with lyrics of the Janitor's Boy in this Miscellany, perhaps she felt a trifle oppressed in the rarefied atmosphere of Edna St. Vincent Millay; Vachel Lindsay, Louis Untermeyer, William Rose Benet and other veteran craftsmen of her difficult art. Inasmuch as admission to the Miscellany can only be obtained by vote of the present members this child poet should feel a real satisfaction in being admitted to this group of poets who have really arrived.

Included in the group of sixteen are, in addition to those already mentioned, Leonie Adams, Conrad Aiken, John Gould Fletcher, Robert Frost, Robinson Jeffers, Alfred Kreymborg, Archibald MacLeish, Carl Sandburg, Jean Starr Untermeyer, and Elinor Wylie, and a modest soul who makes his genius behind the simple initials "H. D."

Certainly the general concurrence of the literati in the selection of the sixteen authors of the Miscellany can be taken for granted. There is a deeper significance in it, however, that of the creation of a real fellowship of poetry which, in time, will come to mean more priests of the beautiful in this land of the free and the home of the brave.

Because Nathalia Crane is the youngest of the circle let us consider her work first. She did not fill her allotted twenty pages, which shows a fine restraint at the start. Her conception of Freud in these eight lines has a satirical value far beyond her years:

Every Monday shudder,
Every Tuesday scare;
Memories of tigers

Mayhap in the Charleston
Lurks the minuet.

The other contributions from her pen add or subtract little from already published work. Her plea for Bon Homme Richard, John Paul Jones' old ship, has a dramatic swing about it and displays a historical sense which Nathalia would do well to cultivate.

In this poem what has been called her "uncanny love for the mere sound of words" is very apparent.

Because Elinor Wylie was at one time a Washington girl, the daughter of Mrs. Henry M. Hoyt, her work will be examined next. Mrs. Wylie evidently has no fear of fatal 13, for she packs her poetic stores into that number of pages.

The outstanding poem written by Elinor Wylie for the Miscellany is "A Red Carpet for Shelley." In it her weird handling of words has full scope. The poem is too long for full quotation here, but one stanza will give a fair example of its beauty:

"If I might spread soft words like living grass
Laid smooth beneath the heavy wheels of Time;
If I might loose the river of a rhyme
Or build a pavement out of gold and glass
Providing heaven for you to walk upon,
It would be well, it would be better done."

Those who have become accustomed to Edna St. Vincent Millay's usual sweeping type of narrative and dramatic poetry, will be interested in a new manifestation, that of the sonnet, flowing in velvet measures from her trained pen. Take this one for instance:

Not that it matters, not that my heart's cry
Or bind to truce in this ambiguous room
The planets of the atom as they ply,
But only to record that you and I,
Like thieves that scratch the jewels from a tomb,
Have gathered delicate love in hardy bloom
Close under Chaos—I rise to testify.
This is my testament: That we are taken;
Yet for a moment stood the foe forsaken,
Eyeing Love's favor to our helmet pinned;
He rides victorious—but his ranks are thinned.

Vachel Lindsay maintains his characteristic vein of poetic irony, humor and intensity in his portion of the Miscellany. Washingtonians will be very much interested in two of his poems, "When Lincoln Came to Springfield" and "The Freer Gallery, Washington."

Here is one on the Freer Gallery:

Whistler, Whitman and Poe are named together,
Americans, all three, great in their way.
When we walked the Freer Gallery of Whistler's paintings,

We found it empty,
All devotees away.

And when we speak of Whitman's songs of Lincoln,
The Republican party stares, the Democrats
With disdainful airs.

When we speak of Poe,
The cheerful sages
Show that they have never turned his pages.

It is made void to please some trustee's notion.
Fat guards are trained in snobbery to hide
Whistler's supreme peacocks and his pride.

Thus, genius has its dry-as-dust deep tomb;

Well, here's long life to the Miscellany. It is a new and worthy idea in American literature.

COL. LINDBERGH SCORES IN LITERARY FIELD WITH "WE," STORY OF HIS FLIGHT

A new interpretation of the word "we" was written into history on May 21, 1927.

Before that time "we" had stood for royalty pronouncing its will to a complaisant people.

It had been the sublime introduction to that great charter of human rights, the Constitution of the United States.

But on that May night in 1927 Charles Lindbergh wrote it in flaming letters on the golden book of youth, and henceforth "we" will stand for achieving youth, for dreaming youth and for youth that dares in land, sea or sky.

Breaking the record for advance sales in this or any other country, "We," the simple tale of a great deed of heroism, written by Col. Charles Lindbergh, and published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York, is available for the hundreds of thousands of hero worshipers, who found in the exploit of this modern American lad the realization of all their visions of the heroic and the noble.

Those who expected any fine writing on the part of Col. Lindbergh in describing his feat will be disappointed. He is a man of few and simple words, but of mighty deeds. Its value as literature is in the fact that there is a real story told in the 230 pages the publishers told us were written painstakingly in long hand by Col. Lindbergh, and which now form a historic manuscript, reposing in the safe of G. P. Putnam's Sons. Eventually, it is to be hoped, it will be cherished with other rare manuscripts in the Library of Congress. This is simply a hint to these public-spirited publishers, it is frankly admitted.

Foreword by Herrick.

There may be superficial disappointment for the readers in the fact that Col. Lindbergh does not satisfy any craving for intimate details of his feelings on his great flight; his reactions to his marvelous receptions and other personal items in which the public takes such an abiding interest.

It would be entirely outside of his character if he had gone into this phase of the matter. His is a mind which quickly lifts itself from outside details and also one which is eminently practical. An idealist he must be, and he certainly must have had a vision to have so thoroughly realized it, but it is not given to exterior expression.

His genial host and mentor of Paris, Ambassador Myron T. Herrick, has written the foreword to the book. There is more than a touch of sentiment in the dedication of the book, which is to the mother of Col. Lindbergh and also to the men whose confidence and foresight made possible the flight of the Spirit of St. Louis. There is a graceful gesture of gratitude in this dedication, proving that here is one young man who has a lively sense of gratitude for favors received.

That Lindbergh's arrival in Paris had historic diplomatic significance is the point stressed by Ambassador Herrick again and again in his foreword.

Praises Col. Lindbergh.

He writes:

"For I feel with every fiber of my being that Lindbergh's landing here marks one of the supreme moments in the history of America and France, and the faith we have in the deciding power of spiritual things is strengthened by every circumstance of his journey, by all his acts after landing and by the electrical thrill which ran like some religious emotion through a whole vast population. The Spirit of St. Louis was to the French people another sign come out of the sky—a sign which bore the promise that all would be well between them and us."

And again:

"France took Charles Lindbergh to her heart because of what he was and because of what she knew he represented. His little ship came to the meeting place of the greatest conference that has ever gathered between two nations, for under the shadow of its wings 150,000,000 Frenchmen and Americans have come together in generous accord. No diplomatic bag ever carried so stupendous a document as this all unaccredited messenger bore, and no visiting squadron ever delivered such a letter of thanks as he took up the Potomac in returning. Has any such ambassador ever been known?"

The ambassador strikes the chord of universal approval of Lindbergh's behavior after he became a hero. He states:

"The way Lindbergh bore himself after getting here was but the continuation of his flight. He started with no purpose but to arrive. He remained with no desire but to serve. He sought nothing; he was offered all. No flaw marked any act or word, and he stood forth amidst clamor and crowds the very embodiment of fearless, kindly cultivated American youth—unspoiled, unspoilable. A nation which breeds such boys need never fear for its future."

Saw First Plane in 1912.

Reading through the pages written by Lindbergh himself, the thought comes to one again and again that here was an American boy who knew his own mind and planned his next move most carefully. There was no daredevil spirit manifested until he got into the air with a good plane of whose actions he might be fairly certain. Then he occasionally cut a few air capers, which sent thrills up and down the spines of land spectators, and out of whose amazement he got a "kick," as the schoolboys say.

He tells modestly of ancestors who served Sweden, Canada and the United States well and truly in the first pages of his book, and of his first glampse of an airplane while a schoolboy in Washington in 1912. It is pleasant to read of his quiet, but efficient, methods of perfecting himself for his life work.

Speaking of his solo flight, Lindbergh pauses to point out that "the first solo flights is one of the events in a pilot's life which forever remains impressed on his memory. It is the culmination of difficult hours of instruction, hard weeks of training and often years of anticipation. To be absolutely alone for the first time in the cockpit of a plane hundreds of feet above the ground is an experience never to be forgotten."

He goes thoroughly into the story of his training at the Army Aviation School in Texas, and gives high praise to his instructors and comrades there. His air-mail days are recited with detail, and incidents which prove that they were precious hours to him and that at heart he is still the air-mail carrier, anxious to get his mail there on time, despite whatever else may happen. The Air-Mail Service certainly owes a vast debt of gratitude to this comrade who has put it on the map, and is keeping it there by constantly reminding the public of its service, sacrifice and skill.

How Idea Was Formed.

How the idea to fly from New York to Paris came to him one night while flying the air mail is related by Col. Lindbergh without undue elaboration. The practical spirit of the lad is shown in his deliberate plans to obtain support for his entrance into that great race which would forever mark the winner's name high on the record of aviation.

The support secured through the patriotism of certain St. Louis officials, whom Lindbergh never fails to mention and honor, he began the careful preparation of the Spirit of St. Louis for the journey.

Col. Lindbergh disposes of the popular fiction that he undertook the flight with only five sandwiches and half-gallon of water as fuel for the human equation in the journey. He hid, in additon, five tins of concentrated army rations, more water and an Armburst cup for condensing the moisture of the human breath into water if necessary.

In a businesslike manner, he recites the steps of the air journey to Paris. There is every reason to believe that he must have felt keen emotions on this lone voyage; but if so, he considers them sacred, and does not care to lay them bare to the world.

Col. Lindbergh hands a compliment to Ambassador Herrick when he says simply of Ambassador Herrick's invitation to stay with him at the American Embassy in Paris:

"Grateful as I was at the time, it did not take me long to realize that a kind Providence had placed me in Ambassador Herrick's hands. The ensuing days found me in situations that I had certainly never expected to be in, and in which I relied on Ambassador Herrick's sympathic aid."

He also expresses profound gratitude for the receptions given him in France, Belgium and England, and summed it all very neatly in these lines:

"My words to all those friends in Europe are inadequate, but my feelings of appreciation are boundless."

Hint of Deep Emotion.

"A description of my welcome back to the United States would, in itself, be sufficient to fill a larger volume than this," he states. "I am not an author by profession, and my pen could never express the gratitude which I feel toward the American people."

The last portion of the book is devoted to chapters dealing with "A Little of What the World Though of Lindbergh," by Fitzhugh Green. Mr. Green has performed his task in a very able manner and out of the thousands of editorials and other comments has selected the most thrilling and meaning excerpts.

"It is one of the cruelties of social lionization that we search for the peculiarities of our specimen. In Lindbergh's case his peculiarity lay in the fact that neither by word, nor look, nor deed was he in any way grotesque. His eyes were clear, his smile quick; like a practiced diplomat he eluded entangling discussion; and he had a ready reply for any intelligent inquiry put to him within his range of knowledge or experiences."

Some idea of the interest taken in Lindbergh is given by Mr. Green in his statement that more than 2,000,000 letters and several hundred thousand telegrams were sent to Lindbergh after his epoch-making flight. One official association has estimated, according to this writing, that the increased interest in flying caused United States publications to use more than 25,000 tons of newsprint in addition to their usual consumption. Five thousand poems are said to have been written in praise of him and his flights, and towns and babies were named after him.

You find after reading this book that you have caught again the magic of those moments when with the rest of the world you waited for the radio word for news of his safe landing, the joy of the knowledge that he had landed and the big thrills of his receptions here and abroad. What more could a book achieve? Col. Lindbergh has again scored in his latest venture—literature.

Book Reviews

THE HAND OF HORROR. By Owen Fox Jerome. (Edward J. Clode, Inc., New York.)

The very title of this book sends a delightful thrill up and down the spine and it certainly teems with mystery, adventure and unforeseen horrors. Mr. Jerome knows the art of the mystery writer from A to Z, which is to shock, thrill, horrify and mystify from the first chapter to the very end of the last one when the story begins to unravel. It is not considered etiquette for reviewers to divulge the plot and its workings out of a mystery story, so it must suffice to state that this is a humdinger.

THE SOCIAL BASIS OF CONSCIOUSNESS. By Trigant Burrow, M. D., Ph. D. (Harcourt Brace & Co., New York.)

This study in organic psychology is designed primarily for students in this branch of discovery into the secrets of the human mind. But in it the lay reader, if attentive and eager to wrest additional knowledge to add to his sometimes meager store in this field, can gather much information on human behavior and the underlying causes which are behind our actions.

Dr. Burrow takes a few professional swings at the well-known Freudian theory which has predominated in mental science for the last few years. When masters fall out it is time for lesser folk to remain quiet and not express any opinions.

Book Notes

The fashion in history seems to be fiction. All of the glamourous figures of the past seem to be emerging in in such a fiasco as the burning of done, and Napoleon and others. Readers of fiction are beginning to find out new historical facts. And now comes a novel about Nero, a novel which treats the bloody emperor of the Romans as a fascinating and weak boy who couldn't possibly have had a hand in such a fiasco as the burning of Rome. The novel is written by Desider Kosztolanyi. It has already been issued in most of the countries of Europe to considerable applause. It is being translated out of the German by Clifton P. Fadiman and will be issued in this country in September under the title, "The Bloody Poet: A Novel About Nero," by the publishing house of Macy-Masius. This American edition will have an introduction by Thomas Mann.

Her Horoscope?

Fascinating Miss Rita Hanley needs no astrologer to foretell that her complexion will be as lovely at fifty as now, because she insures such a horoscope by using the exquisite Black and White Cold Cream. This soft, velvety cream furnishes the skin with just the oils needed to nourish the glands and tissues, stimulate the circulation and keep the skin beautifully firm, smooth and youthful.

Miss Hanley, who lives at 597 E. 8th St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Black and White Cold Cream is my standby in all seasons, and I expect to keep on using it always. It's wonderful for soothing chafed and burning skin after exposure to the weather, and it smooths out tired lines, 'smile crinkles' and crow's feet and gives my skin the silky, delicate appearance every girl desires."

Best results come from using Black and White Skin Soap with the other Black and White Beauty Creations.

BLACK AND WHITE Beauty Creations
over 15 MILLION USED A YEAR

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

TODAY when children are fashionable and fond mammas like to take their little ones to art exhibitions, horse shows, exhibits of all kinds and even have them present at their afternoons at home, children's clothes have become of paramount importance. Most mothers plan their small daughters and tiny sons' wardrobe at the same time as they do their own so that they will appear altogether in the picture and harmonize with the general color scheme of costuming and decoration.

Nowadays the psychologists have persuaded parents into the belief that the environment which surrounds their children is all-important, as it is, and leading manufacturers have caught up the note from these students of human behavior in child and man and evolved certain lovely printed silks especially designed to give children that self-expression deemed so necessary for their mental well-being in this age.

So pretty and soft are some of the colors and effective that the designs of elephants, singing birds and lovely arbors of flowers and long vista effects of a roadway winding down to river or fairy lands have found their way into materials for modish afternoon frocks for mother and big sister, and the design silk is all the rage and promises to continue to be for the fall and winter.

The sensible mother knows that a nice appreciation of the proper time and place and general suitability of costume should be instilled in her small daughters' very early in life, whether they are destined to careers as social butterflies or business or professional life.

Simple Clothes Sought.

So the tiny girl of this era does not wear party frocks in the morning any more than her mother, but chooses for a shopping trip with mother or governess simple clothes and smart shoes and hat. The little pleated skirts on bodices with slip-over blouses with long sleeves and tailored collars match so perfectly those designed for the grown-ups that there would be difficulty in telling them apart if it were not for the difference in size.

When the little girls travel with adults they, too, wear smart trotteur costumes on the ensemble order. Plain dark dresses with matching swagger coats and little felt hats pulled way down over their bobbed hair. Even the purse or bag, and what little girl of today does not want one of these for her change purse, her handkerchief and notebook, match the costume. In the luggage there is often a suitcase and hatbox matched exactly to the purse, and the small daughter looks as chic as her mother with all her traveling paraphernalia about her.

Even the doll, which is so often an inseparable companion of the traveling child, is an ultra modish one dressed in the height of proper traveling raiment. Somewhere in the luggage are the doll's party and dancing frock and clothes for play on the beach, all belonging to the inanimate but much loved little figurine.

Sometimes it is hard to tell in this day of fashion's leaning toward stuffed dolls and toys for women as well as children if the playthings so modishly arrayed belongs to the mother or the tiny daughter.

Masculinity Excited by Wales.

Just as we thought! The Prince of Wales has turned the masculine world of fashion topsy-turvy with two innovations as the result of his Canadian-American visit.

A wave of excitement has gone over Great Britain with the news cabled from Canada that both the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, are wearing straw hats.

Straw hats and with morning coats, at that. It is true, for the indefatigable camera men have recorded the two princes thus arrayed and all England may gaze and has gazed at the sight. Heretofore, straw hats have been reserved for Harrow schoolboys, clerks and week-enders at the British seaside resorts. Now that the leader of men's fashions has set the pace the rush for straw hats has resembled an American bargain sale day and all the chappies from Piccadilly to Mayfair are wearing the new hat in all shapes and shades. Now it reamins to be seen if the British will relinquish the straw hat a la American on September 15 or will wear them steadily throughout the fog and cold of an English winter.

Golf adherents are interested in another fashion wrinkle introduced by the Prince of Wales while playing on a Canadian course when he appeared in long white flannel trousers, carefully cuffed and a down-turned loose Panama hat. Does this fancy on the part of the prince spell the passing of the golf trousers, those comfortable breeches that men even assumed for other pastimes than golf?

We will wait and see if the example of a prince will be enough to alter an established American custom like golf trousers in these democratic days when royalty is supposed to be distinctly in the discard. Far be it from me to emphasize it, but men are more slaves to fashion than women, and if I had the space I would prove it to any one's satisfaction.

Jeweled Garters Now Match.

In this day of short skirts, society accepts the jeweled garter worn below the knees. These feminine accessories rival the quite usual anklet and more often than not match the tingling bracelets worn on the arms.

Some of the evening gowns are especially designed to wear with these garters and have slippers with buckles and heels to match and shoulder straps for the gown made of the same glittering beads or semiprecious gems.

Many of them are simply made of pieces of velvet or satin heavily studded with stones and caught at the side front with a buckle while others are narrow bands of flexible gold or silver or intertwined metal threads.

Speaking of metal threads these brilliant lines run through many of the smartest and otherwise plainest gowns. Some of the tucks are fastened or hand run with these threads given just the proper touch and finish to remove them from the realm of the ordinary.

Rows of metal threads in gold or silver or copper and the new iridescent shades with a dull glow of color through the metal effect are used most effectively to join the materials of the two gowns together.

Two-Material Gowns to Stay.

The two-material gowns are with us to stay for the winter without doubt. Some of the leading world modistes are making such daring combinations as black velvet and peach satin one half of the waist or the upper part of the bodice and the upper or lower part of the skirt being one of the other color joining in well-thought figures or scrolls, the other giving if not carefully manipulated a too "hodge-podge" appearance. It is only the artists who can dare to evolve this type of dress. It usually is most devastating, as far as appearance goes, at least, for the home or amateur dressmaker to aspire to such a creation.

The ready-to-wear departments will, of course, offer costumes of this type. The day has passed when the manufacturers or those who manufacture dresses and gowns for the trade employ any but the most artistic and expert designers and cutters.

In this day of the motion picture and the shop window and exhibition rooms of shops open to all there is absolutely no demand for garments which are not ultra-modish. The American woman at home and abroad demands good material, good workmanship and smartness of cut and usually knows whether or not she is getting all three.

There is less and less demand in the shops for frilly effects. The average American woman has adopted "simplicity" as her motto in dress.

Chiffon Is Worn.

Mrs. Charles B. Summerall, wife of the chief of staff of the United States Army, wore at a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club Monday a gown of dark blue and white chiffon and a long chiffon coat. Her hat was a black one of straw and tulle, made on tailored lines, but with a wide brim.

Mrs. Golden Ruggles is wearing a summer gown of white handerchief linen embroidered in eyelet effect. This is made on straight lines. With this Mrs. Ruggles wears a wide-brimmed white hat.

Miss Helen Gatley has a summery flowered chiffon dress in rich shade of rose and green and blue. This is made with a round neckline and long sleeves. With it she wears a wide-brimmed hat.

Miss Caroline L. Alexander has a morning sport costume of white silk and wool, made with a short skirt pleated in the front and a slip-on blouse with a collar knitted high about the throat in the front. With this she wears a white felt hat.

Mrs. Edward E. Eberle is wearing a costume of gray chiffon composed of a two-piece dress and long chiffon coat with a collar of the material. Her hat is a wide gray straw one.

Mme. Eduardo Centano, daughter of the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Pueyrredon, is wearing a sport dress of white wool, made with short sleeves and a pleated skirt.

Mrs. Goring Bliss, also has a white sport dress made with sharply diagonal tucks on the bodice and fulled on skirt. Her hat is a wide-brimmed white felt one.

Flowered Silk for Sport.

Mlle. Julietta Pueyrredon, daughter of the Argentine Ambassador and Mme. Pueyrredon, wore recently at Gibsons Island a sport dress of flowered silk made with a round neck line and short sleeves.

Miss Romono Lefevre has a dress of black and white silk made with a round neck line and short sleeves. With this she wears a large black hat.

Mrs. Jewel Wells, of Decatur, Ill., who has been visiting in Washington with her husband and son, wore for an afternoon function, a dress of white chiffon with black coin dots. With this she wore a long white flannel coat and a wide-brimmed black hat.

Mrs. Nathaniel C. Halstead wore for a dinner party at Gibsons Island, a dress of creamy white lace made in tiered effect. Mrs. Halstead also is wearing a chic afternoon costume of black and white silk, made with a pleated skirt and rather long overblouse. With this she wears a large black hat trimmed with white ribbon.

Mrs. C. C. Calhoun had on recently a gown of white crepe de chine, made in one-piece effect but with long white fringe falling from the low waistline. She wore a large white straw hat.

Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the D. A. R., who was in the receiving line at a reception given at New London last week in honor of Col. Ernest Rogers, the newly elected president general of the Sons of the American Revolution, had on a blue crepe de chine gown made on simple lines, with which she wore a blue silk hat in modified turban shape.

Flat Blue Crepe Worn.

Mrs. Arthur Foraker is wearing a sport dress of black and white wool and silk jersey. The skirt is made with a pleated skirt and the blouse has trimmings of white. With this she wears a small black hat.

Mrs. George Mesta wore at a recent dinner at Saratoga Springs a dress of white lace combined with white chiffon. This had a front fastening belt and the tiered skirt which is so popular with this type of dress.

Mrs. Kellogg, wife of the Secretary of State, has solved the secret of keeping cool on the warmest days, or at least she looks cool. Mrs. Kellogg frequently wears white or soft gray with wide-brimmed hats.

Mrs. Henry Blair has a gown of white chiffon made with flowing sleeves, and a wide-brimmed white hat.

Silver and Gold Embroidery

Miss Evelyn Walker, so those who write home from Paris say, wore at a recent luncheon a gown of flowered pink and blue chiffon, with a wide-brimmed hat.

Miss Marguerite Orme wore at a dinner party at Gibson Island last week a gown of pink chiffon made with a bertha tier in the front and without sleeves. There was a loosely knotted girdle with streamer ends at the line connecting the fulled-on, uneven hemmed skirt. Miss Orme wore at a luncheon a pink flat crepe dress made with a pleated skirt and sleeveless overblouse.

Mrs. Alexander Gregg, formerly Miss Dorothy Mondell, who was in Washington last week on the way, with her husband, to New York, where they will make their home, wore for a dinner a gown of white chiffon. Mrs. Gregg wore a white scarf edged with ostrich plumes.

Black and White for Beach

Mrs. Benjamin Holcombe, who has joined her mother, Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, at Newport after a month abroad, was on Bailey Beach the other morning in a black and white gown of sheer material made quite short. With this she wore a black hat, relieved by white gardenias.

Miss Dorothy Sollers, who is also a house guest of Mrs. Fahnestock,, wore blue crepe de chine made with a pleated skrit over which was a silk sweater of blue. Her hat was a wide-brimmed Milan straw in blue ornamented with blue and white flowers.

Mrs. Curtis D. Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, who was the house guest of Mrs. Coolidge at Black Hills on her way to the coast, had on for a morning stroll with her hostess a pongee coat suit made with a box coat effect and straight skirt cut fiarly short. Mrs. Wilbur also wore a soft, white silk shirtwaist.

Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, who is spending the late summer in Washington, looked cool on Connecticut avenue the other day in a summer silk frock of thin black material trimmed with red and decorated in a flower design. With this costume Mrs. Tucker wore a black hat also decorated with red flowers.

White Lace for Tea.

Before leaving for a motor trip through Pennsylvania, Mrs. Virginia White Speel, chairman of the local Federation of Women's Clubs, wore at an afternoon tea a costume of white lace made over a foundation of white crepe de chine. Nearby was Mrs. Amos G. Draper, prominent in local D. A. R. ranks, in a costume of gray silk made on simple lines and ornamented with soft cream lace at the collar and cuffs.

Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of Senator Borah, of Idaho, who is in her native State for the summer, went on a mountain climbing trip recently with the senator. Mrs. Borah was in a white flannel ensemble suit made on sport lines. She wore with it a neck scarf of white fox fur, and her hat was a white silk turban fitting close to her head.

Mrs. Robert R. Dickey, jr., who went to Vichy to join her mother, Mrs. George Barnett, last week, wore an ensemble of brown crepe de chine made with short skirt, and a set-in vestee of white silk and set off by a long string of amber beads.

CHAPTER V.

"WHY, he's a perfect darling, Adraste! You're a fortunate girl. Let me take him—it's ages since I held one in my arms, but I still know how."

"You certainly do, Helen! There he goes, sucking his thumb again! Take it out, will you, Helen, please?"

"Oughtn't I to try?"

"I suppose so—one learns so much in trying. Now that he has stopped being all red and has turned pink, I do believe he resembles you, Adraste. Do you see it?"

"Oh, no, Helen, I think he's much more like his father. I don't know whether to be glad or sorry."

"Be glad, of course. Damastor is very good looking, and you'll want your boy to favor you both. But you can't form a final opinion when they are a week old. I dare say his mother has discovered some profound characteristics in him even now?"

"Do you know, I have, Helen. He's the best little companion—I know his ways already. And I imagine he begins to notice me a little."

"He is a darling!"

"Do you think they do know, so early, Helen?"

"Well, Hermione flirted with her father when she was a week old. It's the only indiscreet thing she ever permitted herself to do. Of course, they know, the moment they're born! Your boy grows wiser-looking every day. If he's to put on a more profound air than this, I shan't have the courage to face him. He is reading my soul at this minute * * * There, poor child, don't cry! I'll give him back to you. There! What on earth are you crying about? I'm tiring you, to be sure * * * I'll come in again later, when you've had a chance to rest."

"Don't go, Helen. I'm not tired. Sometimes it comes over me—my dreadful fate; your kindness about the child makes me——"

"Nonsense!" said Helen. "You have no dreadful fate. You ought to be an extremely happy woman. You have this beautiful boy to love and bring up, and you have friends around you who are thinking how lucky the boy is in his mother. You'll give him a wonderful childhood, a wonderful youth; he will always be young and shining, like you."

"It's all very well to say cheering things—it's kind of you, Helen—but he will have only his mother; he won't have a father, like other boys—he won't have a complete home. I had no right to bear him, and all his life I shall be punished, seeing what he has missed."

"Nobody could pretend you are as happy as you deserve to be. But even so, you ought to have peace of mind. Dear girl, it might be so much worse!"

"How possibly?"

"Why Damastor might have married you."

"You think that would have been worse!"

"Yes, much worse, considering Damastor's character. If he had been a great lover, the kind we invent but usually don't meet, the lasting kind, then to lose him would have been as tragic as you think it is; but then you wouldn't have lost him. You don't know what it would have been like to live with him, year after year, when he had ceased to be your lover and was drawing on his reserves of character to be your husband. A stranger, with a haunting resemblance to your lover—that's what you'd be living with. Now you are better off. Not in the general opinion of society, but really so * * * Adraste, this young man will never like curtain lectures; he's going asleep. Shall I put him in his crib?"

"Please—and take his thumb out."

"I don't see any luck in having sorrow, pure or impure."

"There isn't any luck in having it, but since we must have it, it's well to be able to feel it. That shows how alive, how essentially happy, you still are. I'd give a good deal to feel a sorrow. I mean what I say, I envy you. We've talked so often about love, you know what I think of that, and how widely I've missed my ideal there. In sorrow, too, I've missed it. The awful fate in life would be to be numb and sleepy, to rest in one's habits, to let the days simply pass. I wanted to know life down to the quick. Either it can't be done, or I never found out how."

"But, Helen, you always seem to me very wise in life. You told me the truth about Damastor long before I could see it, and you are kind not to remind me how I failed to take your advice. You couldn't know so much if you hadn't had more experience than you admit."

"That's the trouble; I think I do know about life, but not in the right way—not through my own feelings. Adraste, you understand I didn't come here to talk about myself! I'm trying to show you where I think you are less unfortunate than you believe. Since I haven't felt experience deeply in myself, I could only study others, try to understand life through them. When you learn to see human beings that way, and yourself, in spite of what they think, as just one more illustration of the common nature, you gain in charity, perhaps you acquire a more generous interest in your fellows, but the edge of sorrow is gone—indeed, of most passionate states. It isn't that you know too much; no one is too wise. But you forget how to cry, and you learn to smile at mankind, beginning with yourself. There, you're looking tired again. I'm going now."

"Just a moment—please don't go. I've something I ought to say, if I'm to be frank, as you always urge us to be. I do appreciate your cheery talk and the way you have pretended that all is well with me. It's like you. But shall we ever be the same to each other again? I know I'm not quite the friend I was; to some extent I've become an object of pity. I owe it to you that I have a roof over me, this bed under me."

"Don't say such things, nor think them. You are exactly as you were, one of my household, and particularly dear to me."

"Of course he said so! Nothing could be more correct. Nobody will ever be able to say that my husband countenanced irregular behavior in his home. He said you positively must go, and there was to be no more talk. There was no more talk, and you stayed. That's Menelaos. He's really the kindest man who ever tried to keep the world straight. He is willing to waive the results so long as he can have an audience. The true reason why he brought me home instead of killing me was that he wanted to save up some one to talk at in his old age. He never has said of you half the bad things he says to me in the daily round. Neither he nor I can spare you; you will have to be the daughter of the house now that Hermione is gone."

"Gone where? I haven't heard. Has she married Orestes?"

"She has left us—run away. I dare say she'll marry Orestes, if she hasn't done so already. Anyway, we have lost her. Her father threatened in an impulsive moment to arrange a match with Pyrrhus, and Hermione took him seriously, or pretended to. It gave her a first-rate excuse to throw herself on Orestes for protection. We don't know where she is. * * * Adraste, has Charitas come to see her grandson?"

"She certainly hasn't, that old cat!"

"Why don't you ask her to come?"

"I'd like to see myself! After the things she has said of me!"

"Exactly. Let her see them first, and then come. If I were you I'd ask her. Tell her the boy waits to be seen, whenever she cares to look at him. She'll come. * * * And you might rescue Damastor that way."

"There! You said I was lucky not to marry him, and now you suggest getting him back!"

"It's a weakness in me, I admit. I think you would be quite perfect without him, but you don't, and you would never forgive me for not telling you how to get around his indignant mother. That's the way it's done. Now do as you like. Notice, I said 'rescue' him. We want back the Damastor who perhaps doesn't yet exist. But he might. * * * Anyway, Adraste, I'm glad it's a boy. The girls do have the rough side, whenever there's a choice."

"Helen, do you think Hermione ought to marry Orestes?"

"My dear child, she's going to marry Orestes."

"Ought she to?"

"Do you mean, would I marry him? I'd drink poison just before the wedding. He's almost all that I don't like in human nature. He sees nothing good in life, but he consents to take charge of it. If Hermione marries, I accept her choice. If she can accept it, too, she'll be fortunate. You know my rule—repent before, not afterward. And afterward it's really too late to criticize."

"But, Helen, would you say of Hermione as you said of me, that it would be better if her lover deserted her, left her to bring up her child unmarried?"

"Dear me, I'm to be cross-examined! No, Adraste, I'd never say the same thing of Hermione and of you. I don't know that she could appreciate her opportunities if Orestes deserted her. I'm not sure that either she or Orestes is in love, ever was, or ever will be. The cases aren't parallel. From what I can gather, they regard each other not as lovers, but as supreme obligations. To Hermione certainly Orestes appeals as one of her duties. If ever I have a word with him, I'll express my sympathy."

"Will you put that rug over the baby? The air's blowing on him."

"If he sleeps so soundly, he'll give you little trouble. Oh, what a splendid rug!"

"What do you think? Eteoneus came in here without being invited. I assure you, and without asking permission, and he stormed around here like a wild man—said the house was going to the devil, and he must leave it, and called me—the same thing as baggage, only worse, and said Damastor was an ass. Then he put this over baby and got out."

Billboard Cartoons Are Berlin Novelty

Berlin, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—A board fence in west-end Berlin is decorated anew each week with cartoons by Paul Simmel, one of the best known German humorists.

Simmel did not like to see the board fence cluttered up with ugly advertising. He offered to furnish cartoons depicting Berlin life instead. The owners accepted, and the drawings attract big crowds every week.

One life-size picture shows two cabmen and what purports to be a horse and cab. The cab is dilapidated and the nag seems ready to break down any moment. One cabman says to the other:

"Let me tell you something: to fly to America in an airplane isn't anything to make a fuss over. But to try to drive to Potsdam with my Lizzie—that's real art."

Good Bitters Add Food Values And Give Forth Enticing Aroma

Compound Has Excellent Quality of Stimulating Flow of Digestive Juices, Providing Possibility of Proper Assimilation—Regarded as Sane, Sound and Sensible Method of Obtaining Results.

BY DR. DANIEL R. HODGDON

Formerly president of Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital of Chicago, director Industrial Educational Bureau, president of College of Technology and director School of Technology, Newark; lecturer Newark Institute of Arts and Sciences and member of the faculty of New York University and New Jersey State Normal School.

DR. DANIEL R. HODGDON.

Food may have a very high nutritive value yet not nourish the human system because of its entire lack of taste-bearing substances. Regardless of the value of a food from the calorific or mineral content if there is nothing in the food to stimulate the appetite and to exert an influence upon the flow of the digestive fluids, the full effect of the food is not obtained. In most cases, indigestion, stasis or constipation may result. Even the best of foods under such conditions may prove to be decidedly harmful because of the waste material which creates toxic effects in the intestines and develop unwholesome conditions in the colon.

From time when the minds of men runneth not to the contrary condiments of one kind or another have been used. There are two distinct types of flavoring material; those which belong to the injurious class, such as salt, pepper, perika, etc., and those which are made from herbs and vegetables, such as parsley, garlic, capers, cives, marjoran, bay leaves, caraway, anis, fennel seed and lemon juice, etc. The injurious type of condiments used for flavoring may stimulate the appetite and the flow of digestive fluids but at the same time have deleterious effects upon the kidneys and liver.

Organs Overworked.

It does not mean that these organs are destroyed or always impaired through the use of this type of condiment. Many people eat too largely of this type of seasoning and thereby overwork the organs of elimination. These organs are designed to take care of a certain amount of this type of material. Nature has very carefully provided the human system with the necessary organs to take care of the waste material from food. It is only when an excess is used that these organs become irritated, weak, discouraged and give up their function in the human body.

It is because of the tremendous strain upon these organs of elimination that such attention has been given to the subject of seasoning foods in a manner which will prevent them from being injurious, especially during the winter months when the activity of the skin is very low and the liver and kidneys must do the greater part of the work of elimination. A great deal of attention should be paid to the subject of seasoning.

Seasonings which are made from the vegetables and herbs are to be particularly recommended at all times during the year, but especially during the time when the activity of the skin is prevented by the surrounding temperature.

The fact that seasonings increase digestibility of foods and better assimilation makes them very acceptable at all times as a part of the human diet. Seasonings also have a physiological value from the standpoint of odor. The aroma of food very often creates a flow of saliva. Enticing aromas, appetizing flavors, are quite as essential to proper digestion as the food itself.

Food More Valuable.

For many years, there has been upon the market a flavoring substance called Bitters, a compound which has a remarkable quality of stimulating the flow of digestive juices. It not only gives the food a pleasing flavor and enticing aroma but it makes the food more valuable as a food. The increased flow of the gastric juices caused by this particular type of condiment increases the digestion and the possibilities of proper assimilation. This will have a decided beneficial reaction upon the health and cleanliness of the intestinal tract.

Such condiments also have a decidedly beneficial reaction upon those very much overworked organs of elimination which so frequently break down in our highly organized type of civilization.

When food has been made pleasant and palatable, it becomes a hygienic, digestible and useful food to build the organs of the system to replace the tissues.

One should be very careful in the selection and use of flavoring material. The more our tasteless foods are flavored with such flavoring material as Bitters, the more normal reaction we get from our systems.

The normal digestive and assimilated activities are indispensable in the process of metabolism. Condiments help to bring this about, but they may do more harm than good if a proper selection of flavoring material is not made. The more frequent use of Bitters is a sane, sound, sensible method of obtaining the proper results without the extreme injurious effects that many of the irritating condiments have when used for food flavoring.

TESTED RECIPES

Chocolate Egg Drink.

One egg, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 scant teaspoons cocoa, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1¼ cups milk, 2 drops oil of peppermint.

Beat yolk of egg. Mix sugar, cocoa and salt and beat into yolk. Beat in the milk and half of the well-beaten white of egg. Pour into a glass containing the flavoring and pile the remaining white of egg on top. Vanilla can be used in place of the peppermint.

The milk should be very cold before combining with the egg and just enough ice to "tinkle" in the glass is used. Much ice will make the drink watery. Serve as soon as made.

June Punch.

Two cups strawberry juice, 1 cup strong hot tea, 1 cup orange juice, 1 cup currant juice, 2 cups grated pineapple, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 2 cups ice water.

Simmer pineapple, sugar and water for 20 minutes. Remove from the fire and when cool add fruit juices and tea. Strain and chill. When ready to serve add ice water. Serve with a sprig of fresh mint in each glass.

Raspberry Nectar.

Two cups raspberry juice, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ cup orange juice, ¾ cup sugar, 2 cups water, 1 egg white.

Combine fruit juices with sugar and let stand, stirring frequently until sugar is dissolved. Add water and let stand on ice for 1 hour. Beat white of egg with a whisk until light and add to fruit mixture. Beat well with whisk until the whole is frothy. Serve with 1 tablespoon crushed ice in each glass.

The housekeeper who likes to be able to serve a refreshing drink to her chance visitors will keep a supply of fruit syrups on hand. These syrups are added to ice or charged water, 1 or 2 tablespoonfuls to a glass of water.

Fruit Syrup.

Two cups sugar, 2 cups fruit juice, 2 cups boiling water.

Put water into sauce pan and sift in sugar. When sugar is dissolved cover pan and boil ten minutes. Add fruit juice and bring to the boiling point. Cover and simmer, just below the bubbling point for 15 minutes. Pour into sterlized jars and seal.

The fruit juice is obtained by slightly heating the fruit while crushing it. Crush well and strain through several thicknesses of cheesecloth. Press the bag to extract all the juice. Berries are usually treated this way.

Chocolate or cocoa syrup can be made and added to a milk and egg drink in place of the uncooked cocoa. The drink is really more delicious and smooth when the cooked syrup is used.

Cocktails.

There is no hard and fast rule to follow for making the cocktail, which is usually the first course of a luncheon or dinner, but one may use her imagination and judgment in combining ingredients.

Cocktails are of two kinds; those of oysters, clams, lobsters, or similar fish, and those made of a mixture of fruit juices, or a mixture of fruits. However, those of the first variety are usually more popular in the winter time, while the fruit cocktail is an all year around appetizer.

While the cocktail is usually served as the first course of a dinner, if it is a liquid cocktail it is very proper to have it passed in the living room just before the luncheon or dinner is served, and this procedure is considered an announcement that dinner is served. If served in the living room, they should be arranged attractively on a small tray. Small cocktail napkins, if used, may be on the tray with the glasses. If the cocktail is served in the dining room, it may be in place on the table on individual plates or service plates when the guests enter the dining room.

Fruit cocktails are oftenest made of a mixture of several fruits, such as pineapple, bananas, oranges, grapefruit and pears. These are cut into small pieces, put into sherbet glasses and a couple of tablespoons of sweetened fruit juice or heavy fruit syrup poured over them. Sometimes they are served in grapefruit shells, lemon shells, or scooped out melons; they are oftenest eaten with a fork, unless the fruit is fine-shredded and there is an excess of liquid, when a spoon is used. Fruit juice cocktail is also served and is merely a mixture of orange and pineapple juices, with a touch of lemon; or grapefruit juice with strawberry and currant juice. They may be slightly sweetened, or flavored with a very little ginger or mint, etc. These are served in claret glasses, or in glasses of any shape, with or without a spoon.

Scallop Broth.

Wash and cut in small pieces, one-half pint of scallops and one-half pint each of milk and water, a teaspoon of butter, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer twenty minutes, strain and serve.

Panned Fish.

This method is used for small fish or fish that can be cut in slices. Have the fish well cleaned, rub with salt and pepper and dredged with a little flour or rolled in cornmeal. Have a large frying pan smoking hot, with as little grease as will keep the fish from sticking. Brown the fish quickly on both sides, then reduce heat and cook more slowly for ten to twenty minutes, according to the size of the fish.

Broiled Rabbit.

Skin, singe and wipe the rabbit. Prepare for the broiler like chicken and cook over charcoal embers till done. Season with salt and pepper just before it is finished and pour over melted butter, mixed with three dessertspoons of vinegar and one of made mustard. Serve with Ravigote sauce.
